Greece Rejects Italian Ultimatum; Fascist Army Pouring Across Border

8,557 More Men in D. C. Given Draft Numbers

Tasks Completed In Areas 13 and 25 As Staff Workers Toil Overtime

Steady work into the late afternoon yesterday by District selective service workers gave numbers to 8,557 registrants of Board Areas 13 and 25 in ample time for the first drawing of service numbers by President Roosevelt at noon tomorrow.

At the same time National Selective Service Director Clarence A. Dykstra laid down the general principle that America's mobilization of manpower must not interfere with the industrial production of arms.

Both national and local officials joined in emphasizing that failure of a registrant to know his number before tomorrow's drawing does not constitute a criminal offense.

The renumbering of men in the two local areas—the city's trouble spot"—was completed yesterday at the Henry Elementary School, Seventh and P Streets Northwest, headquarters for the newly created Board 25. The numbers were posted there immediately. Headquarters for Area 13, from which Area 25 was carved when it was found that too many men had been listed in the section, is expected to be announced by the Board of Education today and numbers will be put up at once.

4,598 Get New Numbers

A total of 4,598 men were given new numbers in Area 25. Area 13 listed a new group of 3,959 registrants after nearly 24 hours of uninterrupted work.

In a public statement to employers throughout the country, Dykstra declared:

"It is a basic principle of selective service that material procurement is paramount. Therefore, where two requirements—military manpower versus production— conflict, production should have priority."

Occupational deferments under the Selective Service Act should be determined on an individual basis by the local selection boards, Dykstra emphasized.

Employers' Aid Asked

Estimating that questionnaires, the answers to which will help determine classification of a registrant, will not be sent out before November 7, the Selective Service head suggested that employers withhold requests for occupational deferment of their workers until after that date. The questionnaires will be sent out to registrants in the order in which their numbers are drawn in tomorrow's lottery.

Dykstra suggested that employers list all draft registrants in their employ who do not have dependents and determine which of them cannot be replaced immediately, if

Down the Home Stretch

Willkie Offers Housing Plan; Roosevelt Opens Final Drive

By Robert C. Albright

Aboard Willkie Special, in Indiana, Oct. 27.—Wendell L. Willkie tonight accused the New Deal of "bogging down" on its housing assignment by frustrating in a maze of red tape the private development of low-cost homes.

Streaking westward on his fifth invasion of the Middle States, Willkie took time out of his Sunday rest period to announce a six-point program to coordinate Federal housing efforts and make private housing "the great industry of the future."

Weary, his voice badly strained by 300 speeches in five weeks, his irrepressible "never felt better" failed to move Dr. Harold Barnard today.

Charges Red Tape

The good doctor only partially succeeded. For Willkie took the time to frame an answer to a prominent group of housing experts. Then he disclosed that the unannounced Sunday destination was Rensselaer, Ind. There tonight he conferred with Representative Charles Halleck, his Hoosier adviser, whose home town is Rensselaer.

Several hundred of the townsfolk turned out to greet Willkie, who waved to them from the platform but made no speech. Halleck brought his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Abraham Halleck, and his 9-year-old twins, Chuckie and Patty, to the station. Then Mr. and Mrs. Willkie motored to the Jasper County Hospital to greet Halleck's wife, who is recovering from pneumonia.

Starts Final Drive Today

In striking today at alleged New Deal "maladministration" of slum clearance and housing objectives, Willkie hit hard at one of the Administration's chief domestic claims to continuance in power. On each of his defense tours, the President is singling out housing projects to inspect as an indirect part of the Nation's defenses.

But Willkie today charged low cost housing operations are "para-

The Presidential Campaign, Other Political Stories, Pages 6 and 7.

President Roosevelt left the Capital late last night for New Jersey and New York, beginning a week of open and vigorous campaigning for a third term.

Tonight he will speak in Madison Square Garden, New York. The address will be nationally broadcast.

His departure followed a day devoted largely to preparation of other speeches he will deliver in Boston, Brooklyn, Cleveland and elsewhere before the voters go to the polls a week from tomorrow.

Later, after nightfall, he conferred with Joseph P. Kennedy, newly returned Ambassador to London, and with Senator Byrnes (Democrat), of South Carolina, who has recently spent some time in Democratic national headquarters in New York.

Mr. Roosevelt was accompanied on his train last night by Secretary of Commerce Jones and Representative Mary Norton (Democrat), of New Jersey.

To Visit Shipyards

Mr. Roosevelt will leave his train this morning at Newark, N. J., where he will greet the mayors of northern New Jersey municipalities.

Motoring to nearby Kearny, N. J., the President will visit the Federal Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Co., which is building seven cruisers and 32 destroyers for the Navy.

The route of his motorcade goes then through Bayonne, N. J., to Staten Island and Brooklyn, where he will participate in ground-breaking ceremonies for the tunnel which is to link Brooklyn with Manhattan Island at the Battery at a cost estimated near $80,000,000.

After lunch at Hunter College with some faculty members of New York colleges, Mr. Roosevelt will motor to Manhattan.

During the afternoon he will see the Queens Bridge Housing development and make a brief visit to LaGuardia Air Field. Passing over the Triborough Bridge, he will go to Fordham University, where he is expected to deliver a short speech before a unit of the Reserve Officers training corps.

Clerks, Little Businessmen Rally to Lewis

C. I. O. Aides Expect Swing of Doubtful States to Willkie

A flood of messages from small businessmen and white collar workers indorsing John L. Lewis' plea for election of Wendell Willkie is pouring into Lewis' headquarters, persons close to the C. I. O. leader disclosed last night.

So great has been the favorable response from these classes, along with the known support of members of Lewis' own union, the United Mine Workers, that Lewis aides are picturing as likely a swing of several so-called doubtful States into the Willkie grouping.

As the extraordinary Presidential campaign entered its last full week, Lewis was known to expect that States with such important segments of the total electoral vote as Pennsylvania, with 36 votes, Illinois, with 29, and Ohio, with 26, will feel the effects of miners' balloting in their continuance of loyalty to their union president. In all of them the United Mine Work-

Knox Says U. S. Must Be Ready

Secretary Knox made Navy Day yesterday the occasion for a declaration that "we must not ignore this well-remembered warning: 'It is later than you think.'"

The statement was part of a Nation-wide broadcast in which the Secretary urged that the United States be prepared to protect itself from attack in both the Atlantic and Pacific.

Knox was joined in this statement of urgency by Admiral H. R. Stark, chief of naval operations, who said the Nation must envisage "the possibility of simultaneous attacks in either or both oceans."

Assistant Secretary of the Navy Lewis Compton, in a "progress report," also broadcast, fixed the fleet's object as defense of the Western Hemisphere, "to be able to meet and defeat an enemy or enemies far from our own shores, its responsibility. This responsibility must be met with superior speed and

Pulled Fire Alarm To Capture Two; He's Arrested

While calling for the help of the law, Herbert Walker, 27, colored, of 1020 Lamont Street Northwest, allegedly violated a law yesterday.

Returning to his parked car at Church and Fifteenth Streets Northwest, Walker said he found two 16-year-old youths attempting to drive it off. When he seized one, the second attacked him and a free-for-all ensued.

Walker pulled a fire alarm box and held both the alleged would-be thieves. Police arriving with the fire engines arrested all three.

The youths were charged with attempting to steal the auto, and Walker was charged with pulling a false alrm and will appear in court today.

Follows Daughters in Death

2 Die in Traffic; Truck Crash Fatal to Third in Family

Two person were killed in Washington area traffic accidents yesterday, as a third member of a Woodlawn (Va.) family succumbed to injuries suffered in a collision Saturday night.

Killed yesterday were Irving Payne, 30, of 17 Pershing Avenue, Colmar Manor, Md., and Mrs. Susan Duffy, 57, of New Castle, Del.

Mrs. Lena Beavers, 29, of Woodlawn, Va., whose daughters, Vivian, 8, and Marjorie, 6, were fatally injured Saturday, died yesterday at Alexandria Hospital. Word of the wife's death was kept from the husband, Frank, who with three sons, Frank, jr., 10, James, 3, and Earl, 18 months, was fighting for his life at the hospital.

Frank, jr., was suffering from a possible skull fracture and broken right leg; James had serious head injuries and Earl, a possible skull fracture and fractures of both legs.

The crash occurred while Beavers was driving his family to the Open Air Theater several miles from his home. A heavy freight truck smashed broadside into the Beavers' light delivery truck.

Payne was struck down by a hit-run driver on Bladensburg road near Cottage City, Md. Rushed to Casualty Hospital by the Bladensburg Rescue Squad, he was pronounced dead on arrival.

Within an hour after the accident, Scout Car Policemen J. G. Beach and C. L. Wright, arrested J. Tremholm Hopkins, 25, of Annapolis, after

Supreme Court May Act Today On Wage-Hour

By the Associated Press

The Supreme Court may act today on litigation involving the right of the Federal wage-hour administrator to subpena records of employers.

The tribunal is expected to announce whether it will review a challenge by Montgomery Ward & Co., Inc., of an attempt by the administrator to subpena records concerning 2,000 employes at the Kansas City, Mo., branch of the Chicago mail order house.

This, Montgomery Ward contended, was an unreasonable "search and seizure" prohibited by the Constitution.

The Seventh Federal Circuit Court ruled that records could be required, even though there was no reasonable cause to believe that the Wage-Hour Act was being violated.

D. C. Man, 139 Others Lost on Destroyer

Ottawa (Monday), Oct. 28 (U.P.).—The naval ministry early today announced the loss of the Canadian destroyer Margaree and 140 of her officers and men as result of collision with a merchantman.

Only 31 of the 171 officers and men aboard are known to have been saved. One American was known to be among the crew dead —James Marin Henderson, of Washington, D. C.

Laval Will Explain Axis Deal Today

German 'Grandeur' Extolled by Vichy; Decision Is Called Final for France

By the Associated Press

Vichy, Oct. 27.—The Petain government tonight announced Vice Premier Pierre Laval would broadcast to the defeated nation tomorrow an explanation of France's new tie-up with the Axis powers but the time and place of his address were not given.

Also, Laval is scheduled to leave Vichy for Paris tomorrow after a cabinet meeting and a minister's meeting with Marshal Petain.

[Rome dispatches said Premier Mussolini had left for Florence and persistent but unofficial reports were that he would meet Fuerher Hitler, Marshal Petain and Gen. Franco, of Spain, in conferences that might last several days.

Florence Meeting Reported

[These reports were unconfirmed from Madrid, Vichy or Berlin, and American news services gave various versions of the nature of the expected talks. The Associated Press said the Rome rumors spoke of a "four-man" meeting of the heads of state, but the United Press heard Mussolini would meet Hitler Monday, and later see Franco and either Laval or Petain, perhaps somewhere in occupied France.

[International News Service reported from Rome that Laval was en route to Florence—not Paris—to meet Mussolini to lay the groundwork for a subsequent meeting of Il Duce and Petain. This version was that a Hitler-Mussolini meeting might follow.]

Praise Nazi "Grandeur"

Until Laval talks, at least, the country was left in the dark on what lies behind the brief announcement Saturday that Hitler and Petain have agreed in prinple to work together to rebuild

D. C. Grand Jury To Hear Testimony On Nazi Agents

Government witnesses are expected to open testimony before the District grand jury today in a case purporting to show criminal conspiracy by German propagandists.

The Transocean News Service of New York and Washington and Manfred Zapp, its general manager, have been named in the case by the Government. Whiting Willauer, special Assistant Attorney General, is scheduled to present material assembled by the F. B. I. and the Dies Committee.

The Attorney General said recently that the Department of Justice had been informed that Zapp and his news agency have violated the law requiring foreign propagandists to register with the State Department.

Kennedy Back, Sees Roosevelt

Envoy to Britain Promises Statement At Noon Today

Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy, returning to America yesterday from London, dodged reporters in New York and Washington for hours, then announced that he would issue a statement today at noon.

Announcement that Kennedy would make a public statement today followed a 4-hour conference at the White House last night. The envoy refused to indicate the contents of his statement—to be delivered in New York—nor would he discuss his talk with the President.

The conference lasted until President Roosevelt had to entrain for New York, where he will deliver a political address in Madison Square Garden tonight. Kennedy had been invited to accompany the Presidential entourage, but decided to fly instead. The Ambassador said he would not be in Madison Square Garden tonight, and did not know whether he'd be in Boston when Mr. Roosevelt speaks there this week.

The Ambassador arrived at Washington Airport at 5:30 o'clock last night, shook off questions piled on him by reporters and hastened off in an automobile to report to the President on the situation in London.

Moving in a fast walk from the plane, with Mrs. Kennedy at his side, he repeated that nothing could be said until he had seen the President who, it was understood, was awaiting the Ambassador as a dinner guest. Senator Byrnes (Democrat), of South Carolina, and Mrs. Byrnes were also present.

Reports that he might resign from this Nation's top diplomatic post were left unanswered, as were reports that he might make a series

Nazis Hit Anew At Bullitt

By the United Press

Berlin (Monday), Oct. 28.—Adolf Hitler's Nazi Party organ, Voelkischer Beobachter, today launched a bitter attack on United States foreign policy and produced new "document" purporting to show that United States Ambassador to France William C. Bullitt favored American entry into the war.

Bullitt, archfoe of the Nazis, was assailed for the second time in recent months with the publication of what the Voelkischer Beobachter called documentary evidence seized by the Germans in Poland.

The new published "document" involving Bullitt was said to cover five typewritten pages, sent from Count Jerzy Potocki, Polish Ambassador in Washington, to the Warsaw foreign office on March 7, 1939, almost six months before the outbreak of the war.

This evidence, the Nazi party newspaper said, analyzes American foreign policy and the possibilities of United States participation in

278 Rescued as Alaskan Liner Runs Aground During Night

By the Associated Press

Prince Rupert, B. C., Oct. 27 (Canadian Press).—Half-dressed and shivering from a night of exposure, 278 passengers of the grounded coastal liner Alaska were landed safely from a rescue ship here tonight. The big Seattle-bound ship crashed on the rocky shore of Elliott Bay at 12:30 a. m. (P. S. T.).

Wreck victims were brought to this small Hecate Strait port by the Northland Steamship Co.'s liner North Coast, which, like the Alaska, was en route from Ketchikan, Alaska, to Seattle.

The Alaska struck at full speed in the pitch blackness of a northern autumn night and shoved her bow almost into the trees fringing the shore 20 miles south of here. The ship immediately listed to port, and Capt. O. C. Anderson ordered passengers ashore.

Tumbling from their bunks or rushing from the salon, the passengers jumped for lifeboats while oil from the Alaska's tanks spread over the water. Several fell into the icy water, and most were smeared with oil, but no one was injured seriously.

The North Coast, answering an SOS, arrived five hours later. The passengers, who had been sitting around campfires singing through the night, were rowed 300 yards to the rescue ship.

Capt. Anderson and 115 crewmen remained aboard the Alaska, awaiting salvage ships.

'Fighting for Our Honor,' Metaxas Declares, Turning Down Demands of Rome For Cession of Territory

Bulletin

Belgrade, Yugoslavia (Monday), Oct. 28 (AP).—Greek Minister Rosetti declared today that a state of war exists between Italy and Greece, and fighting started at 6 a. m. (11 p. m. E. S. T. Sunday.)

The Greek minister said he learned in a telephone conversation with Athens that Italian troops pushed across the border from Albania just as a 6 a. m. Italian ultimatum expired.

He said he did not learn the details of the ultimatum.

Athens, Greece, (Monday) Oct. 28 (AP).—Rejecting an Italian ultimatum calling for surrender by Greece of part of her territory, Dictator-Premier John Metaxas declared today "the moment has arrived for Greece to fight for her independence and honor."

Immediately after, a decree for general mobilization was signed.

The Italian ultimatum was given to Metaxas at 3 a. m. (8 p. m. E. S. T. Sunday) and gave him three hours to comply or Italian troops would march in.

Metaxas' message to the Greek people said:

"The moment has arrived for Greece to fight for her independence and honor.

"Though we have kept the strictest neutrality toward all, Italy, not recognizing ourselves as free Greeks, demanded of me at 3 o'clock this morning to surrender sections of national territory and that for their occupation her armies would start moving at 6 a. m.

"I replied to the Italian minister I considered the demand and the method in which it was made as a declaration of war by Italy on Greece.

"Greeks, we shall now prove whether we are worthy of our ancestors and of the liberty which our forefathers secured for us.

"Fight for the fatherland, your wives, your children and sacred traditions.

"Now, above all, the fight." (Signed Metaxas.)

The crisis came as a climax to a week-end of tension precipitated by Italian charges against Greece of responsibility for a reported "incident" on Albanian soil.

The Greek government formally denied the Italian charges yesterday.

Metaxas conferred with his army chief of staff yesterday, but officials at the time said no new military measures were contemplated as the government already had prepared its defenses.

Reich and Soviet Join in Forming New Danube Board

Copyright by New York Times

Berlin, Oct. 27.—The formation of a "The United Danube Commission," replacing both the International and the European Danube commissions, was announced in Berlin today.

The new commission, it is stated, is the result of conversations between Germany and Russia, with the approbation of Italy.

"The United Danube Commission" includes in its membership Germany, Italy, Russia, Rumania, Hungary, Bulgaria, Yugoslavia and Slovakia. It will meet for the first time tomorrow to effect a temporary settlement of questions pertaining to the lower reaches of the Danube from its mouth to Braila.

(In Budapest, Hungarian sources interpreted the admission of Russia to the conference as confirmation of a Soviet-German understanding. They assumed that Russia had "forced" an entrance to the conference after being excluded from the original called for Vienna some time ago.)

Record 537,952 Attend Finale Of World's Fair

New York, Oct. 27 (AP).—A lone bugler, sounding the silver notes of taps before a shivering multitude, consigned the New York World's Fair to history's scrapheap tonight.

Going out in a blaze of glory, the $155,000,000 "World of Tomorrow" drew an all-time record throng of 537,952 persons as it passed into the world of yesterday.

In a brief farewell speech on the Board Chairman Harvey D. Gibson reported that the plaster paradise of Flushing Flats had drawn 45,008,383 paying customers in its two-year career.

Italians Report Border Incidents

British Planes Urge Albania to Revolt, Fascists Declare

By the Associated Press

Rome, Oct. 27.—A new series of episodes along the tense Albanian-Greek frontier, which the official Italians news agency Stefani said "deserved attention," was reported tonight by the Tirana newspaper Tomori.

During the last 48 hours at six points along the frontier numerous groups of armed persons have appeared and disappeared from view, Tomori said.

One group was said to have entered Albanian territory, where the frontier guard ordered a halt.

Airplanes, which the paper said presumably were English, loosed pamphlets in the Albanian language from high altitudes over southern Albania, inciting the population to revolt.

[International News Service further quoted Stefani as reporting the Greeks had virtually closed their frontier with Albania.]

These reports came as Rome opened the celebration of the anniversary of the October 30, 1922, Fascist march into the ancient capital.

Tomori also said that some hundred Greek students guided by their schoolmasters made an anti-Italian, anti-Albanian demonstration near Karvia, waving their Greek banners and shouting insults and threats.

Tomori said excitement created artificially among the Greek populace by propagandists was based on a claim that English troops and planes were ready to enter into a conflict, helping the Greeks invade Albania.

Diplomacy Feverish

Thus the new Greek-Italian crisis simmered tonight, with observers in doubt whether Rome intended to follow up the new incidents or let the matter drop as it did the excitement over the beheading of Daut Hoggia, described by Italians as an Albanian patriot, last August.

[The New York Times said intense diplomatic activity was reported between Rome and Athens. It was admitted in Italian circles, The Times said, the situation was "fraught with unpleasant developments" but queries as to whether Italo-Greek relations were nearing the breaking point were met reservedly. The only comment was that "events will speak for themselves in a few days."]

Reports from Tirana, yesterday said Greek and Albania troops clashed on Albanian soil 15 miles from the Greek border and that three bombs exploded in the headquarters of an Italian lieutenant-general.

Following reports that Italy suddenly had suspended commercial air service to Greece until November 4, some foreign observers foresaw an Italian punitive expedition against Greece, one of Britain's last friends in southeast Europe.

Railway Yard Bombed

[Another bomb explosion, this time in an unnamed Albanian township, caused considerable damage in a railway yard, according to a Stefani dispatch carried by the Hungarian telegraph agency, the Associated Press reported from Budapest.

[The Rome Correspondent of Telepress, Italian press agency with headquarters in Genova, Switzerland, predicted "events of great importance" for Monday.

["Following the German-French interview, it is naturally to be asked where and when Italy will intervene," the correspondent said. "Rome sources said this intervention will take place very soon."]

Axis displeasure with Greece's attitude as a bystander in the war was emphasized in an article in the Rome newspaper Il Messaggero, accusing the Greek press of distorting information in favor of Britain under "an appearance of objectivity."

It complained also that Greece had called to arms 320,000 soldiers of her 450,000 potential troops and objected to the recent reiteration by British Foreign Secretary Lord Halifax of Britain's pledge to help defend Greece.

Ten Attack Divisions Ready

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, Oct. 27 (AP).—Great Activity among Italian forces in Albania and steady movements of war materials toward the Greek frontier were reported today by observers near the Yugoslav-Albanian border.

Neutral military observers, piecing together information from Albania, declared ten Italian attack divisions had been positively identified along the Greek frontier.

They estimated that reserve troops for these divisions, with transport columns and other necessary units, would swell the Italian forces in Albania past the 200,000 mark.

While one of the best routes into Greece is down the Bitolj valley in southern Yugoslavia, military sources said this area was one of the most heavily fortified parts of this country and expressed doubts the Italians would attempt to use it.

Meanwhile Premier Dragisa Cvetkovic declared in a speech at Cetinje that "Yugoslavia's frontier must be defended on every occasion."

D. C. Teachers Get Leave to Return Home to Vote

Certain District public school teachers who are absent from classes on November 5 will be giving their pupils a demonstration in democracy.

Arrangements are being made for those eligible to vote in States to return there to do so, Dr. Frank W. Ballou, superintendent of schools, announced. Principals and other supervisory officers have been asked to arrange "as far as possible to take care of the work of any employe" during an absence for that purpose.

An absence for less than a day "would, in many cases, not require the employment of a substitute," he pointed out. But for longer absences which would require a substitute, the latter would be paid by the person who is being temporarily replaced.

No estimate of the number of teachers likely to return has been made. But officials pointed out that such an arrangement is customary for general elections.

Nazis Launch New Attack on Bullitt

The Voelkischer Beobachter was bitter in challenging Bullitt's statements in a speech at Chicago on October 21 in which he branded as "a Nazi lie" assertions that he and other American diplomats had promised Britain and France that the United States would enter the war.

Germany has "no intention of mixing in the American Presidential election," the Voelkischer Beobachter said, but added:

"But we cannot remain silent when an American diplomat, who, in Europe as well as in his own land, is known as an unscrupulous war-monger against our country, twists the truth in such a manner."

Bullitt, in his Chicago speech, accused "Nazi propagandists in Berlin of launching the lie that we had promised France and England that we would enter the war."

Bullitt, it was said, was "defending himself against the reproach" that he and other American diplomats in Europe had "with all the means at their disposal provoked England and France to declare war against Germany."

Letter Assailed

The Nazi newspaper took sharp issue with Bullitt's disclosure, in his Chicago speech, of a letter which he said Edouard Daladier, then French premier, had sent to President Roosevelt. That letter, Bullitt said, contained Daladier's statement that "France should make her decisions knowing that, according to the opinion of Bullitt, the United States would not enter the war."

The Nazi newspaper said that the letter "whose history we do not know and which was written after publication of the Polish documents (against Bullitt) presents a weak attempt by Herr Bullitt to transfer responsibility from himself to the former premier of the French Republic."

(Daladier is now a prisoner in France, awaiting trial on "war guilt" charges before the newly-created French Supreme Court at Riom.)

German Leather Substitutes Show Great Progress

Copyright, 1940, by the New York Times.

Noteworthy progress has been reported in the development in Germany of leather substitutes since the outbreak of war, a report to the Commerce Department states.

Of the three categories in which the substitutes are gathered, "fagelane," which is the oldest and most highly developed of the artificial leathers, includes the fabritoid types, while the "fabinette" materials are made of at least 50 per cent vegetable, animal or other fibers, and a binder.

The "nifarine" type, more of a substitute for rubber soles than for leather proper, consists of 12 to 14 per cent of Buna synthetic rubber with the balance made up of reclaimed rubber and fillers, notably fibers. Leather substitutes made from impregnated pasteboard and from fish skins have not been very successful to date.

Laval to Explain Tie-up With Axis

European peace.

The government took the attitude that France is meeting the Axis on equal terms despite her defeat, and the spokesmen praised Germany's "unquestionable grandeur" in treating with a defeated enemy after four months.

The spokesmen contended there was no humiliation for France in the negotiations now in progress and held out a prospect of a return to normal which would mean prosperity for all.

They flatly said that the "choice now has been made" and every Frenchman must accept it.

No criticism of the policy of collaboration with Germany and Italy can be permitted, these spokesmen declared.

They warned the French to beware of "insidious rumors" from England which, they said, would try to place obstacles before the new French policy.

They also took the line that since the armistice France has changed profoundly and that it is with this new France that Hitler is able to treat.

Marshal Petain, they said, gave his free consent to the policy of collaboration in continental Europe.

Censorship limited French newspapers to bare official announcements and officials made no secret that strict press control will remain in force until further negotiations have been held.

The government secrecy bred many rumors of what is going on.

(In Bern, Switzerland, where the rumor factory's output often is used by both sides to cloak their real intentions, two touched on France's new role.

(According to one, Axis warplanes already are winging southward toward bases near Gibraltar. France's collapse has given the Germans direct connection for transit of men and material to the border of friendly Spain.

(The other pictured French African and Near Eastern territories as involved in the discussions with Germany. In Tunisia, there are military airfields and the naval base of Bizerte which the Italians might use in an attempt to slice Britain's "life-line" through the Mediterranean. The Axis also could use Syria's airfields and oil pipeline outlet to Tripoli.)

May Ignore U. S. Warning

Vichy, Oct. 27 (U.P.).—Marshal Petain may ignore completely President Roosevelt's formal warning that any French military "collaboration" with Germany may result in United States occupation of French territories in the Western Hemisphere. It was delivered Saturday but has not been answered and may not be, it was understood.

A personal telegram to Marshal Petain from King George VI of Britain, promising an ultimate British victory, also went unpublished and without comment in Vichy.

At is meeting tomorrow the cabinet will, barring a last-minute change, name Laval as foreign minister to replace Paul Baudouin, who resigned Saturday. The explanation will be that Laval had succeeded where Baudouin failed in achieving a "reconciliation" with Germany.

Laval will then hold the widest possible powers when he meets in the new negotiations with Germany and Italy, holding the offices of foreign minister, vice premier and direction of propaganda and control of press and motion pictures.

When he goes to Paris tomorrow Laval will attempt to obtain a "protocol of cooperation" to replace the existing armistice agreement until a permanent peace treaty can be drafted.

The Petain government's spokesman inferred today that Germany is preparing a powerful political bloc of European nations which may make an appeal for peace, under threat that if the appeal is spurned the Axis' "new European order" may be installed without waiting for the end of the conflict.

French Still for Britain

Copyright by New York Tribune, Inc.

Rome, Oct. 27.—Premier Mussolini's newspaper, Il Popolo d'Italia, said today the reform of France, presumably along Fascist lines, has been merely outlined without any "consenting echo of the people" and that the French people still cling to the hope of British resistance against the Axis.

"An Italian correspondent reports from Paris that . . . Frenchmen's desire for revenge and hatred for Italy makes them long for a failure against England."

Sidelights of the War

'War Government' Set Up By De Gaulle for 'Free' French

By the Associated Press

London, Oct. 27.—Gen. Charles daGaulle, leader of the "Free" French forces, announced today the formation of a French Empire Defense Council to function as a "war government."

DeGaulle broadcast the announcement from Leopoldville, Belgian Congo. The British Ministry of Information issued the statement in London.

This was the first time the word "government" has been used in connection with deGaulle's "Free" French forces.

DeGaulle said he, as leader of the "Free" French forces, and the council, would rule according to the laws existing in France June 23, 1940, the day Marshal Petain capitulated to Germany.

Benes Sees Reversal Of War in Spring

London, Oct. 27 (AP).—A definite transformation in all military operations "by spring" was forecast tonight by Dr. Eduard Benes, president of the Czecho-Slovak government in exile, in a broadcast to his people on the eve of the twenty-second anniversary of Czecho-Slovak independence.

"The fall of Nazi Germany is really inevitable even if tomorrow or the day after tomorrow it should gain some victory," he asserted.

"The absolute failure of all German attempts to invade England, the almost incredible losses in all their aerial ventures, the impenetrable blockade of Germany, which will continue to be ever more intensified by continually growing British air superiority—all this will lead next spring to a definite transformation in all military operations," he declared.

German Air Trick Fails to Fool R. A. F.

London, Oct. 27 (AP).—Nazi air raiders tried out a new trick on the British today to avoid R. A. F. attacks and failed, the air ministry reported tonight.

Over South England, the ministry said, British Hurricane pilots saw German planes at 20,000 feet faking dive attacks on one another in an apparent effort to convince British planes in the distance that other British planes were already fighting them.

But the British said they weren't fooled.

Bombing of Dutch Civilians Laid to Nazis

By the Associated Press

The Netherlands Legation charged yesterday that German fliers were bombing nonmilitary targets throughout the Netherlands and ascribing "this wanton destruction" to the British in an effort to foster "civilian hatred of the British."

"Shortly after the British have bombed military targets, additional bombs have been dropped on residential districts some distance away by German planes," the legation said in a statement cabled from the Netherlands government in London.

Then, it added, "repeated broadcasts over the German-controlled Netherlands radio accuse the British of "bombing civilians."

Menzies Heads New Australian Cabinet

Sydney, Australia, Oct. 27 (AP).—A new Australian federal cabinet, with Robert G. Menzies retaining his portfolios as premier and minister of coordination of defense and acquiring a third as minister of information was announced today.

William M. Hughes, Australian prime minister in the last war, returned at the age of 76 to become a war leader again with the double post of attorney general and navy minister.

Others in the cabinet are:

Midnight—4 A.M. Curfew Ordered in Holland

Amsterdam (Via Berlin), Oct. 27 (AP).—Netherlands residents must stay indoors between midnight and 4 a. m., starting October 31, unless they have a special permit, the German-dominated government announced today. No reason was given for the curfew.

(The Swedish newspaper Dagens Nyheter of Stockholm reported last night that sabotage in Bergen, Norwegian Atlantic port, had caused the Nazis to clamp down, forbidding Bergen residents to be on the streets after darkness.)

Hindsight and Foresight

The Human Side

BY HOLGAR J. JOHNSON
President Institute of Life Insurance

EVERY once in a while I talk with someone who, because his life insurance policy is small, seems to think it is not important.

JOHNSON

The opposite is true. The very strength of this democratic institution lies in the millions of small policies owned by workers in field, factory and office.

Life insurance is a very human kind of business, not only because it is owned by people in every walk of life, but because of the intimate part it plays in their lives. And here, to give you a picture of these human values, I want to quote from an unusual letter written by a woman in the Middle West.

"There were times when we used to smile a little at my mother, for she jealously hoarded her life insurance policies, no matter how small their individual face value. She considered them the safest protection for people of moderate means.

"To her the insurance companies were most dependable—had they not stood firmly as a rock during the depression which followed the panic of 1929? We were a large family of girls, living on a slender income—part of a class of small policyholders which insurance companies have helped above all others to give protection to fit every purse and every need.

"Sometimes there arose a grave, vital necessity which demanded more money than my father could give from his wages. Then my mother would go to the only security and aid she personally possessed, her tin box holding our policies. After the transaction was completed satisfactorily, she would heave a sigh of relief and say: 'Well, they've kept their word!'

"For this reason none of us associated insurance merely with death. But my mother, now old, lived to see all her dimes and quarters serve as prope to sustain her and her children in their hour of sorrow."

After all, it's the human side that counts.

8 Nazi, 6 British Planes Lost in 51st Night Raid on Capital

By the Associated Press

London (Monday), Oct. 28.—Axis warplanes dropped tons of explosives and fire bombs in opening their fifty-first night attack on the capital last night but by midnight comparative calm had settled over the darkened capital.

Millions remained underground but a few buses and taxis whirred through otherwise deserted streets.

In one East Anglian town a raider swooped low to machinegun a train but there were no casualties. Houses and buses also were splattered with machinegun bullets.

In another East Anglian town a policeman was killed and several persons injured when a delayed action bomb exploded.

Raiders also were active in Northeast England where a hospital was struck.

London had six alarms from dawn to dusk and the plane toll was listed as eight German to six British.

Many flares were dropped in the Liverpool district and high explosive dropped in one area did some damage to residential property.

In a northwest England town, high explosive bombs demolished a row of houses, causing some casualties.

One German raider was reported shot down by a British fighter near a Yorkshire village. Four Germans, one injured, were captured.

The Air Ministry communique said southeast England also was bombed, but although admitting some damage to property it maintained that the number of casualties was small.

Reports from a northeast town told of a twin-engined German bomber flying so low it had to swerve to avoid hitting the steeple of a church.

London had only brief breathing spells between yesterday's raids and even during "all clear" periods RAF fighter squadrons were far in the east battling high-flying Nazi raiders before they reached London's outskirts.

An air ministry communique reported German raiding activity over a wide area Saturday night and said London and the Midlands were the principal targets.

It admitted some persons were killed but claimed casualties were not heavy.

Clement Attlee, Lord privy seal, drew cheers from a Pontypool audience when he said that although Whitehall had been bombed repeatedly, "we are not going to run away."

Kennedy Reports To Roosevelt Here

of campaign speeches on behalf of the President's third-term campaign. It was expected that today's statement would clear up some of the reports.

Arriving in New York at 3:15 p. m. yesterday aboard clipper plane, Kennedy was asked his opinion of the third term.

"You know what I said a year ago. Well, I still feel the same way," the United Press quoted him as saying. A year ago he said he believed Mr. Roosevelt should serve again.

Kennedy said here, and also in New York, that he might have something to say following his conference with the President. In New York, he was met at LaGuardia Field by Robert B. Stewart, representative of the British Empire Division of the State Department, and Mrs. Kennedy and four of their daughters.

The Atlantic Clipper brought 50 other passengers, the largest number ever to arrive in New York by overseas plane. Thirty-one boarded at Bermuda and 20, including Kennedy, came from Lisbon. Storms near the Azores caused a two-day delay, the Associated Press reported.

Airliner Dodges Nazi Air Raiders

New York, Oct. 27 (U.P.).—Ambassador Joseph Kennedy left London at the height of a German bombing attack, a fellow passenger arriving on the Atlantic Clipper revealed today.

William Hillman, European manager for Collier's Weekly, said the Imperial Airways plane on which he and the Kennedy party flew from London to Lisbon detoured more than 600 miles to avoid possible attack by enemy planes.

He said that he and Kennedy had watched airplane battles between British and German fliers from the roof of the United States Embassy in London.

German bombs have fallen 30 feet from the United States Embassy, Hillman said, adding that during a recent attack the British treasury building was bombed and the concussion broke all the windows at No. 10 Downing Street, official home of Prime Minister Winston Churchill, a few yards away.

On several occasions, Hillman said, he and Kennedy had seen Churchill working at night, sometimes wearing his mauve-colored bomb-shelter suit, which is fashioned much like overalls.

Thrills to Feature Navy Events Today

Plane Catapulting Will Highlight All-Day Observance

The Navy, its style cramped on Navy Day by the exigencies of the national emergency, will offer a belated but all-day program beginning at 8:30 o'clock this morning at Fairlawn Park in Anacostia for the Washington public.

Navy Day, which falls on the birthday of Theodore Roosevelt, a big-Navy advocate, was yesterday, but because it fell on Sunday observance was limited largely to radio addresses by Secretary Knox, Admiral Stark, Chief of Naval Operations, and Assistant Secretary of Navy Compton.

Today's program will open with the raising of colors at Fairlawn Park, under the direction of Capt. I. F. Gillikin, U. S. M. C. A band concert by musicians from the Navy School will follow. A highlight of the program, the catapulting of a battleship observation plane from a barge anchored in the stream, will occur at 9:20 a. m.

The events will move rapidly until 5:15 p. m. At 9:55 a. m. there will be special exhibition of deep sea diving from the diving boat Gridley; at 10 a. m., a formation tactical flying demonstration, fighter attack on light bombers; at 11 a. m., an exercise drill by seamen guard from the receiving ship, navy yard; at 11:30 a. m. a Coast Guard life saving crew from the Lewes Coast Guard Station will demonstrate methods used in saving the passengers and crew of a ship in distress.

The parade and review by a battalion of Marines from the Washington Marine Barracks will be held at 4 p. m. A massed band concert by the entire student body of the Navy School of Music, under direction of Bandmaster James M. Thurmond, will be given at 4:30 p. m.

The navy yard will remain closed to visitors, as it did yesterday on Navy Day, under the emergency regulations. The day was observed by the yard yesterday in the appearance of the Annapolis Glee Club and the arrival of the destroyer Morris. Because of extensive construction work at the Naval Observatory, visitors will not be immediately admitted there.

Members of Post 17 of the Irish War Veterans of America, led by National Commander George L. Cassidy, and the Knights of Columbus, yesterday placed a wreath on the statue of John Barry, American naval hero, in Franklin Park.

Factories in Germany Near Devastation From R. A. F. Raids, Air Ministry Reports

By the Associated Press

London, Oct. 27.—The British Air ministry tonight painted a picture of widespread damage in Berlin—in some instances approaching scenes of devastation in key armament factories—in a lengthy report of Royal Air Force operations over the Reich's capital since the beginning of September.

The ministry based part of its report on "reliable neutral sources." Among them, it cited an American oil chemist who recently returned home because the German firm for which he worked 14 years had had all its 12 scattered plants bombed out of existence by Royal Air Force marksmen.

Residents of the Charlottenberg area of Berlin, the British reported, recently went without gas for days because of hits on gas works there.

Bombs Heaviest Yet

Earlier the ministry and its news service said British bombers flying through thick clouds dumped the heaviest caliber bombs yet carried to Berlin upon the German capital last night and other planes attacked at least a dozen targets in Germany and German-dominated countries.

The air ministry merely said its bombers "attacked an aircraft works, electric power station and freight yard in Berlin."

Its news service, elaborating on the communique, told of a large fire started in the Brandenburg airplane engine factory in the Spandau suburb of Berlin; a heavy assault on the Moabit power station, one of Berlin's main sources of electric supply, and salvos of high explosives falling on the Pulitzstrasse and Lehrter railroad yards near Berlin's center.

Engine Works Ablaze

The news service quoted returning raiders as saying they could see vivid white flashes at the blazing airplane engine works as they roared homeward.

(The German high command admitted that "one enemy plane" bombed Berlin but said that "as in other large cities damage was caused only to dwellings.")

Hamburg's much-bombed docks and shipping areas had three separate attacks directed at them, the news service said.

Other targets the communique said were attacked were oil plants at Stettin, Leuna and Cologne; naval docks at Cuxhaven and Bremen; railway communications at Bremen, Dortmund and Brussels; port facilities at Flushing and Antwerp, and several German airdromes.

The night attacks were a continuation of the British "master plan" which envisions systematic assaults on the Nazi military machine instead of reprisals on German cities for German raids on London and British cities.

The ministry said planes of the British coastal command "successfully" attacked the electric power station at Brest, France, and sank a German supply ship in a torpedo attack off the Norwegian coast.

In its survey of reported Berlin damage since September, the ministry said:

"The vast Siemens works which provides German armed forces with a great deal of their electrical equipment has been severely damaged and, according to one report, hits were scored on the buildings which house the electrical transformer plant.

Worse than Nazis Admit

"A third of the Loewe factory which makes wireless sets and other electrical equipment has been completely destroyed and at another factory where chemical machinery is made fires broke out after a prolonged raid and destroyed half of the factory buildings."

The British claimed that damage in Berlin is much greater than the Nazis admit. They pointed to reports of efforts of Berlin police to keep curious persons from viewing the damage.

"In the words of one informant," the report said, "gangs are put to work almost as soon as the bombs have been dropped and they do their utmost to effect repairs before daylight. In many instances the few hours of darkness left do not give workmen enough time to do the job thoroughly and consequently streets and sometimes whole areas are roped off so as to prevent the truth from leaking out."

called for military training. Employers should prepare concise information concerning the type of work persons in this category perform, listing their individual skills and the time required to replace them, he said.

Lieut. Col. Charles R. Morris, U. S. A., (retired), who supervised the World War drawings, yesterday removed any doubt that the goldfish bowl used in the original World War draft is the one from which the order numbers of 17,000,000 selective service registrants will be drawn at noon tomorrow in the Interdepartmental Auditorium. President Roosevelt will draw the first pellet after a brief address.

Morris told newspapermen that recently published photographs, showing a much smaller bowl, were made at the second World War drawing.

Meanwhile, at the Auditorium, scores of workmen prepared for what will be the most extensive and costly news coverage ever attempted for a single eventfi even for exceeding those for any Presidential inauguration or national political convention.

Local draft boards reported large numbers of men seeking their numbers from posted lists at board headquarters, which were open yesterday afternoon. The offices will be open today between ' p. m. and 8 p. m.

Spencer Gordon, chairman of the Registrants Advisory Committee, announced that the entire board membership will meet at 4:30 p. m. today in Room A, mezzanine, of the Mayflower Hotel, for further organization. He urged all men of the board to be present, regardless of whether they have received the official notification of their appointment.

'Later Than You Think,' Says Knox

quick hitting gunfire," he said.

Secretary Knox declared this Nation "fortunate." But, he added, "our good fortune will vanish if we fail to be united in national spirit and ceaseless effort, ready to defend our democracy against foreign influence or invasion; against the alien dogs of war that snarl and fight in murdering packs beyond the horizons. We must not ignore this well-remembered warning: 'It is later than you think.' We cannot pause in our urgent emergency defense armament program."

The Nation has no time, he said, "for parlor speculation as to the probability of war. We must be prepared." The Nation," he said, "has never suffered defeat."

"The tragic events of the past year in Europe," Secretary Knox said, "have served to emphasize anew the vital advantage of sea defenses. . . . Every nation in Europe so situated geographically that it could not be defended across the surface of the water has suffered defeat by Germany.

"The only nation which has survived the German attack has been that nation which because of its insular position could and did build its first line of defense on the sea."

Fundamentally, the defense of England in the last three months, he asserted, "by its magnificient Royal Air Force was only made possible because the British fleet was there to halt the Germans at the water's edge. If there could have been an opportunity for land assault upon Britain, with the overwhelming predominance in land forces which Germany possesses, England could not have long fought off the fate of every other nation in Europe."

Admiral Stark reminded that since last Navy Day 25 new ships have joined the fleet; 46 more have been reconditioned and are in service, exclusive of the 50 old destroyers being transferred to the British.

"We are working in the closest accord with our brother service, the Army. We pool our orders in the interest of economy and interchangeability. Our staffs plan together for the common defense," he asserted.

It is evident, he said, "that the United States Navy might be confronted with problems at sea beyond the scope of our previous conceptions; and that we might, quite possibly, have to face those problems alone. I violate no confidence when I tell you we must consider the possibility of simultaneous attacks in either or both oceans."

Admiral Stark pointed out that in the service there are now more than 170,000 sailors, an increase of approximately 61,000 since last Navy Day, and in the Marine Corps 37,000 men, an increase of 17,000.

Compton said that destroyers joined the fleet during the past year at the rate of one every three weeks. In 1933, he said, the Navy was "a decade behind the parade," but he observed that since then 137 combatant ships of nearly a half million tons had been added to the sea forces.

Mates' Funeral Set for Tomorrow; Was U. S. Worker

Funeral services for Gaoquin T. Mates, 41, of the Interior Department's Indian Affairs Office, who died October 20 in Hot Springs, Ark., will be at 8 a. m., tomorrow at Chambers' Georgetown funeral home.

Mass will be celebrated at 8:30 a. m. at St. Stephens Church and burial will follow in Arlington National Cemetery.

Mates, a native of Leyte in the Philippine Islands, went to Hot Springs early in the summer for treatment at the Army and Navy General Hospital there. He served many years as a radio operator in the Navy, then came to Washington in 1931 to attend George Washington University. He netered the Indian Affairs office after completing his university course.

Surviving are an aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Cristobal Mates, of Annapolis.

All-Day Raids Harry Britain; Big Convoy Bombed, Nazis Say

By the Associated Press

Berlin, Oct. 27.—Continuous all-day attacks against Britain by the Luftwaffe today followed up destructive assaults last night against Birmingnam, Liverpool, Coventry and London, German military sources said.

D. N. B., official news agency, said German bombers were busy over England from early morning.

A German plane attacked and bombed a British convoy of 28 merchant vessels, 6 destroyers and 8 patrol boats northwest of Ireland today, informed sources said tonight. They added two ships of 8,000 tons each were struck by two bombs.

In airfights today, these quarters said, eight British fighter planes were shot down and five German planes were lost.

Informed sources said later that a power plant and a British airforce supply center in southeastern England were "hard hit" by today's German attacks.

Industrial plants in Birmingham and Coventry and the harbor of Liverpool were heavily bombed Saturday night, the German high command said.

The attack on Birmingham, the communique observed, followed a daylight raid during which "especially heavy explosions" could be seen in a chemical plant there.

The communique gave the first official version of the attack on the 42,348-ton British liner Empress of Britain, reported Saturday to have been left sinking off Ireland after bombing by German planes.

The high command communique said that the ship "received such a serious bomb hit 100 kilometers (about 62.5 miles) west of Ireland that it burst into flames" and "the crew took to boats."

German scouts reported the liner still on fire late today.

Saturday's attacks on Britain, the communique said, were carried out by light and heavy "destroyer plane units . . . in spite of strong defense from fighter planes and antiaircraft."

At night, while London, Birmingham, Coventry and the Liverpool harbor were under assault, the communique said, "weaker units of our destroyer planes bombed British airports in north Scotland in daringly executed dives, and set hangars and facilities afire."

"Widening gaps," which are "synonymous with final collapse" are beginning to show in Britain's defenses, Propaganda Minister Goebbels declared in a party gathering address at Vienna which was made public today.

The address was delivered yesterday.

"It is completely unthinkable that England can still fight on at all when it is already openly admitted on the other side that here and there breaking points are beginning to show," the propaganda chief said.

He continued that Germans should not be disappointed that the final success of the war has not yet been achieved, since Britain's only choice is to capitulate or perish.

Fuehrer Hitler, Goebbels said, "has hitherto always followed the principle of long preparations and short wars."

U. S. Plans to Move Defense Workers

Hillman Predicts Revitalization Of 'Ghost Towns'

Revitalization of "ghost towns" in order to utilize their latent labor and plant equipment in the defense program was put under way last night along with a new system for interstate movement of workers needed in defense industries.

Technological advances, it was pointed out by Sidney Hillman, of the Defense Commission, "have caused the plants in some single industry to close down, leaving the population without useful enterprise. Unemployment in 'ghost towns' has become acute during the past few years. In most cases buildings, machines and power plants are in excellent condition. Skilled workers are available."

To carry out the revitalizing work with the aid of Morris Llewellyn Cook, Hillman has ordered field representatives to Carbondale, Ill.; Newcastle, Pa.; Cambridge, Ohio, and Mansfield, Ohio.

Mobile Army

The plan to build a mobile army of defense workers that may be sped to any part of the country where labor shortages threaten the flow of war materials will be handled by the United States Employment Service of the Social Security Board.

Employers Canvassed

The employment service has completed a direct canvass of almost 30,000 employers in defense and related industries covering each employer's labor supply at the present time and expected requirements for the next 60 days.

Future shortages and surpluses in 300 essential defense occupations will be levelled off as far as possible through a network of 13 regional offices in constant touch with Washington headquarters.

A manufacturer confronted with a sudden demand for skilled workmen need only to get in touch with his State employment office. If unable to fill the bill, the request will be transmitted to the nearest regional office and thence to Washington.

D. C. Regional Headquarters

There, national lists of available workers will be checked against the manufacturer's requirements, and arrangements completed to fill the want with a minimum loss of time.

In appealing for cooperation, the employment service pointed out that thereby useless migrations of workers to other parts of the country on false rumors of vacancies can be largely eliminated.

Washington will have the headquarters for the District of Columbia, Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia and North Carolina.

C. I. O. Assails Priority

In another development, President Roosevelt's order for priority for national defense industries and the tax-increase bill passed by Congress recently, were sharply criticized by the Economic Outlook, publication of the C. I. O.

The publication said the priority order "has in it the seeds of concrete dangers to labor's welfare."

This policy is not necessary in a country as rich as the United States or with 9,797,000 persons unemployed, the Outlook said, continuing:

"Such a system of priorities, as was pointed out in the July Outlook, usually results in a rise in the cost of living.

"While the total amount of consumer goods available remains steady or decreases, the amount of wage payments rises substantially in such a period.

Profits Tax Criticized

"A larger amount of money becomes available to buy a smaller amount of goods. Result: Rapid cost of living rises and falling real wages."

The new tax law "cannot in any way be called an excess profits tax bill," said the C. I. O. organ. The effective rate of tax on 13 major corporations will be only slightly over 8 per cent of normal profits, rather than the announced 25 to 30 per cent, the publication said, adding:

"It is interesting that it happens that the tax as drawn, under pressure from the National Defense Advisory Commission, rests very lightly upon such major corporations as the United States Steel Co. and General Motors."

Six corporations, General Motors, duPont, American Tobacco, United States Steel, United States Rubber and Anaconda Copper, will probably pay nothing, the publication said.

Mexico Lifts JapanEmbargo For Stability

By the Associated Press

Mexico City, Oct. 27.—Highly placed government and diplomatic officials reported tonight that President Cardenas' administration had decided to lift the short-lived unofficial embargo on exports destined for Japan because the ban threatened to upset the nation's economy at this time.

Suspension of the embargo on war materials and foodstuffs which secret agents from the federal attorney general's office enforced last week was scheduled to take effect tomorrow.

The principal fear of the sources disclosing this decision was that it would be misunderstood in the United States.

No Change in Friendship

Mexico originally placed restrictions on shipments to Japan as a gesture of solidarity with the United States because of Japanese-American tension in the Pacific, and one government spokesman emphasized:

"The end of these restrictions does not imply any change in Mexico's foreign policy of friendship and collaboration with the United States.

"Should the international situation make it necessary, I am confident that Mexico would cooperate with the United States and the other American republics by officially proclaiming such an embargo against Japan."

Trade Liberty Restored

Since last week Mexican agents were reported to have impounded thousands of tons of such items as oil, flour, molybdenum, scrap iron, mercury, antimony and fibers for shipment to Japan in Mexican ports.

One diplomatic source said "the present embargo is being lifted because Mexico had good intentions, but did not stop to think what they would cost."

Commitments Heavy

He said he believed conversations between the government and the United States for an embargo on essential war materials and foodstuffs to Japan would be undertaken after President-elect Manuel Avila Camacho enters office December 1.

Mexican producers and exporters were caught with heavy commitments on their hands when the secret restrictions were clamped on last week. Hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of goods were involved.

The ban caused the bottom to fall out of exported commodities. Mercury dropped from $200 and more for a 76-pound flask to $140. Protests poured into the ministry of national economy and foreign office.

Trade With Axis Cut Off

Producers and exporters charged the ban was without legal foundation after a survey of the situation it was decided to lift the embargo.

Britain's blockade of Italy and Germany virtually has ended Mexico's trade with those countries, and earlier this year a Mexican trade delegation had visited Japan to study means of increasing trade.

Crash Claims Third Victim

they noticed that one of his headlights was smashed. At the Hyattsville station he was charged with manslaughter, leaving the scene of an accident, reckless driving, and driving without a permit.

Mrs. Duffy, according to police, said she lost control of her car and smashed into a dirt bank, on Lee Highway about five miles west of Fairfax, Va.

Injured in the crash were a son, Hugh E. Duffy, 29, of Wilmington, Del., and his wife, Mrs. Agnes Duffy, 29; Cecilia Duffy, 14, a daughter of the dead woman, and Mrs. Katherine Murphy, 60, of New Castle. The injured were taken to the Alexandria Hospital by the McLean and Fairfax rescue squads.

Ross McDermott, 32, of Alexandria, suffered serious injuries last night when, according to police, he was thrown 50 feet when struck by an auto driven by Henry C. Williams, 24, of Falls Church. McDermott and E. K. Spiegelman, also of Alexandria, had stepped out of their auto on Route 50 in Arlington County. Spiegelman escaped with minor injuries. The injured men were taken to Georgetown University Hospital.

Auto Shears Pole

Three Washingtonians were hurt when their auto sheared off a street light pole in Frederick, Md. According to police, Miss E. Reeve Kalbfus, 1319 Thirtieth street northwest, took her hands off the steering wheel long enough to light a cigarette. She was taken to the Frederick City Hospital with leg injuries. Two companions, Miss Doris Dunnington, of Chevy Chase, and Miss May Measell, 3205 Oliver street northwest, were treated and discharged. The car was wrecked.

Stolen Car Crashes

In the District, a colored man driving a stolen car crashed into an automobile at Fifteenth and H Streets Northeast after a wild ride in downtown Washington in an attempt to elude police. The accident resulted in injuries to Mrs. Jennie Fitzgerald, of 1326 Taylor Street Northeast, occupant of the car which was struck.

Officers S. F. Cox and A. E. Trammelle, in a scout car from No. 9 Precinct, sighted the stolen car at Second and G Streets Northeast and pursued it for several miles. The driver was held for investigation.

In another Fairfax County accident, Alexander Z. Green, 29, of Vienna, was badly cut when he lost control of his car. Police arrested him on a charge of driving under the influence of liquor.

The first sleeping railway car in the world was operated in 1836 on the Cumberland Valley Railroad.

Nazis Blamed For Balkan Food Shortage

By the Associated Press

Budapest, Oct. 27.—A "whispering campaign" blaming Germany for food shortages in southeastern Europe drew the sharp fire of Hungarian government newspapers today.

The newspaper attacks followed a series of economic reports showing steep increases in living costs in this neutral sector since the war began.

Foreign office publications charged "mysterious enemy propagandists" with conducting a campaign of letters and pamphlets blaming heavy exports to Germany for rationing measures and for a shortage of food and clothing in territory normally rich in agricultural products.

The newspapers said the alleged propaganda was designed to weaken relations between Germany and southeastern Europe.

Trade experts questioned in an Associated Press survey attributed economic difficulties in this area to the war blockade, a late spring, flood-damaged crops and repeated army mobilizations which took labor from the fields.

Rumania has experienced the most drastic changes in living standards. She lost large stocks of wheat, sugar and vegetable oils when Russia took over Bessarabia and northern Bucovina.

Premier Antonescu is trying to import onions from Turkey. This food, a staple in the diet of the average Rumanian, has increased 700 per cent in price.

Food shortages have forced every southeastern European nation to make stringent price regulations.

Thousands of profiteers and hoarders have been fined, imprisoned or assigned to forced labor.

Despite efforts to control prices, Yugoslavia has had a 79 per cent increase in living costs over August, 1939, semiofficial sources disclosed.

Approximately the same increase was estimated in Rumania; Bulgarian authorities said prices had jumped 65 per cent in their country; Greek sources reported a 40 per cent increase; Hungary's increase was at least 30 per cent.

Turkey, where prewar prices already were among the world's highest, had a 15 to 20 per cent rise.

These averages for a family's entire living expenses do not reveal the sharp increase in basic foodstuffs because other items, such as rent, heat and light, have been held virtually stationary by government control.

To avoid rationing, some governments relaxed profiteering regulations. This permitted dealers to increase prices of meat, butter and flour, and thus reduce consumption.

Premier Teleki of Hungary defended the government's refusal to grant more than a 7 per cent wage increase in the face of much higher living costs by declaring that "everyone must make sacrifices."

Observers in southeast Europe predict heavy relief demands this winter.

Catholic Group Asks Full Aid to Britain

Clergy and Laity Attack Hitlerism As 'Denial of God'

Sixty prominent Catholics, clergymen, educators, businessmen, labor leaders and Government officials, yesterday attacked Hitlerism as a "denial of God" and urged "all possible help to Great Britain."

Emphasizing their belief that the "danger is imminent" and expressing the fear that the United States may "be left to face the dictators of Europe and Asia alone," the group declared in a signed statement mailed from a New York address:

"As American citizens and as Catholics, we declare that we give our full support to the Government of the United States for every prudent and effective effort it may make to overcome this evil thing."

8 From Here Sign

The Most Rev. Robert E. Lucey, bishop of Amarillo, Tex., and the Most Rev. Edwin V. O'Hara, S. T. D., bishop of Kansas City, Mo., headed the list of signers which included eight Washingtonians:

The Rev. Maurice S. Sheehy, head of the religious education department of Catholic University; the Rev. Walter J. Farrell, O. P.; the Rev. Edwin Ryan, of Catholic University's Ibero-American Institute; John J. Burns, first general counsel to the Securities and Exchange Commission; Matthew Woll, vice president of the American Federation of Labor; Edward J. Brown, president of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers; Thomas E. Burke, secretary-treasurer of the International Plumbers Union, and William Franklin Sands, professor at Georgetown University's Foreign Service School.

Among the others on the list were Mrs. Nicholas Murray Butler, wife of the president of Columbia University; James Byrne, Chancellor of New York University; Col. William J. Donovan, of the Rainbow Division, former assistant attorney general; Eddie Dowling, stage star; Judge Kenneth O'Brien, of the New York State Supreme Court, and Dr. George N. Shuster, president of Hunter College.

Urge Aid to Britain

The statement urged that "none of the conflicts that have divided western civilization should be permitted to obscure this transcendent issue," and added:

"Whatever some of us may feel concerning the actions of England in the past, her defeat in the present war will mean the triumph of those who would usurp the things of God. We must give all possible help to Great Britain in order that she may carry on the war to victory."

The statement declared that "Hitlerism, like communism, seeks to subvert Christianity by setting up a warped vision of racial superiority and of the omnipotent state in the place of God."

Episcopal Leaders Pledge 'No Retreat'

Capital Diocese Churches Observe Missionary Sunday

Assurance that Christianity will sound no retreat call in the face of war, indifference and other opposition came yesterday from Episcopal leaders as the Washington Diocese celebrated denomination-wide "Missionary Sunday."

Principal services were centered at the Washington Cathedral and Epiphany, St. Thomas' and St. Margaret's Episcopal Churches, the Right Rev. Noel Baring Hudson, personal representative of the Archbishop of Canterbury to the recent Episcopal General Convention, speaking at the first two named places.

Preaching last night at Epiphany and during the morning at St. Thomas', the Rev. James Thayer Addison, vice president of the National Council of the Episcopal Church, in charge of foreign missions, declared that the Christian Church will not be intimidated, and "is not going to play the dictator's game."

Cites Need for Initialive

"Even in the midst of a gathering darkness, we are going to keep every light burning," the Rev. Mr. Addison declared, quoting from a keynote message heard at the recent convention in Kansas City. We need, he said, a bold initiative and advance.

He was presented by Dr. Ze Barney Phillips, Epiphany rector and Senate chaplain, and who presided over the House of Deputies at the convention.

Preaching from the Canterbury pulpit, presented to Washington Cathedral by a former Archbishop of Canterbury and associate churchmen, Bishop Hudson, secretary of the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel in London and former Bishop of Labuan and Sarawak, in Borneo, brought expression of grateful appreciation from the archbishop for the generosity of the Protestant Episcopal Church in America, which has allocated $300,000 for continuance of English missionary work that the war would otherwise curtail.

Missionary Budget Act

He emphasized that the missionary work of the English Church, conducted through the society, had reduced its budget more than $700,000, affecting 150 missionaries, and would probably have to cut $1,000,000 more in the coming year or two.

Earlier in his address, Bishop Hudson pointed out that colonization by the English, bringing freedom, free institutions and law and order, always had been followed by the message of Christianity.

Touching only briefly upon the war, the prelate said life in England is going on as normally as can be expected, under the circumstances. He was introduced by the Right Rev. James E. Greeman, Bishop of Washington.

Shortly before the choral and clerical procession into the sanctuary began, 200 uniformed District Girl Scouts walked into the cathedral and took places in the great choir.

Norwegian Press Reported Forced Under Nazi Rule

Copyright by New York Times

Stockholm.—Slow but certain death for the free Norwegian press is reported by Swedish correspondents from Oslo, with the Nazi Norwegian Party ruthlessly destroying all opposition and taking in hands all means of propagansda and information.

Up to now the provincial Norwegian press has remained completely noncommittal regarding political changes, and only the Oslo newspapers would occasionally comment on internal and external politics. The Oslo press gets its directions daily from conferences at the ministry of propaganda. Maj. Vidkun Quisling's organ, "Fritt Folk," gradually is becoming the official governmental organ and receives from the ministry of propaganda especially favorable treatment in the way of special features, interviews, etc.

Against the provincial press, however, the Nazi Norwegian Party intends to take drastic measures. Many small papers will be closed on the ground of "financial unhealthiness" other "coordinated," and those refusing to accept the Nazi directions will simply be wiped out. In Trondheim, for instance, the newspaper "Dagposten" was transformed into Quisling's mouthpiece, while the fate of others, say the Swedish correspondents, is "problematic."

Fleming Explains Wage Law Exemptions

Col. Philip B. Fleming, wage-hour administrator, told a union of architects and engineers today that "in the vast majority of instances" draftsmen would not be regarded as professional workers who are exempt from the Wage-Hour Law.

He expressed a similar view about newspaper reporters assigned to regular beats and about copy desk editors.

Fleming's opinions were contained in a letter to B. O. Lum, business representative of the Seattle Association of Technical Engineers and Architects. Lum had asked for clarification of recently adopted rules defining exempted "administrative" and "professional" employes.

The rules require that an exempted employe in this classification must receive at least $200 a month, and must meet certain other requirements. Employes not exempted must be paid time and one-half for work in excess of 40 hours weekly.

As to whether draftsmen paid over $200 a month were exempt, Fleming said:

"The information at our disposal indicates that draftsmen are normally paid on an hourly basis and in general are employed in groups and perform routine work. Thus, in the vast majority of instances, a draftsman will still retain the benefits of the act even if they are paid $200 a month."

He said there were exceptions such as the draftsman whose work was incident to duties connected with management policies or general business operations.

In discussing exempted professional workers, Fleming said:

"On a newspaper, for example, typically the reporters assigned to regular beats and the copy desk men will not qualify for exemption even if they are paid $200 a month."

Roosevelt-Willkie Debate Wins Applause, Giggles in Ladies' Night at Forum

Rep. Norton, Miss Martin Lead Rivals

Moderator Has Hectic Time Trying to Keep Order on Radio Show

Theodore Granik brought along an extra shirt to his American Forum of the Air broadcast last night, and it was well that he did.

It was Ladies Night.

The six lady debaters did not agree on the Roosevelt vs. Willkie issue. The Willard Hotel audience of nearly 1,000 first-hand listeners, mostly ladies, did not agree, either.

The impeccable Granik had been moderator of the coast-to-coast debates for 12 years, but this was the first time he had been confronted with the job of moderating a household of ladies.

Changes His Shirt

Breathless and bedraggled after 45 minutes of trying to keep the ladies calm, he straggled from the platform and changed his shirt.

It was rather warm, he explained.

Representative Mary T. Norton (Democrat), of New Jersey, led the debaters for Roosevelt, and Miss Marion E. Martin, vice president of the Republican National Committee, headed up the Willkie opposition.

ROOSEVELT SCHEDULE

Today—Kearney, N. J.; Bayonne, N. J.; ground-breaking for vehicular tunnel, Brooklyn; speech at Madison Square Garden.

Tomorrow—Speech here at the selective service lottery.

Wednesday, Oct. 30—Speech originally set for Constitution Hall here now slated for Boston.

Friday, Nov. 1—Speech at Academy of Music, Brooklyn.

Saturday, Nov. 2—Address at Cleveland. Visits to Rochester and Buffalo.

Monday, Nov. 4—Radio address from Hyde Park.

Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins was to have appeared, but she was stranded in New York. She missed the bus.

Mrs. Norton ended a prepared statement in praise of the President by declaring:

"He just couldn't be a dictator; his very personality and nature prevent that."

The Audience Giggles

This brought giggles from the audience, the first sign of disagreement among the listeners.

Then there were more giggles when Miss Martin summed up her arguments for Willkie with the opinion that "we need Wendell Willkie—practical, efficient, honest and just."

There was applause for both, applause which Moderator Granik vainly attempted to subdue. His announcer pleaded with the audience at intermission for "no further demonstrations, please!"

But the audience disagreed even more loudly during the extemporaneous debate that followed, and the "demonstrations" steadily built up to a climax.

Hisses greeted Mrs. Eunice Hunton Carter, assistant district attorney of New York and leader of Negro groups in that city, when she asked how an election could be free "when the Administration uses the relief rolls and the Works Project Administration."

WILLKIE SCHEDULE

Today—Bloomington, Champaign and Danville, Ill.; Indianapolis and Columbus, Ind., and Louisville, Ky.

Tomorrow—Jackson, Ohio, and Huntington and Charleston, W. Va.

Wednesday, October 30—Clarksburg, W. Va.; Cumberland, Md.; Martinsburg, W. Va., and Baltimore.

Saturday, November 2—Madison Square Garden, New York.

Monday, November 4 — Closing broadcast.

"That is an absolute untruth," retorted Mrs. Norton, to applause. "The Administration has done nothing of the kind and you know it."

The audience also cheered and jeered as Mrs. Marguerite Church, writer and lecturer and wife of Representative Church (Republican), of Illinois, locked with her Democratic foes on the question of free political conventions.

Charge "Fixing"

Each side charged that the other's convention had been "fixed." Mrs. Dorothy McAllister and Mrs. James Rowe, of the Democratic National Committee's women's division, supported Representative Norton.

"May I say," she answered, "that I wish there were many more leaders the same as Frank Hague."

The house was in an uproar.

"I know Frank Hague much better than you do," she said, but was barely heard over the din. "I'm ready to answer any questions about him."

But time was up, and the program ended. As the audience rushed up to continue the argument for half an hour longer, Moderator Granik changed his shirt.

Joe Louis to Make 8 Willkie Speeches

New York, Oct. 27 (INS).—Heavyweight Champion Joe Louis today declared his intention of being "in Wendell Willkie's corner" orally as well as physically.

The seldom-spoken Brown Bomber plans to make eight speeches in behalf of the Republican nominee in Philadelphia, Detroit, St. Louis, New York, Newark, Cleveland, Chicago and Baltimore.

Sumner Welles to Talk On 'Good Neighbors'

Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles will discuss "The Good Neighbor Policy" at the Shoreham Hotel tomorrow in the first of a series of lectures on Latin American affairs.

Dr. Leo S. Rowe, director general of the Pan American Union, will preside at the lecture, scheduled for 11 a. m. Diplomats from 20 Latin American republics and their wives will be guests of honor.

New York, Oct. 27 (AP).—John Cudahy, Ambassador to Belgium, charged Republicans today with waging a "fear campaign" in an attempt to elect Wendell L. Willkie President.

CUDAHY

In an address to more than 250 members of the Women's National Democratic Club, Cudahy said he was convinced from his experiences abroad, where he witnessed the invasion of Belgium, Holland and France, that "this is no time for a change of Administrations."

"I've seen fear at very close range and mass panic is a very terrible thing," Cudahy said. "This feeling of fear that has been injected into the campaign gives out that our party and our President will bring the country into war if he is re-elected.

"All through this Administration the President and Secretary of State Cordell Hull have been working day and night studying the record to keep peace. And yet we see this strange spectacle of a Republican candidate subscribing to all our policies and yet saying that he will preserve peace and we (the Democrats) will lead the country into war."

Secretary of Labor Perkins, who also addressed the club, described as "intemperate, inaccurate, ridiculous and irresponsible" any statements that the President's reelection would result in the destruction of democracy.

Journalist Urges Willkie Election

The Republican National Committee last night made public a letter written by Charles Edward Russell, whom it described as "for 40 years one of the great crusading journalists and liberals of America," urging Wendell Willkie's election as President.

RUSSELL

Russell's letter asserted that the only issue of real importance in the election was "shall the republican form of government in the United States be continued or shall it be discarded in favor of a dictatorship?" Reelection of Mr. Roosevelt, he charged, would "end the American Republic."

He charged that "no other President has misused patronage as Mr. Roosevelt has misused it . . . no other President has gone so far as to 'purge' from the public service elected legislators that dared to oppose his ambition . . . no other President has even remotely resembled Mr. Roosevelt in the ways and deeds of an autocrat."

"When you stop to consider how closely we are duplicating the story of the downfall of the republic of ancient Rome, you must be seized with the utmost disquietude. The same diligently fostered notion of the Indispensable Man, the same hue and cry of some national emergency, the same pretense of care for the less fortunate, the same huge bribery with bread and money, the same colossal and menacing machine, the same pleas and excuses for the concentration of power. Is it not appalling?"

New Deal Pension Plan Assailed

Long Beach, Calif., Oct. 27 (AP).—Ralph O. Brewster, Republican, U. S. Senator-elect from Maine, declared today the New Deal had sought to break the Townsend old-age pension movement "by a program of old-age assistance that is neither honest nor adequate."

BREWSTER

Brewster addressed followers of Dr. Francis E. Townsend at their sixth anniversary celebration in Bixy Park.

"Believers in America are uniting to settle for all time the issue of a third term, and to put in power an administration that is dedicated to sound national finance and to a sound and adequate system of old-age assistance," he said.

Dr. Townsend told the group that "if you want a man like McNary to preside over the Senate when our fight comes up, you have to elect Willkie."

He said his proposed 2 per cent tax on all incomes above $250 a month would provide $50 a month for 10,000,000 senior citizens.

100 Jewish Leaders Out for Willkie

New York, N. Y., Oct. 27.—Over 100 Jewish leaders of philanthropic, religious and communal organizations indorse Wendell Willkie for President, according to a survey just completed by Frederick F. Greenman, vice chairman of the Eastern division of the Republican National Committee.

DR. WEISS

From letters to 200 such leaders he said replies gave the following totals:

Four persons said they would vote for Roosevelt—one with a warm indorsement, one with an apology, he being a Southern Democrat who did not like the third term, and the two others without comment.

Sixty responded with affirmative indorsements of Willkie and at least 40 additional persons stated that while they were voting for Willkie, they did not, for business, professional or other reasons, desire to have this fact publicized.

Capitalism's Doom Seen by Thomas

Philadelphia, Oct. 27 (AP).—Norman Thomas, Socialist candidate for President, asserted here tonight that "nothing can hinder the death of private capitalism, even in America."

THOMAS

Thomas, in a prepared campaign address, said private capitalism was doomed whether or not this country became engaged in war.

"The only question," he said, "on which we have some power of effective choice is this: Shall the heir or successor of the old order be the totalitarian state, tied to state capitalism, or shall it be the cooperative commonwealth, with industrial or functional, as well as political democracy?"

Thomas outlined the Socialist economic program for America, describing it as "a program for total democracy." This, he declared, "must be achieved unless we are to continue our drift toward fascism. Its achievement depends upon our keeping out of war and turning from the paths of imperialism."

Wallace Starts Iowa Tour Today

By the United Press

Aboard Wallace Special En Route to Atlanta, Iowa, Oct. 27.—Henry Wallace, Democratic Vice Presidential candidate, returned to the Middle West tonight to start the final week of his campaign in his home State of Iowa.

Starting tomorrow at Atlantic, he will make a two-day automobile tour of Iowa, with a side trip to Omaha, Nebr., tomorrow night for a major radio address in a renewed bid for Midwestern farm support.

Wallace canceled a tentatively scheduled tour of New England this week to return to the section which appeared to be a chief battleground of the campaign—Iowa, Nebraska, Michigan, Ohio and Pennsylvania.

His itinerary Monday will include morning stops at Atlantic, Audubon, Carroll, Sac City and Holstein. Afternoon addresses are scheduled for Ida Grove, Denison, Harlan, Oakland and Council Buffs.

Returning to Iowa from the speech in Omaha, he will make addresses Tuesday at Sioux City, Lemars, Rock Rapids, Sibley, Sheldon, Spencer, Emmetsburg, Algona, Ft. Dodge and Ames.

He will break his Midwestern tour to return to New York for an address Thursday night in Madison Square Garden. He will tour Ohio Friday, Pennsylvania Saturday and conclude his campaign Saturday night in Wilmington, Del.

A. F. L. Organizer Quoted for Willkie

The Republican National Committee last night made public a statement by James F. Barrett, American Federation of Labor organizer in the South, which the committee said answered "the smear attacks on the labor record of Wendell Willkie."

In connection with Willkie's former presidency of Commonwealth & Southern, of which the Georgia Power Co. is a subsidiary, Barrett's statement said:

"Labor relations existing between the Georgia Power Co. and the American Federation of Labor affiliates employed by that concern are frequently and effectively used by organizers and union officials and spokesmen throughout the South as conclusive evidence that labor and industry can cooperate, through collective bargaining, to the best interests of all concerned.

"All branches of labor employed by the Georgia Power Co. are working under union agreements with the compnay ,and there is no finer example of cordial and cooperative relationship existing anywhere than that between the Georgia Power Co. and the union membership employed by the company."

Willkie Offers Housing Program

lyzed" by competition and even quarrels between 13 different "uncorrelated" agencies, by "lack of frankness" on the part of the New Deal, and by failure to admit the extent of Federal slum clearance subsidies.

Duplication of effort and poor administration, he declared, have led to excessive costs working to the detriment alike of the home owner, the tenant and the general taxpayer. The New Deal, he charged, has failed to attack high housing costs, "politically exploited bulding codes," or excessive real estate taxes, and these have held back recovery.

Willkie outlined the following points as his own housing platform:

Government investment in slum clearance can be as profitable economically and socially as outlays for good roads, but Federal aids should be made to supplement and stimulate private enterprise and initiative rather than encroach upon it.

Creation of a consolidated Federal housing agency, with separate divisions for different functions, by correlating work of the existing 13 agencies (FWA, USHA, FHA, FSA, HOLC, HOLB, CHC, DHC, NRBB, PBA, RFC mortgages, PWA and the building departments of the Army and Navy Procurement Divisions.

Continuance under an improved administration of agencies (like FHA and HOLC) financing private housing and agencies (like USHA and FSA) providing loans and subsidies for public housing. He stipulated that the Federal subsidy for slum clearance be "frankly recognized."

Undertaking of far-reaching neighborhood planning, "such as the New Deal has never undertaken" and cooperation with local authorities and private enterprise "in the rebuilding of our cities."

Clear definition of the division of responsibilities between Federal, State and local governments, with homes in no case either owned or operated from Washington or State capitals.

Recognition that while government assistance is important, the housing program in the main can be solved only by private enterprise.

Willkie said he was moved by the dilapidated appearance of millions of homes, and the run down condition of many city areas as he criss-crosses the country and declared that "for economic and social reasons" that must be remedied.

Slipping quietly out of New York City after midnight last night 36 hours in advance of the President's 10-stop invasion of that area, Willkie's Sunday route remained undisclosed until after the train was in motion back through Ohio, scene of his last week's vigorous stumping, he rode unheralded and almost unnoticed save at some wayside stations where the news had "leaked."

But tomorrow he will come out of "day of rest" hiding to campaign furiously through three States, starting at Bloomington, Illinois, in the morning, hitting Indianapolis, in the late afternoon, and Louisville, at night.

The Gallup Poll already lists Illinois and Indiana in his column, and Willkie hopes to keep his trend rising. In Louisville, Willkie will be slugging in territory Gallup gives to Roosevelt by 57 per cent. He goes to Kentucky on Republican advice that the swing there is his way, and one to three House seat "pick-ups" are possible as well.

As Willkie swings into the finish stretch, a rough survey shows he has traversed about 18,000 miles by train, 8,000 by plane, 1,000 by auto in his unprecedented campaign. He has seen an estimated 10,000,000 people and spoken directly to more than 1,000,000 not counting radio listeners.

His voice, strained and hoarse on Friday, nonetheless held up through four swift Saturday night speeches in New York. Dr. Barnard promises today's "time out" will put it in shape for the rest of the campaign.

"Laughable," Says McDonald

Stewart McDonald, Federal Housing Administrator, said tonight that "Candidate Willkie's promise to stimulate slum clearance is laughable in the light of the consistent and almost solid Republican voting record in Congress against all efforts by the Government to improve housing conditions."

"When the Wagner-Steagall bill was passed by Congress in 1937 setting up the United States Housing Authority," McDonald said in a statement, "most of the Republicans in both the House and Senate voted against it. In the House the Republican vote was two to one against it."

C. I. O. Vice President Calls Lewis 'Tragic Lost Leader'

Emil Rieve Attacks Indorsement Of Willkie as Return to 'Outmoded Philosophy of Republican Party'

By the Associated Press

Boston, Oct. 27.—Emil Rieve, vice president of the C. I. O., in a radio reply today to the indorsement of Wendell L. Willkie by John L. Lewis, C. I. O. president, characterized Lewis as "a tragic lost leader" returning to "the outmoded philosophy of the Republican Party."

Rieve, who also is president of the Textile Workers Union of America, said the textile workers' indorsement of Mr. Roosevelt was arrived at through democratic procedure and "still stands."

"Even as an unauthorized individual, Mr. Lewis was not expressing the known preference of the majority of C. I. O. members," Rieve asserted. "He was, instead, making the last desperate stand of a leader whose followers, on this issue at least, have deserted him."

"Our efforts shall be redoubled in behalf of the President and the New Deal," he declared.

Rieve said Lewis' "indictment of President Roosevelt was empty of real facts, charges or conviction. His indorsement of Willkie was hollow and strained."

U. A. W. Chiefs to Meet Roosevelt

Detroit, Oct. 27 (AP).—Three officials of the United Automobile Workers Union (C. I. O.) will meet President Roosevelt in New York tomorrow to urge him to carry his campaign for reelection into Michigan, the union said tonight.

Arrangements for a luncheon conference at 1 p. m. Monday were made when President R. J. Thomas, of the U. A. W.-C. I. O., called Stephen T. Early, Presidential secretary, in Washington, after a meeting here at which representatives of 300,000 U. A. W.-C. I. O. members repudiated John L. Lewis' indorsement of Wendell L. Willkie, a union spokesman said.

Thomas, accompanied by Walter P. Reuther and Richard T. Frankensteen, union executive board member, planned to fly East tonight for the conference. The 700 union local officials attending today's meeting promised Mr. Roosevelt a crowd of 250,000 if he would speak in Detroit before the election, November 5. They planned to negotiate for a half-day shutdown of all Michigan plants in event the President came here.

Lewis Urged to Resign

A resolution approved by the conference said Lewis' action Friday night was "done without the customary consultation with other C. I. O. leaders and in direct contradiction to the hopes and desires and the best interests of those who labor for a living."

Twelve thousand members of Chrysler Local No. 7, of the U. A. W. C. I. O., and shop stewards representing 4,000 Kelsey Hayes Corporation workers, at sessions today, urged Lewis to resign immediately as president of the C. I. O.

The U. A. W.-C. I. O. spokesman said that when Thomas telephoned the White House, in accordance with instructions of today's conference, Early invited the union leaders to lunch with Mr. Roosevelt tomorrow to discuss their request that he speak in Michigan.

The U. A. W.-C. I. O. told the President in a telegram dispatched after the meeting that "with deep regret we heard Lewis join with Messrs. (Henry) Ford, (Ernest) Weir, and (Tom) Girdler in support of Willkie, and we take this opportunity to inform you that Lewis did not speak for the membership of our union."

Pledge Roosevelt Support

"In this fight, we stand solidly behind you against the Willkies, Fords, Weirs, and Girdlers at home and against the aggressors Hitler, Stalin, and Mussolini abroad," it added.

Thomas and Frankensteen told the meeting they would not join in any move intended to oust Lewis as C. I. O. president. Union leaders booed when Leo Lamotte, an executive board member, said he would "go along with Lewis" while still obeying pro-Roosevelt instructions of the recent U. A. W.-C. I. O. convention. Four other board members who spoke said they would "go down the line" for Mr. Roosevelt.

Aids Roosevelt, Says Leader

Waterville, Me., Oct. 27 (AP).—F. Harold Dubord, Democratic National committeeman from Maine, declared today that "nothing that has occurred during the campaign will bring President Roosevelt more votes than C. I. O. Leader John L. Lewis' indorsement of Wendell Willkie."

In an address prepared for delivery at the annual convention of the Young Democrats of Maine, Dubord asserted "the men and women who make up the ranks of labor will repudiate this false leader and thousands of independent voters throughout the country will support President Roosevelt because John L. Lewis is against him."

Joseph P. Kennedy, jr., son of the Ambassador to Great Britain, also a convention speaker, termed Lewis' act a "knifing" of an Administration that he asserted had made America labor conscious.

Resignation Demanded

Rutland, Vt., Oct. 27 (AP).—The Organization Council of New Hampshire and Vermont for the Textile Workers Union of North America, C. I. O. affiliate, went on record at a meeting here today as condemning John L. Lewis, C. I. O. president, for his speech favoring the election of Wendell L. Willkie, Republican Presidential candidate, and demanded Lewis' resignation, according to Henry L. Jennings, of Manchester, N. H., chairman of the council.

The 40 delegates from 10 locals who were present declared by resolution that Lewis acted on his own initiative, without consulting the C. I. O. executive council.

Mine Workers Join Protest

Beckley, W. Va., Oct. 27 (AP).—Demands for the resignation of John L. Lewis as president of the United Mine Workers came from some union locals in the vast, winding Gulf coal fields today as an aftermath of Lewis' indorsement of Wendell L. Willkie.

Several of the union locals also telegraphed President Roosevelt pledging "unanimous support."

Among the letters to Lewis was this one from local union 2325, at Stanaford:

"We ask you to resign as president of the United Mine Workers for the benefit of the organization. . . . When you attacked President Roosevelt in your speech October 25 you attacked labor's best friend."

Democratic National Committeeman Arthur B. Koontz asserted meanwhile that Lewis' indorsement of Willkie "will not adversely affect the result in West Virginia."

Maritime Union Backs Lewis

New York, Oct. 27 (AP).—Three officers and three organizers of the National Maritime Union (C. I. O.) wired John L. Lewis tonight their support of his criticism of the Roosevelt Administration, which they added "has no right to expect the support of laboring millions whom it has consistently betrayed."

The telegram was signed by National President Joseph Curran, Secretary Ferdinand C. Smith, Treasurer Hedley M. Stone and Organizers Frederick N. Myers, Jack Laurenson and Howard McKenzie.

"Our own organization has suffered greatly at their (the Administration's) hands," the telegram said. "Unemployment insurance for seamen, though glibly promised, has been pigeonholed. Ships have been transferred to foreign flags, casting thousands of American seamen on shore with little or no relief. The Administration has consistently refused to uphold the labor laws."

The union claims about 50,000 members.

Connecticut C. I. O. Stands Pat

Hartford, Conn., Oct. 27 (AP).—The Connecticut C. I. O. State convention, declaring that the enemies of labor had their eyes on it and were hoping for a split in the ranks on an election issue, voted today to table all resolutions on the Presidential campaign.

Text of Willkie's 6-Point Program for Boom in Private Housing Industry

Red Tape Bogs New Deal Plan, He Charges

Republican Candidate Responds to Inquiry By Housing Experts

Aboard Willkie Train En Route to Rensselaer, Ind., Oct. 27 (AP).—Wendell L. Willkie issued the following statement today in response to an inquiry from a group of housing experts for his views on the housing problem:

I am very glad to answer your request for a statement giving my position on housing.

As I have traveled across this country, I have been deeply impressed with the dilapidated appearance of the homes of millions of our people, and the run-down condition of large parts of our city areas. It is absolutely essential to remedy these conditions, both for economic and social reasons.

Significant steps in the direction of improved housing and land utilization were taken in 1931 by President Hoover's conference on home building and home ownership. The New Deal has carried this movement further by creating a number of Government agencies to deal with various aspects of the housing problem.

For example, the HOLC was created to ease the burden of mortgages on homes threatened by the depression. The FHA was established to insure lending institutions against mortgage losses. The USHA came into being to lend Federal assistance to low-rent housing and slum clearance and to aid in the creation of a network of local agencies for this purpose.

Program Slumped, He Says

It is widely recognized, however, that the New Deal housing program has bogged down. This has been due to a lack of frankness on the part of the New Deal in failing to admit the real extent of Federal slum clearance subsidies. It has also been due to faulty administration. Today 13 different uncorrelated agencies —FWA, USHA, FHA, FSA, HOLC, HOLB, CHC, DHC, NRBB, PBA, RFC Mortgage, PWA, and the building departments of the Army and Navy procurement divisions—compete with and even fight each other, to the detriment of housing as a whole. The New Deal system of red tape. As the result of duplication and poor administration, costs have been excessive, to the detriment of the home owner, tendant and general taxpayer. One of the first tasks of the next administration should be to study and consider the housing situation as a whole.

My own attitude can be briefly summarized as follows:

1. The stimulation of slum clearance, land use planning, and housing is a Government function; but the efforts of Government in this direction should always supplement and stimulate private enterprise and initiative, rather than encroach upon it. As I stated in my Fortune magazine article, before I became a candidate, Government investment in slum clearance might prove to be as profitable both from the economic and social standpoints as Government investments in good roads.

2. The 13 Government agencies now dealing with housing and planning matters should be correlated, and the present conflict of functions and undue overlapping removed. Our eventual goal should be the establishment of a consolidated Federal housing agency, with separate divisions for different functions.

3. Meanwhile, agencies such as the FHA and HOLC, which provide or insure the financing of private housing, should be continued, but their administration should be thoroughly inspected and improved. Likewise, those agencies which provide loans and subsidies for public housing projects such as the USHA and FSA, should be maintained; but their administration must be improved and the Federal subsidy for slum clearance frankly recognized.

4. The Federal Government has a great opportunity to cooperate with local authorities and private enterprise in the rebuilding of our cities and in undertaking far-reaching neighborhood planning, such as the New Deal has never undertaken.

5. Any housing program must clearly define the respective responsibilities of Federal, State and local governments. It must not be the purpose of any such program to have the homes of people owned or operated from Washington or State capitals.

6. Important as is Government assistance, the housing program in the main can be solved only by private enterprise. The New Deal has dismally failed to attack the maladjustments holding back housing recovery, such as high costs, politically exploited building codes, and excessive real estate taxes. The next Administration will encourage the removal of such maladjustments in the belief that private housing may well prove to be the great industry of the future. America will badly need such an industry to save the country from economic collapse when it is no longer necessary to maintain the present level of armament expenditures.

Inquiry Made by Experts

The Republican Presidential nominee said that the inquiry was made by the following:

Harold S. Buttenheim, editor of the American City and the Municipal Index; Dr. Edwin S. Burdell, director of Cooper Union; Prof. Carl Feiss, director of the Planning and Housing Division of the School of Architecture, Columbia University; Frank A. Vanderlip, jr., treasurer of the National Public Housing Conference; Rolland J. Hamilton, secretary and treasurer of American Radiator & Standard Sanitary Corporation, vice president of the John B. Pierce Foundation; Thomas S. Holden, vice president of F. W. Dodge Corporation; and Ralph Walker, member of Walker, Foley, Voorhees & Smith, president of the Municipal Art Society.

Likewise, expressions of support from New Jersey with 16 electoral votes, are leading Lewis colleagues to consider that State as possibly for Willkie.

Disclosure that white collar workers are supporting Lewis so solidly coincides with reports from persons who have watched the reaction of crowds on some of Willkie's most important campaign trips. These observers have reported that while factory manual workers have actively displayed their preference for Roosevelt, office workers both in the factories and in the cities have responded enthusiastically to the Republican nominee.

On the other hand, sharp cleavage continued in the reaction to Lewis' speech among leaders of the other powerful unions in the C. I. O.

Emil Rieve, vice president of the C. I. O., termed Lewis a "lost leader" returning to the "outmoded philosophy of the Republican Party."

Some West Virginia locals of the United Mine Workers were reported by the Associated Press to have called on Lewis to resign as union president.

The president, secretary, treasurer and three organizers of the National Maritime Union wired Lewis their support in his criticism of the Administration.

And Gardner Jackson resigned as legislative representative of Labor's Nonpartisan League, headed by Lewis, because of "complete disagreement" with his chief's Friday night pro-Willkie address.

These revelations provided the outstanding Sunday development as the last full week of the campaign opened.

"Champ" and challenger, along with uncounted seconds in each corner, were prepared to resume the hectic battle for ballots throughout the country today.

Across the country, meanwhile, lieutenants of both Presidential candidates were rallying forces in preparation for the voting.

Today and tonight, for instance, will see, in addition to the programs of President Roosevelt and Willkie, such an array of speeches as this:

For Willkie: Thomas E. Dewey, at Peoria, Ill.; Oren Root, jr., at New York.

For Roosevelt:

Senator Alben W. Barkley, of Kentucky, Rockford, Ill.; Henry A. Wallace, Omaha, Nebr.; Ambassador John Cudahy, at Columbia University; Ambassador Anthony J. Drexel Biddle, at Erie, Pa.; Senator Byrnes of South Carolina, at Elwood Ind.; Senator Claude Pepper of Florida, at San Francisco; Postmaster General Frank Walker, at Scranton, Pa.; Secretary of Agriculture Claude Wickard, at Greely, Colo.

As the week progresses three Cabinet members will be on the stump.

Secretary of State Hull will make a 15-minute radio talk on Friday night, Secretary Ickes will speak again at Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Friday night and Secretary Wickard will talk at Salina, Kans., tomorrow night.

Following his speech tonight, Wallace, Democratic Vice Presidential nominee, will campaign east through the week, his schedule including a speech at an American Labor Party rally in New York on Thursday night.

The Republican National Committee's speaking list includes former President Herbert Hoover and former Gov. Alfred E. Smith of New York. Hoover will speak at Salt Lake City on Friday. Smith will speak at Boston Thursday night.

Senator McNary, the Republican Vice Presidential nominee, will talk at Salt Lake City on Friday and at Sacramento, Calif., on Saturday.

Other Republican talks will include one by Senator Taft of Ohio, at East Liverpool, Ohio, on Wednesday night, and another by Dewey at Kansas City on Saturday.

Americas to Fight For Liberty, Says Mexican General

New York, Oct. 27.—The Americas will not be "driven like sheep" and will fight for liberty until they are "victorious in the end," Gen. Francisco L. Urquizo, chief of staff of the Mexican army, warned today in speaking on behalf of army officers of the ten Latin-American countries on a visit here.

Replying to a speech of welcome by Lieut. Gen. Hugh A. Drum, commanding the First Army, Gen. Urquizo spoke at a luncheon in honor of the visitor at the Officers' Club on Governors Island. Loud applause from his Southern colleagues greeted his prediction of ultimate victory over oppressors of freedom.

He declared that he and his colleagues had had great esteem for the United States even before their arrival here, but, he added, "from today on, we know you better and like you better, and we are sure of having attained great unity."

The visitors, here on a tour of military posts at the invitation of Gen. George C. Marshall, Army Chief of Staff, will conclude their three-day stay in New York City Monday. They will fly to Washington in a chartered plane, leaving LaGuardia Field at 9 a. m.

G. M. MacWhorter Dies; Manager Of Accountants

George Merritt MacWhorter, 41, manager of the accounting division of the Underwood-Elliott-Fisher Co., died yesterday at his home, 3114 Rittenhouse Street Northwest.

Mr. MacWhorter was born in Washington and lived here all of his life. Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Marion Ritche MacWhorter; two sons, Robert B. and George M. MacWhorter, jr., and his mother, Mrs. Ida Emmett MacWhorter, all of Washington.

Funeral services will be held at 1 p. m. tomorrow at the Hines funeral home, 2001 Fourteenth Street Northwest, with burial in Cedar Hill Cemetery.

Conscription Legion Formed By Possible Selects

Boston, Oct. 27 (AP).—With the draft lottery less than 48 hours away, a group of Greater Boston young men within the selective service age range formed the National Conscription Legion today.

"WeW are deadly earnest about this," said Joseph L. Kaplan, Boston attorney and newly elected judge advocate of the organization. The group hopes to be represented at the drawing in Washington Tuesday, he added.

Conceived by Leo D. Walsh, assistant director of Americanization for the City of Boston, and some of his friends, the conscription legion will establish, Kaplan said, clearing houses of information for all those who have registered and will sponsor legislation to protect the jobs of those who have been drafted.

Sixty delegates, who said they represented approximately 600 other young men of draft age, met today, Kaplan said, explaining that officers intended to make the organization national in scope.

Walter Johnson To Be Honored

In honor of County Commissioner Walter P. Johnson, Republican candidate for Congress in the Sixth election district of Maryland, Mrs. La Vergne Fairchild will sponsor a concert Saturday at 8:30 p.m. in the Takoma Park fire hall, Carroll and Denwood avenues.

Participants will include Miss Lola Sanders, David Manley, Mr. and Mrs. George Wargo and Prof. Gilmour McDonald.

The committee assisting includes Mrs. H. H. Votaw, Mrs. J. Douglas Bradshaw, Mrs. Byron E. Blodgett and Mrs. DeWitt Zook.

Arnold Denies Acting Against Advertising

By the Associated Press

New York, Oct. 27.—Assistant Attorney General Thurman Arnold asserted in a statement made public today that the Justice Department had not directed any anti-trust cases against advertising but, rather, against "an unreasonable use of power which has been acquired by a legitimate method."

In a letter to Edwin S. Friendly, business manager of the Sun of New York and chairman of the Bureau of Advertising of the American Newspaper Publishers Association, Arnold said he wanted to clarify the department's "position in respect to advertising, about which there has been much confusion in the press and in editorial comment."

"The only thing that the antitrust division attacks is the unreasonable and coercive use of organized power," Arnold said.

"Sometimes advertising is one of the weapons by which an organization destroys a free market. Sometimes the weapon is the unreasonable use of patents, or corporation merger, or agreements, or trade associations.

"All of these things are legitimate in themselves, but they may be used for illegitimate purposes."

Arnold pointed out that manufacturers, advertising in a way which "should be encouraged because it creates demand for products and thus distributes more goods," often build up such a demand for a product that retailers would lose customers if they did not carry that product.

But after the national demand has been established, Arnold went on, it is possible for a manufacturer to threaten to withdraw the popular product from the retailer unless the retailer agrees to carry other products of the manufacturer or withdraw from sale products of the manufacturer's competitor.

"This the antitrust division calls an unreasonable use of power which has been acquired by a legitimate method," Arnold said. "It is this unreasonable use that is illegal."

Arnold said he was making this explanation because attacks upon the department's attitude followed a "complete misconception" in some cases of the Government's antitrust charges last July against eight major tobacco companies and certain company executives.

"There we charge that a demand, built up by advertising, has been used to coerce competitors, jobbers, and retailers, to eliminate competition and to deprive the consumer of a free market," Arnold said. "There is no attack whatever upon the principle of legitimate advertising of cigarettes or any attempt to stop that kind of advertising."

If groups seek to fix prices and control other groups in an industry, Arnold continued, their efforts are easier if they are in positions powerful enough to give them control of the field.

"The charge (in the tobacco case) is that the defendants use this power and dominant position, built up by several specified means including advertising, to facilitate their violations of the Sherman Act," Arnold said.

"The charge is not that advertising is a violation of the law, and no fair-minded, intelligent persons reading the charges could possibly come to the conclusion that it is."

Hague Aide Hits TobeyinVoteProbe

Jersey City, N. J., Oct. 27.—Frank H. Eggers, nephew of and secretary to Mayor Frank Hague of Jersey City, today charged that Senator Charles W. Tobey (Republican), of New Hampshire, a member of the United States Senate subcommittee investigating alleged election faruds in Hudson County, is seeking to "destroy the Democratic Party in the States, as well as President Roosevelt, Charles Edison, the Democratic candidate for Governor, and Mayor Hague."

Eggers said that "it must be apparent" that Senator Guy M. Gillette (Democrat), of Iowa, who is chairman of the Senate Campaign Expenditures Committee, "has been imposed upon" and the work his committee jeopardized by the "unfair tactics and partisan methods" of Senator Tobey.

"Gillette intended that this investigation of election matters in New Jersey, and the hearings of the committee, should be fair and impartial," he said. "It is very evident, however, that Representative Joe Martin, the chairman of the Republican National Committee, and Senator Barbour, the Republican candidate for reelection, were soon able to influence Senator Tobey, the agent of the Republican Party on the subcommittee, to utterly disregard all rules of common decency and ethics, . . ."

Thieves Prefer Ham And Eggs, Chicken

Somewhere in Washington last night thieves probably feasted heartily on delicious roast chicken.

Twenty-one dry-picked chickens were stolen from the retail grocery store at 2012 P Street Northwest, owned by Rubin S. Clark, he reported to police. The loot, stolen some time during the night, also included four legs of lamb, two hams, one side of bacon, 18 dozen eggs and 15 pounds of butter.

Willkie Reroutes Train to Aid Campaign of Rep. Chas. Halleck

HALLECK

Representative Charles Halleck (Republican), of Indiana, a candidate for reelection, has devoted most of his time to Willkie's Presidential campaign and little to his own. Today the Willkie train, headed originally for Bloomington, Ill., was rerouted to bring it into Halleck's home town of Rensselaer, Ind., early tonight.

No announcement of what the Rensselaer program might be was made, but the assumption was that Willkie by his presense, if nothing else, was hurrying to bolster Halleck's campaign.

The Indiana Congressman is an original Willkie man. He nominated the Presidential candidate and he made the entire Western swing with him as well as a number of side trips.

Ex-Senator Berry Supports Willkie

Knoxville, Tenn., Oct. 27 (AP).—George L. Berry, president of the International Printing Pressmen and Assistants' Union, and former United States Senator from Tennessee, today announced his support of Wendell L. Willkie, Republican nominee for President.

"Failure of the Roosevelt Administration to take account of the practical working requirements of a democracy," plus his conviction as to the third-term "philosophy of Thomas Jefferson" brought about the announcement, Berry said in a signed statement.

Berry, who was defeated for reelection two years ago, was a strong supporter of President Roosevelt's two terms.

Iowan, 101, Votes For Willkie by Mail

Davenport, Iowa, Oct. 27 (INS).—At least one vote for Wendell L. Willkie for President was already in the mail today. It was cast on an absentee ballot by Artmas Van Patten, 101 years old, whose voting residence is Perry, Iowa.

Van Patten, a native of Jefferson County, N. Y., cast his first Presidential vote for Abraham Lincoln. "I voted for Roosevelt one time, but not this year," he declared today.

Columbia Bans Speech By Browder at Forum

New York, Oct. 27 (AP).—Earl Browder, Communist Presidential candidate, has been banned from speaking at a symposium on civil liberties at Columbia University next Wednesday.

Frank D. Fackenthal, university provost, said the university "does not care to invite people to speak on the campus who are under indictment or conviction."

The student committee for defense of academic freedom, which is sponsoring the symposium, said it would fight the ban against Browder, who is free pending outcome of his appeal from a Federal sentence for passport fraud.

Election Battle in Midwest Still in Nip-and-Tuck Stage

By the Associated Press

Chicago, Oct. 27.—The Midwest, carried by President Roosevelt in 1932 and 1936, and site of a Republican resurgence in 1938, ranks as one of the big battle fields of the 1940 Presidential election.

A survey of eight important Central States today showed that the most disputable topics were the third term, labor, agricultural, foreign, fiscal, business and social policies, and the status of unemployment and defense.

The struggle for Ohio's 26 electoral votes has attained an intensity unequalled, in the opinion of grizzled politicans, since the Bryan-McKinley melee of 1896.

Ohio's gubernatorial race pits Gov. John W. Bricker, Republican, against former Gov. Martin L. Davey, Democrat. The Senatorial contest involves Mayor Harold H. Burton, of Cleveland, Republican, and John McSweeney, former Democratic congressman.

The Democratic leadership expects to win Illinois' 29 electoral votes for Roosevelt by rolling up a decisive plurality in Chicago, citadel of that party. 1932 convention cradle Roosevelt-Wallace forces in an effort to break the Republican hold of the New Deal and scene of the third term nomination. Republican chiefs figure they will have a down-State margin large enough to put the State in the Willkie column.

Both sides accept the third term as Michigan's No. 1 issue but much attention is devoted to the labor policies of Roosevelt and Willkie. The Republican veteran, Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg, is running for reelection against Frank Fitz-Gerald, Detroit attorney. Gov. Luren Dickinson, 81, Republican, bidding for another term, competes against D. Van Wagoner, State highway commissioner and only Democrat now holding an elective State office.

In Indiana, Willkie's native State and locale of his acceeptance address, Democrats place their highest hopes in their State ticket, topped by Lieut. Gov. Henry F. Schricker. He is matched against Republican Glen R. Hillis in the gubernatorial test. Democratic Senator Sherman Minton stands for reelection against Raymond E. Willis, who lost a similar race in 1938 to Senator Frederick Van Nuys by only 5,100 votes.

Senator Robert M. LaFollette, Pregressive candidate for reelection in Wisconsin, has tied up with the on the State. His opponents are Fred Clausen, Republican, a manufacturer, and James E. Finnegan, Democrat. Gov. Julius P. Heil, Republican aspirant to a second term, is opposed by Democratic Francis E. McGovern.

Vice Presidential Contender Wallace widened a split in the State's Democratic ranks recently when he indorsed LaFollette.

Democrats and Farmer-Laborites, with the exception of several former leaders who swung away from the President, are pooling their efforts for Roosevelt in Minnesota.

Gov. Harold E. Stassen, who outpolled all other gubernatorial candidates combined in the three-party September primary, is stumping for Willkie and for reelection, too. His competitors are Hjalmar Petersen, Farmer-Labor, and Edward Murphy, Democrat. In the Senatorial ring, Senator Henrik Shipstead, who spent 18 years in the Senate as a Farmer-Laborite but has shifted to the Republican camp, is opposed by Elmer Benson, Farmer-Labor, and John E. Regan, Democrat.

Gov. George A Wilson, Republican seeks another term in Iowa—Wallace's home State—against Democratic John K. Valentine. Gov. R. L. Cochran, Democrat, is running for the United States Senate in Nebraska against Hugh Butler, Omaha grain man. Gubernatorial contestants are Terry Carpenter, former Democratic Congressman, and Dwight Griswold, Republican, Gordon publisher.

AMAZING TEST

PROVES ECONOMY OF TIMKEN OIL BURNERS

All oil burners are not alike! Some are quieter than others . . . some are more complicated than others . . . some are much more costly to operate than others.

Now, in many Timken Dealers' showrooms, for the first time, you can see all the differences in oil burners, and accurately measure the true economy of the two most popular types.

This amazing test of a Timken Wall-Flame Oil Burner and an ordinary Pressure Burner, operating under identical conditions, gives concrete proof that Timken saves up to 25% or more.

See this test today. In 15 minutes, you can get facts that your neighbors have spent years and hundreds of dollars to learn for themselves.

GUARANTEED SAVINGS

If you already have oil heat, let a Timken Dealer test your present burner, free, and on the basis of results, tell you exactly what saving he will guarantee with a new Timken Wall-Flame Oil Burner installed in your present furnace or boiler.

He will back up this guarantee with his written bond. No guesswork—no chance. You save, or he will re-install your present burner and refund your money.

Act now! Trade-in your present burner on the world's finest oil burner — a Timken — and save money.

Phone the nearest Timken Dealer today — now. You'll find him listed under "Oil Heating" or "Oil Burners" in the Classified Section of your Telephone Directory.

Audit Imperative

Should a citizen have to reimburse a second-hand dealer before the police property clerk will release stolen goods? A complaint on this score has reopened an old dispute and led to proposals for a comparative audit of police and dealers' books.

The answer to the citizen's plea is that he does not have to pay. The Corporation Counsel has pointed out that cases of this kind may be taken to court—the usual procedure of settling grievances.

The final cost of successful action in cases under $50 that are handled by the Small Claims Court is nothing.

The property clerk can hardly be blamed for withholding goods taken over from second-hand dealers, for the latter could collect from him if he should comply with a false or mistaken claim. Full justice to the public demands, however, that he be required to inform citizens, or that a sign or other means be employed to insure that they know of the legal course open to them. If a victim of theft chooses the simple method of settling with the store which cooperated in turning up his property, he should do so with complete understanding of the situation.

Far more serious is the complaint made in behalf of the dealers, that the police can remove property "on suspicion," and even, through the licensing power, harass them into making "friendly donations." Attorney Richard A. Harman has asked an audit of dealers' books to determine what goods have been taken from them. This would be checked against the record of goods actually received by the property clerk and finally against an inventory of property still on hand.

If the actions of the police are above reproach in this matter, they should be cleared of suspicion. If there has been irregular conduct, those responsible should be punished and regulations should be reshaped so that such abuses cannot recur. It is imperative that the Commissioners call for the audit.

Blow To Prestige

Reports indicate that German trading prestige has suffered a severe blow in Latin America due to the Reich's inability to deliver goods contracted for when German troops were sweeping over France and the Low Countries.

As a political gesture, or because of supreme confidence in Germany's ability to conquer England and break the British blockade, German agents took orders last spring for goods to be shipped and delivered this fall. Low prices were quoted and other special inducements offered to effect deals.

Gambling of this kind seems particularly foolhardy for a nation anxious to restore and strengthen its trading ties with the outside world. For nothing destroys commercial good will more effectually than a failure to complete deliveries on time. Whether the failure is due to inefficiency or to circumstances over which the seller has no control, the buyer is inconvenienced and likely to be alienated.

Perhaps the Germans realized that they were playing a dangerous game in which the risks were numerous. In any event, they have only themselves to blame for the severe loss of confidence which they are now incurring in Latin America.

Deserved Praise

The District's Health Department has won richly deserved acclaim from three sources. The president of the American Medical Association, a vice president of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., and Ira V. Hiscock, Yale professor of public health, have written to Health Officer George C. Ruhland in warm praise of the department's record in the 1940 fiscal year.

In taking note of this record, which includes the reduction of the infant mortality and pneumonia death rates to the lowest levels known here, Dr. Nathan B. Van Etten, of the Medical Association, said the achievement was ". . . amazing. You have shown what a real health officer can do if he tries."

Louis I. Dublin, the insurance official, asserted that "you need have no concern with reference to the pessimism of those who have no faith in the public health movement. We who have followed this work for a long time know very well how great are the possibilities and your report is a magnificent indication of just these possibilities."

Unfortunately, Dr. Ruhland is dependent upon the faith of various persons in the possibilities he has demonstrated. Among these persons are the Commissioners and members of Congress. His noteworthy achievements of 1940 were based on an appropriation of $2,508,860 although he had estimated his department's needs at $3,143,032. Even with the contributions of private philanthropic organizations, which in the disfranchised District are under heavy demands for support of public services, the Health Department had insufficient funds to attain its full usefulness.

Looking Backward

Secretary Hull's review of our foreign policy at the National Press Club on Saturday night brought out little of either fact or principle with which his audience was not familiar. His address holds interest chiefly as an objective summary of the steps the United States has taken in the face of a world crisis.

The response of our Department of State to each new incident in the gathering storm of aggression has followed a familiar pattern. Secretary Hull has issued a laudable statement of principles for which the United States stands. He has pleaded for the adjustment of international differences "on the basis of justice, equality and fair dealing, without recourse to force or threat of force." He has called upon other nations to uphold the standards of international morality.

Not infrequently Mr. Hull has predicted disaster unless resort to force could be superseded by peaceful methods. But his counsel and his warnings have been disregarded. Ruthless governments have gone right ahead with their plans to seize territory which they believed they should have. Protests both before and after each act of aggression appear to have produced no tangible results.

It can scarcely be said, then, that the record of the Administration in dealing with the upheavals in Europe and Asia is impressive. The aims and principles enunciated by Mr. Hull have always been commendable. But the United States has not been in a position to make its influence effective in world affairs. Only military power speaks with the voice of authority in this era. And the United States has lagged behind other nations in acquiring that power.

This fact is clearly recognized by Secretary Hull. "The appalling tragedy of the present world situation," he said, "lies in the fact that peacefully disposed nations failed to recognize in time the true nature of the aims and ambitions which have actuated the rulers of the heavily arming nations." Since that statement is a mild indictment of the Administration of which he is a part, Mr. Hull showed real courage in making it at this time.

Hope for a peaceful settlement of Europe's dilemma has been dim ever since the Nazis began to fortify the Rhineland in 1936, in violation of the Locarno Treaty. More prompt understanding of the nature and implications of that militant movement would have saved the world incalculable losses and suffering. In our own country, quicker and more effective reaction to aggressive conquests abroad would have greatly minimized the dangers now confronting us.

Even if our armament program had been undertaken when war broke out in Europe over a year ago, our position today would be considerably more secure than it is. The United States had at that time and still has a profound desire to remain at peace. Our chief difficulty is that education of the people as to what is essential to the maintenance of peace and national security in this chaotic world began at such a late hour.

Throughout the period when a world crisis was impending the United States prescribed lofty principles and worked for peace. Yet the Administration delayed the acquisition of sufficient naval and military power to assure preservation of those ideals even for ourselves and close neighbors. Mr. Hull's review of our foreign policy serves to emphasize once more the fact that this is an extremely dangerous era in which to rely upon a strong voice and little stick.

Cut Off From Fuel

Food is not the only necessity of life of which the people of Europe will be short during the coming winter. The lack of coal and oil also presents a very serious problem for the Scandinavian countries, cut off from access to their chief sources of supply. In an article appearing in the November issue of the Scientific Monthly, Dr. W. H. Voskuil points out that for decades Norway, Sweden and Denmark have depended heavily upon Great Britain for their coal supplies. Now the amount of coal and coke they can obtain will depend upon how much Germany is able and willing to deliver after pressing Italian needs have been met. Germany has sufficient resources of coal to supply all Europe. But whether she has the rail and shipping facilities to meet all needs is problematical.

All three countries also import considerable amounts of gasoline and fuel oil. In view of Germany's own inadequate oil supplies it is probable that Scandinavia will experience a desperate shortage of motor fuel and other petroleum products in the coming months. Dr. Voskuil asserts that Sweden cannot operate her industries two weeks without German coal, while Norway depends upon motor fuels and gas oils to operate her fishing fleet. Thus inability to obtain essential fuels will aggravate the food shortages and the industrial demoralization resulting from the war and the continental blockade.

In the past, Scandinavian reliance upon foreign markets for products vital to the national economy has not been regarded as a threat to political independence, because supplies were drawn from friendly countries, trading with a view to profit and without thought of political domination. But the Nazi state has learned how to exploit economic weakness to the full, coercing weak nations into bowing to its political mandates.

The Scandinavian countries can offer but feeble resistance to this kind of domination so long as they are shut off from their former trade contacts. Indeed, Dr. Voskuil concludes, no doubt rightly, that only a decisive victory for the western powers can save Norway, Sweden and Denmark from becoming permanent dependencies of the German Reich.

Menaced Greece

As the pressure in the Mediterranean barometer rises Greece finds herself increasingly in danger of attack.

Two months ago the Italian press began a violent campaign of abuse against the Athens government for its alleged complicity in the murder of Daut Hoggia, an Albanian "patriot." The purpose was clearly to intimidate the little kingdom into accepting Axis dictation. But Greece held her ground; Italy was not then prepared for a showdown with her neighbor across the Adriatic, and the crisis passed.

Since then, however, the Axis has greatly strengthened its foothold in the Balkans. Rumania has become a satellite state under German military occupation. Yugoslavia has been forced to accept the economic dictation of the Third Reich. Italy has reinforced her garrisons in Albania. Russia, the only potential counterweight to the Axis in southeastern Europe, has thus far manifested no readiness actively to oppose Germany and Italy in that area. In the meantime, the Vichy government has been brought in line and the Axis ties with Spain have been strengthened.

Should she be attacked by Italy, or by Italy and Germany in combination, Greece would find herself in a parlous position. She might conceivably be aided by Turkey but since that country is on the direct route of the German-Italian "Drang nach Osten," that support, even if given, would necessarily be limited. She would undoubtedly be helped by Great Britain, whose guarantee of support she has and which, despite Axis pressure, she has refused to repudiate. But whether British naval assistance would be adequate to prevent Greece from being overrun is doubtful.

It must be recognized, however, that the conquest of Greece would have no great value to the Axis unless it could lead to the establishment of German and Italian bases on the Aegean and the Mediterranean. And since British sea power is still dominant in that area it is likely that the moment Mussolini gave orders to his legions to attack the Balkan kingdom would see a British occupation of strategically located Greek islands. From the Axis point of view, therefore, the safest course is first to apply the strategy of terror against Greece before actually resorting to force.

In any event, Greece's position is not to be envied. She, too, suffers from the double sin of being small and weak and lying astride the road of conquest which the Axis hopes to travel in the effort to eliminate Great Britain from the Mediterranean.

Toys And War

From the Hartford Courant

The production of war toys this year is not markedly larger than it was last year, a toy makers' trade association declares. The vast majority of the toys will be strictly noncombatant. The manufacturers concede that any parent with blood in his eye can find all the armament he can pay for—and not on order, either. There are miniature replicas of the heavy guns that are hurling shells both ways across the British Channel, toy Spitfires and Hurricanes, but no Dorniers or Heinkels (German toys, which once dominated the market, are no longer being imported), battalions of mechanized lead soldiers and fleets of naval ships ranging in size from submarines that shoot wooden torpedoes to a battleship that blows up when a target on her side is hit. But why attempt to list them all? With the possible exceptions of poison gas and liquid fire, there is hardly a modern weapon that has not been reproduced as a toy.

We don't pretend to know whether or not warlike toys are a bad influence on the young. But any parent can bear witness that children are surprisingly tough-minded about such things. In times of peace, they played at scalping settlers and tommy-gunning gangsters with the same bloodthirsty enthusiasm that they now display for imitating bombers and converting the buckboard into a medium tank. And it is one parent's experience that withholding warlike toys has no noticeable effect in abating the bloodthirstiness of children's play. A National Guardsman may be embarrassed at having to drill with a broomstick, but a child with any imagination spends a considerable part of his time fighting desperate battles with even less likely weapons than broomstick rifles and lead-pipe machine guns.

Navy Affairs

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I wonder just how long the United States Navy Department will stand by while small-time political ward heelers meddle in the affairs of the Navy.

These gentry make deals that undermine the morale of the enlisted force of the service.

Senate Bill No. 1146 is an example of that type of business.

Here is a bill that would more than double the salary of the enlisted bandmaster of the United States Naval Academy Band. And why? Well, so the politicians in return can designate certain men to fill vacancies in the U. S. N. A. Band, and give them a comfortable berth at good pay while other American boys are drafted at $21 per month.

The salaries of these political bandmasters is already much higher than those of the bandmasters of the line, who are subject to sea service. They even wear the uniform of an officer of the Navy instead of the regulation enlisted men's uniform!

I hope the Navy Department will take steps to see to it that S. B. 1146 is promptly withdrawn. Enlisted men or officers of the Navy found dabbling in politics should be severely punished.

"Politics And Justice"

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I read with particular interest the fine editorial entitled "Politics and Justice," in today's issue of The Post. There is not one thing in it to which I do not subscribe.

It seems to me that when the head of the department which is supposed to stand for justice to all attempts to create the impression that the leadership of the President alone is responsible for the loyalty displayed by the people in the matter of national defense—as though patriotism were not an innate part of their being—and, in addition, makes unfounded charges against the opposing candidate for the Presidency in the effort to bring about the election of the third-term candidate, the party itself has sunk to a new low in technique, and I feel sure that very many others, who believe in fairness and justice, share my views.

Dangers Of Fascism

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Concerning the statement made by a psychiatrist in your paper concerning the illusions of isolationism suffered by our citizens, I should like to ask just what has ever been done by the press to awaken them to the danger of fascism spreading to this country?

The average human being desires peace and security and will close his eyes to danger just as long as nothing is done to disturb him. The press did little or nothing in awakening him to the dangers of invasion in Spain and its consequent effect on South America, nor to the stupidity of sending supplies to Italy and Germany during the Spanish War.

We also have been shipping oil and scrap iron to Japan to the detriment of democratic China and eventually to America, to say nothing of the millions which have been poured into fascist countries by our leading industrialists. Can the individual be anything else than complacent—or resigned would be a better word—in the face of everything that has been done to help fascism?

Any psychiatrist who blames the troubles of the world on our illusions would do far better to consult another science, namely, economics, to see how our country is being run.

He Was Encouraged

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I listened to President Roosevelt's Philadelphia speech last night and was greatly encouraged by his message of sympathy to the working man.

His reflection of the malicious Wall Street-inspired slander was not unlike that of some brave and hardy pioneer beating back the attack of yapping, howling wolves.

Good luck to you, President Roosevelt, you have won a high place in the hearts of us Americans who work with our strong hands, and you will always be to us a great American.

"Inspirational Campaign"

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In 50 years of observation of the political scene, I have never witnessed so inspirational a campaign as this one of 1940.

The crash of democracies all over the world and the apparent refusal of the American people to take these lessons to themselves, caused many thoughtful citizens to despair of the future of democracy in the United States.

But, on No Third Term Day, I am moved to express my renewed faith in the people of our country as once more they prove themselves to be vigilant in guarding their liberties as they come to a realization that to scrap our third term tradition in favor of one-man government is not only a procedure fraught with incalculable danger, but also a move which would display to the totalitarian rulers of Europe that democracy, in the form we have known it, no longer works over here.

Never have I seen a more stirring campaign than Mr. Willkie is waging as he carries his crusade for constitutional government to every city and hamlet. Each day brings me letters from Democratic friends in the States, who declare that national patriotism comes before party loyalty and that they are not only voting but are working for Wendell Willkie. I know dozens of volunteer workers who are unaffiliated with any organization, but who through tireless expenditure of individual effort are insuring the election of the FIRST-term candidate.

Those of you who despair of democracy watch the American people at the polls on November 5. It will be a day of inspiration. Awakened citizens will rise to the defense of constitutional government. Youth will register its preference for real jobs rather than the "made" work of WPA.

Men and women who receive relief checks will show they know that this is the way to bankruptcy as administered today. Families who have been traditionally Democratic will reject the New Deal party as undemocratic in the hope that their next convention will be Democratic instead of a New Deal side show.

The wounds of class hatred will be healed so that we shall be safe from the dangers which threaten us from within, as we unite behind a leader who will arm us so efficiently that we shall be safe from the dangers which threaten us from without and once more the voice of the United States will carry weight in the councils of the world.

Welfare Of The Nation

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The egotism of Roosevelt is simply boundless. He never admits being wrong on any important point. His egotism constantly assures him he cannot be wrong. To him, an action is right simply because he conceived it. The delusion of infallibility.

But we cannot go on and on with his magnificent delusions. In spite of his geniality and seeming good intentions, Roosevelt is potentially a dictator as absolute as Hitler—both are supreme egotists down to the last atom. He might be a dictator different from Hitler; but this Nation cannot accept any kind of dictator, for under dictatorship liberty is destroyed by good intentions as well as bad intentions. The mistakes of an egotist are irrevocable and progressive in their mischief, because he cannot recognize them as mistakes. Whatever one may think of him, Roosevelt must be retired now. The welfare of the Nation comes first.

Any Day Among The Headlines

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Among the numerous sound arguments appearing in your "Letters" department for the election of Wendell Willkie to the Presidency, we somehow believe the most important reason has not been mentioned—relief for the general public via front-page headlines. Perhaps we can explain this better as follows:

"Franklin Junior baffles Einstein,"
"Franklin Junior charters airline,"
"Franklin Junior lassoes polar bear to hex it;"
"Franklin Junior talks to students,"
"Franklin Junior cautions prudence,"
How I'd somehow relish Junior's hasty exit!

"Jimmie spends a week in Cuba,"
"Jimmie learns to play the tuba,"
"Jimmie plans to fly from Zanzibar to Wheeling;"
Oh, I pray the Lord to gimme
Just one week's surcease from Jimmie,
Else this bard will wreck the bughouse with his squealing.

"Elliott may take up yoga,"
"Elliott seeks Senate toga,"
"Elliott will play in outfield—Red Sox scout him;"
"Elliott to swim Lake Erie,"
"Elliott has Hitler leery,"—
How did Grant and Lincoln get along without him?

"John proves mathematics screwy,"
"John says Spain defeated Dewey,"
"John proposes farmers sow and reap more mutton;"
"John declares Mark Twain wrote Shakespeare,"
"John eats caviar with near beer,"
Here's the hammer, warden, conch me on the button.

"Eleanor discredits Plato,"
"Eleanor drops hot potato,"
"Eleanor asserts the moon is made of sawdust;"
Oh, ye gods and little fishes,
How my brain gyrates and swishes—
"Eleanor suggests that Christmas come in August."

"FDR claims Poe wrote Dickens,"
"FDR wants three-legged chickens,"
"FDR deems warts and hiccoughs reprehensible;"
"FDR says plow cats under,"
"FDR curbs snow and thunder"—
Don't be silly—FDR is indispensable.

The Post Impressionist

Saga of Beta

THOSE WHO SAW in Wednesday's Post a picture of the gravestone erected to Beta, "beloved friend and mascot of the students of the University of Virginia," will have reacted in various ways. Extolling a pet is most often a fruitless endeavor, the reward being the same wan smile and martyred expression of the individual buttonholed by a doting parent who gushes: "Let me tell you about the cute thing Junior said about God this morning . . ."

I come neither to bury Beta nor to praise him. I would relate a small part of the dog's story and leave to Virginia men the pleasant pastime of expanding the legend, so that after sufficient years Beta will have grown in song and story into a veritable canine Beowulf, sallying forth to slay his Grendel.

The first remembrance I have of Beta takes me back to the Corner, that loosely defined area just across the street from the university grounds, where beer was to be had and where, without encumbrance of books, I was preparing for a freshman history examination. In Charlottesville they call freshmen "first year men" and there will be Betaphiles who insist the dog never had anything to do with such fry. But there I was in one of those booths with the table between benches, and presently Beta, no doubt attracted by the accumulation of beer bottles, jumped up on the seat opposite.

It was a signal honor. When solicitous friends came to take me home I paid for 23 beers and 14 hamburgers. I never could down more than half that number in the course of an afternoon. Yes, Beta polished off the difference, and by this time you will be perceiving that he was a remarkable dog. Nobody had to take him home, either.

Some say Beta got his name from Beta Theta Pi Fraternity. One of these worthies, so it goes, brought him to the university; at any rate, the Beta boys liked to take the credit. The dog was supposed to be a cross between a blooded English bulldog and an equally refined if careless foxhound. He was more like a bulldog, squat, thickset and heavily muscled and he dearly loved a fight. But with humans he was the affable hound-dog. Nothing you could do to him short of dismemberment ruffled his temper. Though his head was as big and heavy as a bowling ball, his muzzle was longer than a bulldog's, and he had the fond, pleading eyes of a hunting dog. One look and your hamburger was forfeit.

It's hard to say about his color; it was always changing. One day he would come loping across the lawn done out in red spots and circles that some gay artist had applied with mercurochrome. Another time his predominant color would be a nifty gentian violet. Almost always there was a rococo addition to his normal hues, which were, I believe, dull black and white in about equal proportions. He went on rough parties and took the consequences.

A lot of people called Beta a drunken no-good. They should have known better. He drank a bit of beer, and even whisky, it is true, and slept when and where the mood took him, and accepted handouts of hamburger from almost anybody. But he had more poise—that sine qua non of college men—than the best of his human associates. He could lap up a saucer of beer and roll past the corner on his way to a fight or frolic, all painted up in grotesque patterns, and look as self-possessed as the chief justice going to court.

Beta had a way with the lady dogs, which, when you came right down to it, consisted of the ability to lick any other dog in Charlottesville. He had plenty of heft set close to the ground and when he caught another dog fooling around his bailiwick he'd get a short run and hit him with his shoulder. If, after turning the usual somersault, the intruder failed to clear out, Beta used his teeth. When age weakened and slowed him up he took some terrible beatings. These he accepted stoically and he never stopped trying.

Ubiquitous, Beta showed up everywhere with the students. He attended several classes, almost regularly, and would sit in a chair with an air of deep thought. If he left before the period was over, it was considered proof of a dull session. He also attended athletic events and is known to have gone to the movies. He never raised a fuss or got in the way. If he went to a football game he never ambled across the field, but followed along the proper paths and sat in the grandstand.

Not many months before he died he was kidnaped. Some members of the lacrosse team of the University of Georgia, in Charlottesville for a game, witnessed a couple of Beta's performances, determined to make him theirs and spirited him off to Athens. When the theft was discovered you could have heard the repercussions in China. Virginians arose to the man. There were speeches, mass meetings and editorials. Demands followed accusations. The university president added his voice to the tumult. At first adamant, the culprits relented when threatened with expulsion by their school authorities, and Beta was brought home in style.

He was buried, after a wake that shamed all Ireland, just outside the University Cemetery in Charlottesville.

In Praise Of Wallace

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In The Post of October 24 Henry M. Ward holds up his pen in horror at the mere thought of Henry Wallace becoming President. He says we should "pause and reflect upon the situation . . . if Mr. Wallace should become President."

And just what is so terrifying about Mr. Wallace? He is a genuine "dirt-farmer"—just as much a one as Charles McNary. He is a profound student of economy. He is a deeply religious man. He has proved himself a successful businessman—a publisher. He is intensely loyal and patriotic. He is a splendid, able considerate executive.

Just what is so terrifying about Mr. Wallace?

Reply To Sullivan

By Dorothy Thompson

The Right To Change One's Mind

MY DEAR MR. SULLIVAN: You are grieved, Mr. Sullivan, and apparently seeking to find some explanation from previous writings to throw light upon my attitude toward the Presidency. You think that my preoccupation with the foreign situation has blinded my view on the domestic situation. You are quoting Miss Thompson against Miss Thompson in your columns. In particular, you are recalling words that she has written critical of the Administration in the matter of the centralization of power.

May I attempt briefly to clarify my stand?

FIRST, LET ME SAY candidly that my mind has undergone many changes in the last year and a half. I do not see how any thinking person could have lived through the world experience of the last months without having to give honest, careful reconsideration to everything he had hitherto thought and believed.

As long as one's mind is alive, it changes. Do you remember the words that Goethe spoke to Merck in one of the "Conversations?" He said, "One must change one's skin seven times before one is master in one's own house. Let no one be ashamed to say 'yes' today if yesterday he said 'no,' or to say 'no' today if yesterday he said 'yes.' For that is Life. Only the shoemaker sticks to his last. Never to have changed—what a pitiable thing of which to boast!"

The essence of the conclusion to which this reconsideration has brought me is simply this: I do not believe that democracy will be fully realized or ardently defended except by those individuals and social groups who have most to hope for from democracy, or that it can be realized and defended except with fundamental social reforms. And I do not believe that those reforms will either be initiated or carried through in a sincere, wholehearted and democratic spirit by the social groups who are displaying themselves as almost hysterically fearful that their own economic interests and their own political power may suffer in the process.

FRANKLY, AND CANDIDLY, I am disappointed in the "social class" to which my readers constantly remind me I belong. I have hoped that, being more privileged than most, they would display a few aristocratic qualities—those perhaps expressed in the words noblesse oblige. Certainly, a great many individuals have behaved and do behave disinterestedly, but I cannot see that they are in any way characteristic or representative of the Republican party as a whole. On the contrary, I find that here, as abroad, there is more faith, more generosity of spirit, more patriotism and more hope for the future in the common run of folks than there is anywhere else, and I believe that the President is immeasurably closer to them and to their spirit than is the opposition.

IT IS ALSO RIDICULOUS to consider this as a campaign "against." I am not asked to choose between Roosevelt and my own ideal of perfection. I am asked to choose between Roosevelt and Willkie, between the Democratic Party, with all its vices and virtues, and the Republican Party, with all its vices and virtues. I am asked to choose between the New Deal and a wholly uncharted New Era, some of whose moving spirits seem, to my eye, to be behaving in a most sinister manner. I am not unaware, and I trust you are not either, that all Fascist groups in the United States, from the highest to the lowest instance, are openly and secretly conspiring in the campaign to defeat Roosevelt, and that they are furnishing much of the strategy and ammunition of the campaign. We are electing more than a man. We are making a choice between parties and social forces and world trends.

You quote words that I have written as warning to the President against the too great concentration of power. This problem of power concerns me deeply; it seems to me that the distribution of power; of checks to power, of the avoidance of naked power, and, at the same time, of the creation and use for democracy of widely distributed social and economic power is the primary question of politics—using the word "politics" in its original, Aristotelian sense, as the art of discerning what is good for mankind."

But you ask me to take it for granted that the election of the Republicans will lead to a greater distribution of power; that it will result in less concentration of power. For that conclusion, Mr. Sullivan, I see not one shred of logic or evidence.

In a time of international crisis, such as this, there is inevitably a concentration of power in the hands of the Federal Government. It was so under Washington, and under the ill-starred and reactionary Adams during the French revolution and the European war of that time. It was so under Lincoln; it was so under Woodrow Wilson. There are no absolute rules in politics, except in totalitarian politics—and even they have to display more elasticity than one sees on the surface. It is impossible for me to believe that you, who have been a lifelong student of politics, really believe that after November 5, no matter who is elected, political power will be distributed away from Federal Government to the States. On this matter, I am willing to venture a prophecy: It will not be. And I believe that you, if you will regard the situation disinterestedly, will agree.

On the contrary, I fear that under this Republican Administration we shall see the greatest concentration of political and economic power and military power that has ever occurred in our whole history. The industrialists of this country, engaged in making armaments, will not only be serving the state; they will be, to a great extent, the state. And that they have been joined by John L. Lewis, would-be Dictator Boss of the whole of Amercan labor, advocate of complete horizontal closed shop organization with compulsory membership and authoritarian leadership, does not surprise me. It is a logical part of the picture. Abroad, Mr. Sullivan, this set-up is called a "Labor Front." Have you ever heard of Dr. Ley? Such an organization will have total economic power, plus political power, and its party will have in its hands the largest armed force that we have ever set up in peace times. Does not this concentration of power perturb you, Mr. Sullivan? It does me.

Little man, what now?

Efficient such a set-up might be, but efficient for what? Efficient for the welfare, freedom and increasing democracy of the masses of the people? Efficient for defending the democracy of the common man, if it is challenged? Or efficient in pursuing its own aims, quite regardless of the masses of the people? Let recent history answer that question.

You chide me for fixing my eyes abroad. Mr. Sullivan, I look abroad and at home, and try to learn lessons from what I see both there and here. Whether I argue from the general (the world situation) to the particular (our domestic situation), or whether I reverse the process and, from the local regard the universal, I come to the same conclusion: I see what I see.

THERE IS MUCH MORE that could be written on this matter, but I feel that there is a minimum necessity to express my own mind, since you, in your column, have speculated about it and attempted to interpret it. Sincerely yours,

DOROTHY THOMPSON.

Fair Enough

By Westbrook Pegler

Union Coercion

SIDNEY HILLMAN is president of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America and a member of the National Defense Advisory Commission as the representative of labor. Membership in Hillman's union is compulsory in the closed shops. This union is a member of the C. I. O., and Hillman is a vice president of that organization.

With this brief preamble I now cite an act of presumption and coercion so arrogant and pernicious that Hillman's dismissal from any Government post having to do with the national defense should follow as the night the day.

On the fourth of this month Mr. Hillman sent out to union members in New York a circular letter signed by Jacob S. Potofsky, the general secretary-treasurer, the like of which, if circulated by any large-scale employer of labor would bring the fly-cops swarming up the fire escapes with writs and leg irons from the Labor Relations Board. By the standards which that board has established for the protection of workers against coercion by employers, this is a flagrant offense by a member, or, if you will, a sub-member, of the National Government.

"DEAR MEMBER," the document says, "you cannot vote for President Roosevelt unless you register during registration week."

"A Roosevelt supporter who is eligible to vote and doesn't register might just as well be supporting Willkie," it continues.

And, finally, Mr. Hillman's message declares, "we are mobilized in a crusade to reelect our great President, Franklin D. Roosevelt. Let's pitch into this job in the true Amalgamated spirit. And let there be no slackers in our midst."

The facsimile signature is that of Mr. Potofsky, but Mr. Hillman's name is printed on the letter head, so there need be no question that the sentiments are those of the leader himself. Mr. Potofsky acknowledges its authenticity.

There is here revealed an assumption that because a man or woman is, perforce, a member of Hillman's union that individual's choice of a candidate may be dictated by the union, which is to say by Sidney Hillman of the National Defense Advisory Commission. The union not only tells him where and when he may work and how much of his earnings he may keep for himself, but relieves him of the responsibility of deciding which man he prefers for President of the United States. The only reference to Wendell Willkie, who happens to be an American and the nominee of a regular American political party, is a contemptuous back-of-the-hand swipe which suggests that a vote for him would be an act of treachery.

"Remember what the outcome of this election will mean to your wages and hours, your living standards and, most important, your civil and industrial rights," the circular says.

NOT TO BE NAIVE about it, this is a way of insinuating that Willkie would reduce wages, stretch the hours, depress living standards and impair the civil and industrial rights of the members of Sidney Hillman's union, who would be quick to protest if General Motors or any other firm employing an equal number of workers were to distribute a similar document.

The warning "and let there be no slackers in our midst," following all that goes before, is a plain, crude act of intimidation, for it must be kept in mind that this union has more power than the employer over the individual.

Any intelligent interpretation of the text must show that a vote for Willkie will be regarded as an act of slackerism, and on this basis it may be assumed that a speech in meeting in opposition to the "crusade" would be treason. To be sure, the individual subject may still vote for Willkie in the privacy of the polling booth, but slackerism, undetected, is slackerism still and obviously a heinous offense. If a vote for Willkie is as bad as that, offenders should be discovered and punished by means appropriate to the end, or, better still, Mr. Hillman should propose methods to make such treachery impossible.

him: he has declared that if Willkie is not elected he will consider it a vote of no confidence from the C. I. O. and resign as its head. Here unquestionably is a quintessential expression of the autocratic spirit. You vote as I tell you to or go to blazes. Nevertheless, we welcome the new recruit and we do so because it confirms a point already stressed in these columns—namely, that Willkie, the employer who was once a worker, speaks the language of labor in a degree never vouchsafed to the President, bred as a country squire, or to Miss Perkins, the welfare worker.

his support to Mr. Willkie. We have not often agreed with Mr. Lewis. We make no attempt now to appraise the arguments or the reasons which have led him to support, in this election, the same candidate that we ourselves are supporting. With some of these arguments and these reasons we disagree whole-heartedly. But the fact remains that with John L. Lewis voting for Mr. Willkie it will be very difficult to say, if Mr. Willkie wins on Nov. 5, that the "capitalists" have won, that "labor" has been defeated, and that "the class war" must go on. His was a powerful appealing address lacking nothing in dramatic quality, but characterized with the earnestness of a sincere conviction resulting from a mature conclusion. The New Deal will now train all its heavy guns upon him, but he need not fear the result. He has awakened labor to a strong sense of its obligation to repudiate an Administration that has played fast and loose with the "destinies of men, if not of nations," that has proved itself to be "an amateur practitioner in the realm of economic science."
F.D.R.

With a third-term Executive in the White House every threat to our safety would produce a double crisis. For at every turn Congress would have to choose between dangerous delays and befuddlement, on one hand, and perilous concentration of power in an ambitious President on the other. The third term would thus remain a baffling issue, even after the election, in the hour of our greatest need for national unity and strength.
That is why many men of many different convictions and interests are uniting their influence to oppose the President's reelection. There is nothing strange in his teamwork. The fact that the leader of the C. I. O. has thrown his influence behind a former business executive indicated only profound convictions that another crisis in American government is at hand.

PRESS COMMENT ON THE LEWIS "BOMBSHELL"

Does it furnish for Ernest Lindley the "joyous experience" he anticipated? Mr. Lindley, in his article today, expresses wonder whether the C. I. O.'s chief will be portrayed as "the noble American, the patriotic leader of the working man" or "still . . . the father of the sit-down strikes, the 'red ogre,' the Communist who held Roosevelt in his grip . . ."

Lewis Sits Down

By Ernest K. Lindley

The Break With Roosevelt

TO THE OBSERVER of the phenomena of politics, the most joyous experience of the last ten days of the campaign will be the comment of the pro-Willkie newspapers and colmnists (which means all but a tiny handful of them) and of the pro-Willkie Democrats and Republicans, on John L. Lewis. Will he be the noble American, the patriotic leader of the working man? Or will he still be the father of the sit-down strikes, the "red ogre," the Communist who held Roosevelt in his grip, and the subversive influence which seeks to set up the Soviet system in the United States?

Why did Lewis break with Roosevelt, upon whom he expended his energy and some $500,000 of the unions' money in 1936? In his speech Friday night he gave three main reasons.

The first was that he expected by his contributions in 1936 to be rewarded with a coalition between the Democratic Party and "labor"—meaning himself to the exclusion of other representatives of labor. The schism between Roosevelt and Lewis opened during the sit-down strikes in the automobile industry early in 1937. Roosevelt was bitterly rebuked by most of the press, which now welcomes Lewis' support of Willkie, for hesitating to condemn the sit-down strikes. But he was excoriated by Lewis for failing to throw the full support of the power of the Federal Government behind Lewis. The same situation arose again in the "little steel" strike. Roosevelt was condemned alike by the anti-union press and by the C. I. O. leadership. Lewis hit the stratosphere when Roosevelt said "a plague on both your houses."

FOR ALMOST FOUR YEARS the same story has been repeated many times. Roosevelt has been condemned by the opponents of C. I. O. for being too favorable to Lewis, and condemned by Lewis for not delivering on the line everything requested by Lewis.

There is no room here to outline the whole sequence. It suffices to report that Roosevelt could have had Lewis' active support within the last ten days if he had been willing to pay the price. Roosevelt would not pay the price.

Lewis recited the other main reasons for voting against Roosevelt. One was Roosevelt's failure to produce full economic recovery, and his apparent slighting recently of domestic reforms. On several occasions this column has justified Lewis' position as against Roosevelt's on this count. But what Willkie has to offer in these respects that Roosevelt doesn't is highly speculative. From Willkie we have had only promises to protect the New Deal reforms—none of which he attacked in word or deed before being nominated, and which are bitterly opposed now by many of his supporters. Roosevelt's devotion to the reform is proven. He fought the Old Guard in his own party savagely and persistently to obtain and preserve such monumental gains for labor as the NLRA and the Wage and Hour Act.

LEWIS' THIRD reason for opposition to Roosevelt was that he will lead us into war. Yet Willkie, whom Lewis indorses, has approved every major point in the Roosevelt foreign policy.

It may be significant that Lewis made only one passing reference to the defense of the United States. He wants the President of the United States to "abate war and promote and maintain peace between nations" instead of to "promote or create war." Lewis implies that the present major wars were started by Great Britain and China. He implies that we should encourage these nations to surrender without further ado to the Triple Alliance.

Closely examined, Lewis' speech, whether intentionally or as a result of a muddled mind, is the most outspoken plan for appeasement that has been made by any public figure in this campaign, except Lindbergh. It supports the reports, previously set forth in this column, that he has fallen under the influence of the communistic left wing of the C. I. O.

WHAT EFFECT will Lewis' speech have on the election? This is just a guess. Five of the six vice presidents of C. I. O. have already come out for Roosevelt, and the sixth has condemned Willkie. Lewis may hurt Roosevelt a little in Pennsylvania, New York and Michigan, among the doubtful States. But this may be offset elsewhere by his indorsement of Willkie. Willkie apparently has made promises which Lewis could not exact from Roosevelt.

What effect will Lewis' indorsement have on C. I. O.? Sidney Hillman and Philip Murray, the two wisest C. I. O. leaders, are already for Roosevelt. The fact that they have enjoyed the President's confidence to a greater degree than Lewis undoubtedly has goaded Lewis.

Lewis has promised to resign as head of the C. I. O. if Roosevelt is elected. In the words of one shrewd observer: "That is just the old gag. 'You can't fire me because I've quit.'"

Towns And Townsfolk

SHERWOOD ANDERSON, born in Camden, Ohio, author of "Winesburg, Ohio," and publisher of a newspaper in Marion, Va., knows his small towns, and loves them and chuckles at them. He knows them as they were and as they are—from the days when every sound American family had a hogpen in the back yard, to the days when half the older families drive South in a trailer to escape the dull, cold winter. He knows families that will sell the beds and sleep on the floor before they'll sell their car; and women who work their arms off rather than go on relief. They are all neighbors to him—small-town American neighbors.

Still, in "Home Town" (Alliance, $2.50), one of those handsomely illustrated "Face of America" books, it is the pictures—photographs by Russell Lee, Marion Post, Ben Shahn, Walker Evans, Dorothea Lange and others—which make the book. They are honestly chosen; tired faces and eager faces, motion-picture theater marquees and front porches, crowded courthouse squares and shanties beyond the tracks, and they range over 30-odd States, the best of them being Mr. Lee's series from San Augustine, Tex., and Miss Post's records of winter in Vermont. You will recognize them, though you have never seen them before; they have that quality.

From spring housecleaning to autumn leafburning Sherwood Anderson's accompanying essays take the small towns through the round of the seasons; he sketches a few "town characters;" he suggests that the courthouse takes the place of the theater in the modern town; he hails the evolution of the school into town forum and community center; he sees country papers on the upgrade; makes his bow to the transformation caused by the automobile and the radio; he almost grudgingly recognizes the significance of the church as the social center of American town life. "The church you belong to in the American small town fixes the group you belong to," he says. "It fixes your social standing in the town life."

Britain's Allies

Subject Peoples Of The Third Reich

DURING RECENT weeks signs have multiplied of the growing dissatisfaction in Norway, the Netherlands, Belgium and other regions under German domination. The Nazis themselves admit as much by the increasingly drastic measures they now find it necessary to take to put down discontent among the subject peoples.

But it would be wishful thinking of a dangerous variety to assume that Europe today is ripe for revolt. It is not. The grip of the Nazis is too tight to be shaken by individual acts of sabotage, by the secret conniving of small groups. The Poles, Norwegians, Dutch, Belgians, French found it impossible to resist Nazi domination when they had military power at their disposal. They are certainly not strong enough in their present unarmed state to throw off the chains that now bind them.

Nonetheless, the presence within the German domain of more than 100,000,000 people, vast numbers of whom hate the conqueror with an all-consuming hate, and who would like nothing better than to encompass his overthrow, is a fact to be reckoned with in any calculation of probabilities concerning the outcome of the war.

EVERY ONE of these Poles, Czechs, Norwegians, Hollanders and others who resent the Nazi yoke is a potential ally of Great Britain. And it is more than a coincidence that reports of growing disaffection in such countries as Norway and Holland have increased as Great Britain has shown a capacity to hold out.

The strength of Britain has infused hope and courage in the hearts of the captive peoples. And the more effectively the British resist the German assault the more numerous and active will be Hitler's European opponents.

In other words, Germany's spectacular gains of the past 14 months will cease being assets and, to an increasing degree, become liabilities unless he can speedily transform the promise of speedy victory into a reality.

So far he has failed to do so. Four months after the fall of France the British are not only still in the field but are intensifying their aerial offensive against the Third Reich. No wonder, then, that Hitler and Mussolini have been forced to devote a good deal of time and energy during recent weeks in an effort to "organize" Europe as a solid bloc against Great Britain and a base of operations against the British Empire.

THERE CAN BE no discounting the dangers to Britain arising out of recent Axis activities in the Balkans, France and Spain. Britain's position in the Mediterranean may soon be seriously menaced. For with both France and Spain in the Axis camp Toulon, Bizerte, Dakar, Casablanca, the Balearics, the Canary Islands and the ports of Spain would be at Hitler's and Mussolini's disposal as bases of attack against the British lifeline in the West Mediterranean while another thrust is made in the eastern end of the sea.

The frantic diplomatic activities of the Axis during the last few weeks is nonetheless a confession of past failure. They suggest that the Axis has been unable by its own efforts and own resources alone to smash British resistance. Germany and Italy need allies, even if these allies are not the coequals but the serfs of the Berlin-Rome combination, to be forced into line by threats of dire punishment rather than by the spontaneous pressure of mutual aims and aspirations.

THE FRENCH people are not being asked whether they approve or disapprove of the deal negotiated in secret by Hitler and the Vichy government. They had nothing to say about it, just as they had nothing to say about the armistice terms, the overthrow of the republic and the repudiation by the Vichy regime of those standards and values of right conduct which, in the past, made France a citadel of liberty and civilization.

It will not be they who will be allied to Hitler—only Laval and the members of the government willing to play his devious game. And if Hitler's new campaign against Great Britain does not result in speedy success the people of France, like the peoples of Poland and Czecho-Slovakia and Norway and the other conquered countries, will increasingly resent the invidious role thrust upon them.

Indeed, one factor which may have hastened the conclusion of the deal between Hitler and Laval may very well have been the rising disaffection among the French people both in the occupied and unoccupied zones. That was a menace both to Berlin and to Vichy and thus provided a basis of cooperation between the two.

In joining the Axis, the Vichy government has also put the French, if not France, in that increasingly numerous Fifth Column with which Hitler will have to reckon should his present strategy go awry. But not all the individual disaffection in the world will make any difference on the continent if the Fuehrer's plans succeed and Great Britain is overwhelmed.

Bygone Elections

By Paul N. Furman

Solid South Broken

For the first time since the War Between the States the Republicans broke into the Solid South in the election of 1928. Virginia, North Carolina, Florida and Texas, which had been traditionally Democratic, gave the Republicans 50 electoral votes.

HOOVER

President Coolidge might have had a renomination, but in August, 1927, he issued his famous "I do not choose to run for President in 1928" declaration. This was interpreted to mean he did not wish to be renominated. However, the reverse is said to have been his desire.

Herbert Hoover, of California, Secretary of Commerce, was an outstanding preconvention contender for the Republican nomination.

When the National Convention met in Kansas City on June 12, he was nominated on the first ballot and Senator Charles Curtis, of Kansas, was named for Vice President.

When the Democrats held their convention in Houston, Tex., on June 26, Franklin D. Roosevelt, then Governor of New York, presented the name of his predecessor, Alfred E. Smith, to the delegates as he had done in 1920 and 1924. Smith won easily and Senator Joseph T. Robinson, of Arkansas was given second place.

Hoover enjoyed great personal popularity because of his distinguished services in distribution of food to countries impoverished by the World War. Bitter antagonism to Smith was developed.

Smith was snowed under, carrying only eight States with 87 electoral votes. Hoover had 444 electoral votes and almost 6,500,000 more votes than Smith. He was riding high on the wave of personal popularity with little idea of the tremendous letdown that was ahead of him.

If we were to name the most distinguishing characteristic of these fine Mabbit Cheviot Worsteds, we would without hesitation call it "Character." Their semi-rough texture, in restrained shades of Blue, Brown, and Gray bespeak a quiet dignity, yet they do not lack in animation or color. The professional or business man will appreciate the "well bred" appearance of these well-tailored suits.

Hunt Breakfast Given By Fort Myer Officers

Successful Party Follows Early Sunday Morning Ride (but Without the Hunt); Many Informal Parties Mark Week-End

A "hunt breakfast" (but without a hunt) was given yesterday by the bachelor officers over at Fort Myer. The men organized a very successful party to follow the Sunday morning ride which almost everybody takes at the Army post—though they don't have a hunt.

Among the "regulars" at this form of exercise is the chief of staff, Gen. George C. Marshall, who showed up with Mrs. Marshall yesterday.

The general gets up at 6:30 every morning for a ride on his horse, and takes another after work is over. He was in riding costume yesterday as was his stepdaughter, Miss Molly Brown. They had been out for a canter together before the party.

The officers at Fort Myer, who this year are mostly reserves, staged their breakfast on the lawn in front of their quarters. Small tables, centered with chrysanthemums, had been set up on the grass. Guests were served heaping plates of scrambled eggs, sausages and hot biscuits, topped off with steaming coffee.

Most of those present wore informal riding attire, as requested on the officers' invitations. Altogether there were some 150 present.

Tea Parties Feature Week-End

With the exception of this one comparatively early morning party, most of the social events of the week-end centered about the tea table. Several pleasant parties were arranged on the spur of the moment as small affairs, but grew and grew until they became sizable groups.

Former Texans were among those who gathered at the apartment of the Secretary of Commerce and Mrs. Jesse Jones on Saturday afternoon. Mrs. Jones had asked a few in for tea to meet Miss Corinna Mura and Miss Jane Blaffer. Miss Mura, who is originally from Texas, is a talented singer, and is spending several days here with Mrs. Irene Caldwell. Miss Blaffer hails from Houston and has known Mr. and Mrs. Jones for a long time.

Much to everybody's surprise and delight, Mr. Jones got away from his desk in time to drop in for the latter half of the party. He produced a guitar and persuaded Miss Mura to sing. Her Spanish numbers were received with particular pleasure, and most of the guests were of the opinion that Carmen Miranda had better look to her laurels.

Much admired was a modern portrait by a French artist which Mrs. Jones has acquired. "It looks like a streamlined Madonna" was the comment of one guest.

Procopes Among Guests

Among those who dropped in for a cup of tea were the Minister of Finland and Mme. Procope, she topping off her ensemble with a brace of silver foxes; Stewart McDonald, Federal Housing Administrator; Mrs. Donald Nelson, of Glencoe, Ill. (her husband is well; the Director of the Export-he is visiting Mrs. Irene Caldwell; the Director of the Export-Import Bank, and Mrs. Warren Lee Pierson, and Mr. and Mrs. Claude Hamilton.

Another very successful afternoon party of the week-end was given by George Abell. About 30 friends gathered in his apartment on Twentieth Street, among them several out-of-towners. The latter included Dr. Edward Vaughn Kaher, president of the Netherlands Chamber of Commerce, and his attractive Hungarian-born wife.

Mrs. Walton Butterworth, whose husband is with our London Embassy, said she had postponed for a few days her proposed visit to New Orleans. She is staying with Mr. and Mrs. L. Corrin Strong here.

Several from the Netherlands legation staff were present, among them the Counselor and Countess van Rechteren Limpurg. Other guests included Mr. and Mrs. Aldace Walker, Miss Carolyn Nash, Mr. and Mrs. Jean Delattre Seguy, Glenn Abbey, the retiring financial counselor of the Rumanian legation and Mme. Boncesco, Capt. Ellis Stone with his daughter, Baroness Perenyi, Mrs. Marshall Exnicios, Mrs. Marion Warburg and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Pell.

E. R. Blandins Will Live in Pa.

Ensign and Mrs. Eugene Raphel Blandin, who were married October 19, will make their home at Hallowell, Pa. The bride is the former Miss Ruth Margaret Leavitt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Howland Leavitt, of McLean, Va., and Ensign Blandin is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Blandin, of Akron, Ohio.

The couple were wed at the Leavitt home. Miss Anne Elizabeth Leavitt was maid of honor for her sister, and Midshipman Victor Blandin served as his brother's best man. A small reception followed the ceremony.

L. L. Sniders On Bridal Trip

Lieut. (j. g.) and Mrs. Lewis Levi Snider, who were married on Thursday, left immediately following a reception at the Governors Island Officers Club for a honeymoon. The bride is the former Miss Charlotte Hannum, daughter of Col. Warren Thomas Hannum, U. S. A., and Mrs. Hannum, and Lieut. Snider is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Frederick E. Snider, of Faulkton, S. Dak.

The couple was married at Governors Island, N. Y., at the Chapel of St. Cornelius. The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a princess gown of ivory satin with a bertha of heirloom lace. Her long tulle veil fell from a coronet of matching lace caught with orange blossoms and she carried orchids. Her only attendant, Mrs. Robert Hendueles, of New York, chose a princess frock of green and gray marquisette and a coronet with a matching veil. She carried yellow roses.

Lieut (j. g.) William R. MacDonald was best man, and the ushers were Lieuts. (j. g.) H. C. Tipton, K. B. Smith, L. L. Schock and W. M. Huey.

Col. Hannum is the division engineer, South Pacific Division, stationed in San Francisco. Mrs. Snider is a niece of Col. Reiff H. Hannum and of Mrs. Herbert Deakyne, wife of Brig. Gen. Deakyne. She is a sister of Warren T. Hannum, jr., U. S. A., and is a graduate of the Roland Park Country School, Baltimore, and of Vassar College.

Lieut. Snider attended the Devitt Preparatory School, Washington, and is a graduate of the United States Naval Academy, class of 1933. He is now on duty with the U. S. S. Gregory, Brooklyn Navy Yard, N. Y.

Sibley Guild Plans 'Hospital Night'

The Woman's Guild of Sibley Memorial Hospital has planned an elaborate program for "hospital night," to be observed Friday at 8 o'clock in Rust Hall, 1150 North Capitol Street.

Dues from the Sibley Circles will be presented by representatives of 42 churches. There will also be presentation of flags to the hospital and to the nurses' chapel with formal ceremonies.

Each year the guild, after consulting the hospital heads, undertakes some project that will add materially to the comfort of the patients and the prestige of the institution. This year it will renovate and equip the hospital kitchens and bring them up to date.

Cash gifts from the membership provide the funds for the purchase of equipment and also for the welfare cases the guild cares for regularly.

Mrs. Samuel A. Mooers, president of the guild, will preside at Friday's program.

Democratic Club To Hear Ruby Black

Miss Ruby Black, Washington newspaper woman and author of the recently published book, "Eleanor Roosevelt, a Biography," will be the luncheon speaker today at the Woman's National Democratic Club at 12:30 p. m. Her subject will be "Writing a Book."

Mrs. J. Paul Yoder is in charge of the luncheon, assisted by Mrs. Ernest Davenport, Mrs. H. E. C. Bryant, Mrs. Edmund Pendleton, Mrs. Paul Wooton, Mrs. Arthur D. Condon and Mrs. Wesley Zane. Among the newspaper women who will be present are Mrs. J. Fred Essary, president of the Women's National Press Club, and Miss Katherine Brooks, president of the Newspaper Women's Club of Washington.

Mrs. J. Curtis Shears is chairman of the hospitality committee and Miss Mary E. Bakewell, second vice president of the Woman's National Democratic Club, will preside and introduce Miss Black.

Luncheon Today

The Capital division of the Women's Farm and Garden Association will meet today for luncheon at the Highlands at 12:30.

The Hunt Country

By Nina Carter Tabb

MISS ANNE HARRISON BYRD, of Upper Brandon, on the James River, and James Keith, of Fairfax Court House, formerly of Warrenton, will be married on Saturday afternoon at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Otway Byrd. Only the immediate families and a few close friends will attend.

Among Mr. Keith's family who will motor down for the ceremony are his mother and brother, Mrs. John Keith and Jack Keith. The latter will be best man. Mrs. B. Lauriston Hardin, the bridegroom's aunt, will be there, also another aunt, Mrs. Thomas Randolph Keith; Dr. and Mrs. B. Lauriston Hardin, jr., Dr. and Mrs. Charles P. Howze, Mr. and Mrs. John Bailey, Mrs. Anne Keith Drake, all of Washington; Mr. and Mrs. Taylor Scott Hardin, of Upperville; Mr. and Mrs. Melvelle Bearns, and Mr. Keith's aunts, Mrs. Edward Spilman, and Miss Kate Keith, of Warrenton.

MRS. ANTHONY KENNEDY, of Warrenton, has issued invitations to the marriage of her daughter, Miss Mary Selden Kenney, to Allan Royal Moulton, of Washington, on Friday, November 8, at 4:30 at the Kennedy home, Culpeper Street, Warrenton.

Many parties are being given for the young couple before their wedding. Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Smith were hosts at cocktails yesterday at the home of Mrs. Smith's mother, Mrs. Richard Barrett, of Warrenton. Mrs. Smith will be matron of honor and her husband will be best man.

Tomorrow Mr. and Mrs. Donald Jones will entertain for the couple at their home in Washington. Bobby Woods, who will be an usher, gave a dinner for them at the Shoreham on Thursday.

Practically every day next week there'll be parties for Miss Kennedy and her fiance. On Monday Mrs. William C. Marshall, whose granddaughter, Miss Sarah Warren, is to be a bridesmaid, will entertain at tea. Another bridesmaid, Miss Betsy Charrington, has cards out for dinner on Thursday for the bridal party. On Wednesday Miss Kennedy will give a luncheon at her mother's home for the bridesmaids.

ANOTHER WEDDING of great interest in Virginia is that of Miss Bertha Mae Johnson, of Clifton Forge, Va., to Dr. William Morton Bogart, of Charlotte, N. C. The ceremony will take place Saturday, November 9, at the quaint old Chapel of Our Saviour, Fauquier County, Va.

The bride-to-be is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Carlyle Johnson, who were married in the same church just 25 years ago come November 23. Mrs. Johnson was formerly Miss Bertha Furr, of Fauquier County, and the prospective bride has spent much time in this part of Virginia with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Furr.

A RECEPTION at the Furr home near Beverley Hills will follow the ceremony. Miss Betty Johnson and Mrs. John Rust, jr., sisters of the bride, will be among her attendants, who also include Mr. Bogart's sister, Miss Harriet Bogart. Dr. Bogart will have as his best man and ushers his classmates of 1938 at Johns Hopkins University.

The couple will live in Minneapolis, where Dr. Bogart is with the University of Minnesota.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Henry James Becker have invitations out for a cocktail party on Wednesday, November 6, at 5 o'clock at their home between Gainesville and Warrenton. Their daughter, Miss Doris Becker, is to be one of the bridesmaids at the Kennedy-Moulton wedding.

Miss Hartman To Be Wed Nov. 9

Mr. and Mrs. Harleigh H. Hartman announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Geraldanna Patricia Hartman, to Joseph Carleton Summer, of Detroit.

The prospective bride attended Trinity College and was graduated from Marygrove College, Detroit, in 1938. Since her graduation she has been teaching at the Salina School, Dearborn, Mich.

Harris & Ewing.
MISS HARTMAN

Mr. Summer attended Wayne College, Detroit. The wedding will take place in that city November 9.

Mrs. Offenberg To Attend Conclave

Mrs. Moe Offenberg, president of the Washington chapter of Hadassah, will leave tomorrow evening for the national Hadassah convention in Cincinnati, October 30 through November 6.

She will be accompanied by the following delegates: Mrs. Fred S. Gichner, a member of the National Youth Aliyah committee; Mrs. Isadore Breslau, Mrs. Robert J. Rothstein, Mrs. Louis Janof, Mrs. Lawrence Koenigsberger, Mrs. William I. Ogus, Mrs. Bernard Danzansky, Mrs. Isadore Bregman, Mrs. Lewis Furr, Mrs. Leo S. Schoenthal and Mrs. I. S. Turover.

Mrs. Raphael Turover, a past president of the Washington chapter, who is now president of the Seaboard Region, will represent the region at the convention.

Hurleys to Make Home in Capital

Mr. and Mrs. Jerome J. Hurley, who were married October 20, will be at home at 1421 Massachusetts Avenue after a honeymoon in New York. The bride is the former Miss Mary Theresa Michael, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Irvin Michael, and represented Berkeley Springs, W. Va., near where her parents live, at the first Tomato Festival held there in 1936. Mr. Hurley is the son of Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Hurley, of Washington.

D. C. Area Social Set on Review As Hoofbeats Sound at Laurel

Mrs. Waggaman Pulver Entertains In Clubhouse; Out of Towners Include Du Ponts and Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt

Saturday was a great day at the Laurel racetrack where perfect weather and twin-feature events, the Washington Handicap and the rich Selima Stakes, combined to draw a record-breaking throng which included industrial magnates, famous breeders, high-ranking Government officials and social leaders.

The Assistant Secretary of State, Breckinridge Long, was on hand, watching events with his daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Willcox; Mr. and Mrs. Lee P. Warren, Mr. and Mrs. William Stanley, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Woodward, Mrs. Elmer Thomas, wife of the Senator from Oklahoma; Mr. and Mrs. Ben Hall Lambe, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Montgomery, Mr. and Mrs. Dion Kerr, whose True Call was a close second in the Washington Handicap; Maj. Gen. and Mrs. John K. Herr, and George Angus Garrett were among those in the throng.

Mrs. Waggaman Pulver was hostess at a luncheon in the clubhouse, one of those merry parties which continued throughout the afternoon. Her guests were Mrs. George Pettengill, Mrs. Lawrence Wood Robert, jr., Mr. and Mrs. John Caswell, Dr. Roberto Mendoza, Jack Vietor, who recently acquired the old Red Fox Tavern in Middleburg; Charles Hume and Gladstone Williams.

Walter P. Chrysler, jr., one of whose major interests is horses, was host at a party. C. S. Howard, of California, came on for the day's events, and although Movie Producer Myron Selznick, whose Can't Wait won the Washington Handicap, just nosing out Dion Kerr's True Call, couldn't come, other Californians celebrated for him.

Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt, Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Brann, of Frederick; members of the Parr clan from Baltimore, the duPonts from Wilmington, Mr. and Mrs. H. Riegel and Mr. and Mrs. S. Backer, also from Wilmington, were eager spectators. From behind huge binoculars Col. E. R. Bradley watched the thrilling events. Mr. and Mrs. William Woodward, down from New York, she to present the trophy in the Selima Stakes, were constantly surrounded by old friends among the turf big-wigs.

Maj. G. L. Stryker, president of the track, and Mrs. Stryker received in their box throughout the afternoon, all came to congratulate the Major on the success of the season at Laurel. Just three more days and Laurel's 1940 racing will be over for another year, the crowds going on to Vanderbilt's Pimlico.

Miss Hendricks Fetes 'Sisters'

Several members of the younger set drove out to Normandy Farm yesterday for a breakfast given by Miss Marjorie Hendricks for the Big Sisters of the Metropolitan Police Boys Club.

Among those present were the Misses Molly Stonestreet, Lucille Bernard, Grace Colliflower, Rose Colliflower, Achsah Dorsey, Justine Fairbank, Barbara Henning, Patricia Hill, Nancy Hoskinson, Suzanne Kappler, Patsy Kelsey, Betty Mattingly, Eleanor Mattingly, Aline Munson, Virginia Pennington, Justine Sampson, Dorothy Shelton, Betty Ann Swagart, Betty Wright, Mary Morris Wright and Aileen Wrightson. Also Mrs. Basil Cooper and Mrs. James McSherry Wimsatt.

The Big Sisters are planning a large party in December at Hotel Twenty-four Hundred. The proceeds will go toward building their second cabin at Camp Ernest Brown, Scotland, Md.

Fales' Assignment To Tokyo Canceled On Eve of Sailing

Just after arriving on the West Coast to sail for Japan, where he was to have been Vice Consul in Tokyo, Herbert P. Fales' assignment there was canceled by the State Department. Instead, he has been named to duty in Washington.

This doubtless will be good news to Mrs. Fales and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John B. Hyde, of Georgetown. Mr. and Mrs. Fales, in preparing to leave for the troubled Orient, decided to place their baby in charge of its grandparents here rather than risk taking it with them. So it was left behind when Mrs. Fales went to the West Coast with her husband. Now the little family will be reunited again.

Middleburg Sets Race Date

The eighth fall meeting of the 20-year-old Middleburg Race Association will be held for the benefit of the Loudoun Hospital, Leesburg, Va., on the beautiful Glenwood Park Course Saturday, November 9. A very important conflict was done away with in the steeplechasing and hunt meeting sport calendar this fall when the United Hunts Racing Association canceled their second day's racing in favor of Middleburg. Thus the finest class chasers, hurdle and flat horses in America are certain to be performing on Virginia turf the second Saturday in November.

Daniel C. Sands, racing secretary, has announced considerable increases to all purses in the six-event card, which includes two races over hurdles, two over brush, one over timber, and one on the flat over turf, and features the Glenwood National Steeplechase, carrying a purse of $1,500. This race of 3 miles over Grand National fences, which annually brings out the Nation's great brush horses to contest their strides over the 11-year-old turf, has had a purse raise of $500.

The R. Penn Smith, jr., Challenge Plate, of 3½ miles over timber is the finale of timber racing for 1940, winding up one of the greatest seasons over post and rail in the past decade. Outstanding stars of timber racing this season, including C. E. Tuttle's Blockade, three-time Maryland Hunt Cup winner; William Clothier's Henchman, winner of most races this year; P. G. Daly's Mansfield Park, Meadow Brook Hunt Cup winner, among others, will get their final racing effort of the year at Glenwood Park Course on November 9.

Notes of Society

Official and Residential

The Chinese Ambassador, Dr. Hu-Shih, and Dr. T. V. Soong, stopped in New York for a stay at the Ambassador en route to upper New York State, where the Ambassador delivered several speeches. He will return to Washington shortly.

Also at the Ambassador over the week-end were Rear Admiral and Mrs. J. H. Towers.

The French Ambassador, Gaston Henri-Haye, is at the Waldorf-Astoria in New York. Col. Bertrand Vigne of the embassy is with him.

Lieut. Col. J. W. Miner and Mrs. Miner have arrived at Fort Myer from Fort Douglas, Utah.

Mrs. McCook Knox is in New York for a brief stay.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Wideman, of 3232 Woodley Road, and their daughter, Miss Jane S. Wideman, are at the Waldorf-Astoria in New York.

Mrs. George Phillips has issued invitations to a bridge luncheon tomorrow at the Silver Bowl. There will be three tables at the party, the first of a series she will give during the season.

Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Gallagher of Washington, are at the Waldorf-Astoria in New York.

Mr. J. P. Compton and Mrs. E. B. Calvert have joined Commander J. P. Compton at the Hotel New Weston in New York.

Mrs. Rowen Lemly and Mrs. Royal Johnson, of Washington, are visiting the former's son-in-law and daughter, Capt. and Mrs. Stephen Fuqua, jr., at their home at West Point.

D. C. Junior League Plans Anniversary Luncheon at Hotel

The Junior League of Washington is expecting a large turnout for its twenty-seventh anniversary luncheon to be held at the Shoreham on Wednesday, when Milo Perkins will be guest speaker.

To avoid confusion and to aid guests to find their place at table ten girls will act as ushers and others will be stationed at a ticket table by the door of the west ballroom.

Mrs. Frances Carter, Mrs. Joseph C. Quinn, Miss Elizabeth Sladen and Mrs. Edwin H. Somers will take tickets and Miss Louise Burke will head the ushers who include the Misses Carolyn and Sidney Beall, Barbara Bradley, Julie Camp, Juliet Dulaney, Nancy Glover, Patricia Griffin, Marjorie Lincoln, Dorothy Sowers, and Ann Sterrett.

A. B. Campbell Back From the Homestead

Arthur Bradley Campbell, son of the late Marchioness of Huntly, who has been at The Homestead in Hot Springs, Va., and later in Washington, has returned to his suite at the Ambassador Hotel in New York City.

His cousins, the Misses Isabella and Marjorie Meuser, of Washington, who were presented to society in Washington last season, and are now in the West, also will return here soon.

CAPITAL WHIRL

By SALLY SWIFT

MISS BEATRICE PHILLIPS, daughter of the United States Ambassador to Italy, was one of the guests Countess de Bailliet-Latour invited to the first luncheon she has given in her little Georgetown house. Marianna said it was in the nature of a tryout for her domestic arrangements for the winter, and the other guests, who were Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Rumbold, Angus Malcolm and Charles van der Straten, son of the Belgian Ambassador, agreed their hostesses' prospects for a comfortable season are excellent.

BEA PHILLIPS and Charlie van der Straten exchanged war reminiscences, as they have both recently returned from the European battlefields, he badly wounded and Bea fresh from German-occupied Paris. She confirmed the reports that the German occupation of the former French capital is being conducted in an orderly manner, and that the German soldiers are buying, or have bought, all the silk stockings and silk dresses in the shops to send home to their wives and sweethearts. She said they will buy any silk dress in any size, knowing the recipient will be only too glad to do whatever remodeling is necessary, just to get a bit of silk finery after years of doing without.

AT THE FIRST of her service with Miss Anne Morgan's committee in France, Bea worked in a refugee canteen near Rethel, and was then shifted over into Alsace. She reached Paris early in July. She is visiting Mr. and Mrs. James Clement Dunn, father and mother of Countess de Bailliet-Latour, until she moves into an apartment at the Fairfax later this week.

A LETTER from New York brings the information that Mme. Guy dal Piaz and her husband are staying at Locust Valley, Long Island, while they are hunting for an apartment in town for the winter. They were both very popular here during the time he was attached to the French Embassy, and Mme. dal Piaz says they hope to come to the Capital for occasional visits to keep alive their friendships here.

Speaking of New York, I hear that some Washingtonians are planning to go up for the Chinese Relief Ball, to be held at the Waldorf on Friday, where Henri Bernstein, the playwright and art critic, is to be one of the principal speakers. Attractive, red-haired Mrs. James Finan, who is one of the hard-working sponsors of the ball, was relating its projected attractions to her friends during the short visit she paid to Washington last week.

THE LULL in the activities of Congress has discouraged but not completely stopped the flow of tourists. Dwindling crowds of them still troop through the Capitol every day, looking dutifully at the empty seats usually occupied by the Nation's legislators. The other day, I saw a well-dressed, good-looking young blonde step out of the elevator at the Senate gallery. She had a paper bag under her arm, and walked directly to a chair by one of the doors, letting her crowd go ahead without her.

She calmly took off her shoes and fished out of the paper bag a pair of bright blue, heel-less bedroom slippers, fetchingly edged with white bunny fur, put her shoes in the bag and shuffled off to catch up to her sightseers—apparently an experienced sufferer from museum feet.

I HEAR that Lady Lindsay, wife of the former British Ambassador here, will be among the out-of-town visitors who are coming to Washington for the opening of the Byzantine Library at Dumbarton Oaks on Friday. She will stay with Mr. and Mrs. Robert Woods Bliss while she is here and will arrive in time for the private view, which will go on from 9 to 11 on Friday night.

The many Washington friends of Senora de Cardenas, wife of the Spanish Ambassador, who were so cheered at the recent news that she had been able to arrange her departure from Bucharest, where she was visiting her family when the Balkan crisis arose, were plunged into dejection again by the information that she is still there, threatened with appendicitis, and that her doctor will not permit her to travel until her health improves.

Cains to Reside In Virginia

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Edward Cain, who were married October 17, will make their home at Buckingham Village, Va., on their return to Washington the middle of November. Mrs. Cain is the former Miss Carolyn Crawford, daughter of W. H. Crawford, of Morristown, Tenn., and Mr. Cain is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Cain, of San Antonio, Tex. He is associated with the office of the Sergeant at Arms of the Senate.

The couple were wed in the sacristy of St. Matthew's Cathedral, the Rev. A. J. Burgroff officiating. Miss Billie Crawford was her sister's maid of honor, and Fred Sykes was best man. The bride wore a slate blue suit trimmed in fox fur with matching accessories and a corsage of orchids and tea roses. Miss Crawford chose black crepe with a cluster of sweetheart roses.

D. C. Group Going To Jewish Parley

The second biennial meeting of the Midatlantic States Conference of the National Council of Jewish Juniors will be held in Charleston, S. C., on Friday and Saturday. Among the cities which will be represented there are Baltimore, Washington, Richmond, Winston-Salem, N. C., Columbia, S. C., and Charleston.

Attending from this section as officers of the Midatlantic States Conference are Miss Dordy Schiller, president, and Mrs. Edith Cooper, as delegates from this section, and the Misses Bernice Berenson and Celia Lisensky as alternates.

The following members are attending as visitors: The Misses Rose Lippman, Laura Vogel, Beatrice Hurowitz, Elizabeth Satloff, Rose Braverman, Yetta Okun, Mildred Levanthal, Louise Rose, Ruth Jacobson, Mrs. Samuel Rudolph and Mrs. Michael Shapiro.

Mrs. Arthur J. Stephens, chairman, senior advisory committee, and Mrs. Sylvan King, vice chairman, senior advisory committee, are also attending as visitors and representatives of the National Council of Jewish Women.

The Children's Hour of Fashion

Ralph Stone, dark and handsome brother of 3½-year-old Barbara, gazes admiringly down at his sister's new kindergarten costume. Both tots have just finished personally supervising their own purchases at the new Cradle to Pigtail Shop for babes and tots up to 6. Ralph managed to squeeze in under "the age limit," being just 6. His dapper Byrd cloth suit of green with red piping is both wind and rain proof and consists of coat, trousers and ear-muffed cap. The Gentler Sex

By Malvina Lindsay

Big Business Woman

"Oh, am I late? . . . Well so many things came up and people have simply been driving me mad—literally I haven't had time to breathe since I got up, and I knew I just had to squeeze in this manicure—oh! say, before I start, could I put through a call to New York? . . .

"You know this is simply killing me—no, no don't file them too low . . . Yes, long and pointed. You know the whole thing is I really hate to live in such a turmoil—oh, by the way, I told my office to call me here if anything came up. You'll let me know, won't you? . . . It just seems that I can't turn my back on the place a minute without something getting balled up.

"My, this is the first time today I've really had a chance to breathe . . . Yes, with three phones on my desk, and all of them ringing all the time—oh, say I'm expecting a call from a Mr. Glint at Strutters' and I told my office to transfer it here.

"Now, what time do you suppose I'll get out of here? . . . You see, I have to rush on to the cocktail party Flash & Co. are giving to open their new nut cup department. And then after that Barker Brothers are having cocktails at the Swank for Sally Smirk . . . Yes, the movie star who's here for National Rutabaga Week. And then tonight I simply have to be at Tinkle & Tinkle's fashion show—beg pardon? . . . Oh, my New York call . . . And my fingers are all wet! Oh, well, I can wipe them off . . . I hope you don't mind waiting. I won't be but a minute.

Well, thank goodness, that's out of the way—what? . . . My office . . . What was the message? . . . A Mr. Slick was in to see me? . . . From Tootems? Now, who on earth could he be?

"You see, so many people are always trying to see me . . . Yes; they simply mob the office . . . Well, I do try to see them by appointment, of course, but—well, you know how it is. Why there's one little woman who's been in at least seven times and just waited around for hours—oh, that reminds me! I forgot to tell my little secretary something!

"Now, how on earth can I phone with all this oil—oh, I tell you! If you'd just bring the telephone here you could plug it in and hold the receiver for me.

"You wouldn't believe it, but it's just this way all the time. Tomorrow's even worse . . . Yes, I have to go to that luncheon the Sequin Slip people are giving . . . and then the Molar Gumdrop people are having a cocktail party . . . and then a man's coming from Baltimore from the Eastern Seaboard Hot Air Co. for a conference—beg pardon . . . Oh, I believe I'll take Exhibition Rose . . . No, I don't like too conspicuous a polish . . . Yes, all the way to the tips . . . No, no, moons!

"You know, nature never intended for people to live this way—beg pardon? . . . Oh, the call from Mr. Glint! Would you mind plugging the phone in again here?

"Well, you can just see for yourself how it is. It really isn't right. No, it's unnatural . . . You know what I'd like? . . . I'd like a little quiet place way down in the country where I'd never hear a phone again—oh, say! I almost forgot! I have to make a call to Chicago right this minute! Yes, I promised Mr. Glint . . . Yes, he wants a lot of the Pomeranian dog leash people to get together right away on a really BIG cocktail party."

Mary Haworth's Mail

Spinster Implores Advice for Young Friend, 22, Enmeshed in Affair With Heartless Bachelor

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Nine years ago I met a young Southern woman who worked for the same company I did (and for which I still work). A beautiful friendship developed. I have visited them once a year since, and have met her family. They are fine people.

Two years ago my friend's young and only sister came to Washington. She was then 20. I helped her get a position with my company and within six months she was dating a man member of the firm—a man 14 years older than she, and a man with a shady reputation. He is a bachelor, and, to some women, must be rather charming.

I dropped remarks from time to time about the wisdom of going out with younger men—but to no avail. Believe me, I never realized until two weeks ago just how serious things had become. I learned (and she admitted) that he has been her lover for more than a year. She is desperately unhappy. Recently, owing to a death in the firm and consequent reorganization, the man has moved up to a fine position.

It seems that he had assured her earlier that they would be married. But when she pressed the point recently, he told her he didn't want to get married, was afraid of marriage and that they would be unhappy if married. His frankness in this instance is the only admirable thing I know about him. However, she says he doesn't mean it and that eventually they will be married. Meantime, the intimacy continues.

Miss Haworth, I am frantic about the situation. I feel a certain responsibility for this child, because of my friendship with her sister and her parents. They would never recover if they knew about it. I really think that because I am a spinster she considers my opinion worthless. So I am hoping that perhaps you can say something that will bring her to her senses.

Incidentally, the man treats her heartlessly, breaking dates, going with other women and in general making her life miserable. Please give us your answer soon. Sincerely, FRANTIC.

Girl Lacks Desire To Be Succored

DEAR FRANTIC: Since the girl turns a deaf ear to your sympathetic, urgently protective recommendations, one must assume that she lacks the will to be emancipated from her current emotional enslavement to the man. Despite his callous irresponsibility, she loves him, and is determined to cling to him on almost any terms, sustained by the piteous hope that he will one day reward her love by legalizing the relationship.

Such blind devotion of maid for man does sometimes make its point, and the exploited woman's patient endurance of "hope deferred" is not the least factor in the eventual triumph of her love over his selfishness. But the chances of a seasoned bachelor's marrying a gullible conquest are dangerously slim from the start—and they grow progressively slimmer as (and if) she becomes sharply or tearfully insistent upon a ceremony. Marriage pursuant to possession, in such instances, is the notable exception to the rule—not the typical denouement.

A worldly man's romantic dalliance is vastly different, in motive and sentiment, from an ardent affair of the kind into which impetuous young sweethearts sometimes drift despite their best intentions; and it is this latter type of amour which more often results in marriage; although not always, by any means. But because young lovers (whose very compatability has been their will's undoing), do occasionally retain the purity of purpose and emotional integrity to rectify their mistake as best they can—the supposition develops in the minds of some that premature sensual indulgence isn't injurious to love. Nothing could be farther from the truth.

Moreover, your young friend fails to comprehend that, from the man's viewpoint, sheer sensuality has nothing whatsoever to do with love. It is likely, indeed, that her paramour has by now pretty well forfeited his capacity to love genuinely. If he is an habitual philanderer, as seems to be the case, no doubt he has long since come to think of women simply in terms of conquest, and of an intimate relationship strictly in terms of erotic experimentation.

He has no knowledge of and no interest in love as a powerful, creative, unified expression of the whole personality in relation to a complementary personality of the opposite sex. He does not aspire—indeed, he is afraid—to give himself completely to one woman and achieve, in full collaboration with her, a positive identification with life in its spiritual, social and biological aspects. In flitting from conquest, to conquest he is running away from his biographical and social responsibilities as an adult human being—and from this type of coward and shirker it is futile to expect a fair test now or later.

M. H.

Movie Star's Slimming Diet

Hollywood, Calif.—With clothes slimming down to sliver-like proportions and figures compelled to do likewise, the low-caloried diet and hip bends that whittle are popular in Hollywood once again. But diets that leave one looking beautiful and feeling anaemic are taboo. The girls demand to be thin but energetic, which isn't the large order it seems.

An "energy diet" consisting mainly of proteins for strength is a habit with Rosemary Lane, who for one week each two months eliminates starches, sweets and liquids with meals from her diet. At 4 she has a tea-time snack of buttermilk with bran muffin. Rosemary has to hold her nose when she drinks buttermilk but sees it through because of its beneficial qualities. The diet allows her one egg for breakfast, lean broiled meat for lunch, the same for dinner.

Beauty Secrets

Pompadour Hats Call for Neat Brows

WITH HATS shifting to back of heads and coiffures mounting in extreme pompadours, the feminine brow becomes more and more conspicuous. To meet the 1940 standards of beauty, the forehead must be high or give the illusion of height.

A low hair-line may be raised and the ragged one straightened with tweezers. You can make the forehead more prominent by using a lighter shade of powder on that area. Keep the brows natural. The pin-point eyebrow is dated and looks particularly artificial with hair-dos sweeping grandly upward. A wholesale weeding out of brows gives a startled expression to the whole face. The normal brow is one that follows the curve of the upper lid.

When expression lines appear on the brows, whisk out the cold cream jar and massage in a gentle, rotary manner. Actresses stress brow beauty to such an extreme that they watch scowl and frown lines like anxious mothers.

Once you have the brows shaped to flatter the contour of your face, tidy up the hair-line. Before donning your hat wash away accumulated powder with cotton dippen in astringent.

Clothing Great Need of British Evacuees, Mrs. Crum Told in Letter From Mother

MRS JOHN CRUM, an attractive young Englishwoman, works hard these days at Bundles for Britain, sending off packages to her homeland. And in a village north of London her mother, Mrs. Ralph St. John-Brooks, American by birth, works just as hard for the Women's Voluntary Services, unwrapping the bundles as they arrive and distributing the contents to the 1,000 evacuees billeted in the town. In a letter Mrs. Crum received last week, her mother wrote of the need for woolen garments. Many of the refugees have nothing but the pajamas they wore when bombs forced them to leave home, she says. Because of limited supplies, she can give out only one change of clothing per person. Most of her "customers" are from London's East End, and refer to her as "Dearie" or even "Ducks."

MRS. CRUM

Mrs. Crum and other workers here already have sent 117 bundles of clothes to England. "In order to meet the demand for more woolens," she says, "we are holding a sale of summer clothing which has been given to us; we'll use the proceeds at once to buy warm things for children." The wife of a British army officer, Mrs. Crum, with her two small daughters, is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Sheild, of Chevy Chase, Md. Mr. Sheild is clerk of the House Appropriations Committee.

Washington has lost one of its most familiar symbols—the swastika adorning Sloan's Auction Gallery. "We have given up the swastika reluctantly," Mr. Sloan says. "Many customers told us they hoped we wouldn't, but others criticized us for keeping it. It's not a Nazi swastika, of course. We've used it since 1908; and Hitler's symbol goes in a clockwise direction, while ours is counter-clockwise. But most people didn't stop to notice the difference."

SCIENCE MARCHES ON—An inn at Emmitsburg, Md., boasts a gadget which might well be adopted more generally in women's rooms, source of many a "lost and found" ad. On the inside of each door is a hinged shelf. As you close the door, the shelf is lowered to a horizontal position, thus proving handy for purse and gloves. But there's no danger of forgetting your belongings, because as you open the door to leave, the shelf returns to the perpendicular.

Facial Calisthenics

Hollywood, Calif.—Marjorie Rambeau credits her expressive face to a set of "facial calisthenics" she does each night before retiring. These are a left-over from her early dramatic training.

Man Decides To Do or Diet. And Succeeds

By Ida Jean Kain

YOU CAN lead a man to a diet but you can't make him eat it—unless he is sold on the idea! Once thoroughly sold, however, there's no stopping him! A stalwart Oklahoman writes that he has taken off 85 pounds, and nicked ten inches off the beltline—and that he looks and feels like a new man!

For quite some time his wife had been leaving the clippings on reducing about the house where he couldn't help seeing them and one fine day, on his own initiative, he decided to see what would happen if he cut down just a little. He left off his usual lunch and dinner beverage—three glasses at each meal, each glass containing two teaspoons of sugar! "And before I knew it," he says, "I had dropped 20 pounds! Then I got into the spirit of things!"

He Was Diet Conscious

Even then, however, he didn't go on what you might call a strict diet. He had plenty of vegetables, including potatoes, lean meat, eggs, whole grain bread, cereal, butter and milk. He used brown sugar instead of white and took less of it and restricted desserts, such as pies and cakes, to once a week instead of once a day.

Our reducer was unusually diet conscious for a man. He emphasizes that all vegetables were cooked in the type of utensil which requires very little water so that the minerals and vitamins were saved. Potatoes were cooked in their jackets. And he used only whole grain breads and cereals. Due to these measures, the menus were kept very high in the protective elements—and he thinks that is the explanation of his excellent health while reducing.

He wanted me to assure you overweights that after you have taken off 20 or 30 pounds you lose some of your desire to overeat.

Although he can now eat whatever he likes without gaining, he doesn't desire a lot of rich food and always goes light on the evening meal.

Sample of Routine

He didn't like exercise any better than the next fellow and put it off as he could. "But after losing the first 30 pounds," he tells it, "I discovered that some exercising had to be done! I neglected these until I noticed the wrinkles in my skin. Then I began to exercise regularly and I have never had any trouble with my face and neck."

In case you're interested, here is a sample of the routine which gave his circulation such a healthy jog and which helped to reduce his beltline from 44 to 34: Sit on the floor with feet extended in front, legs apart, pull up with the abdominal muscles, and bend over to try to touch head to floor. Then, lying stretched to full extension on back, come up to sitting position and bend over to touch fingers to toes. From a standing position with hands on hips, bend at waist and circle trunk in all directions.

CHALK UP the date of Thursday, October 31, if you are looking for a date to serve a dinner that will teem with atmosphere. Not necessarily a company meal, but one that the family will enjoy.

It takes just a little juggling and garnishing of ordinary dishes to make them with the spooky touch that makes a gay Halloween meal. The following menu is one that should suit the average taste, come Halloween.

Halloween Dinner

Cranberry Juice — Appetizers
Chicken Creole — Corn Pudding
Asparagus Tips Hollandaise
Pumpkin Ice Cream — Halloween Cookies
Coffee

Following are the recipes for making the Chicken Creole and the Pumpkin Ice Cream.

CHICKEN CREOLE—Chop 1 onion, 1 green pepper and 2 pimientoes. Cook them slowly in 4 tablespoons olive oil or other cooking oil. Add 3 tablespoons flour and blend well. Add 1 No. 2 can tomatoes, 1 cup cooked rice and flaked chicken from 1 stewing fowl. Add seasonings to taste—Salt and pepper and dash of cayenne. Put into casserole in a slow oven about 45 minutes. Serves 6.

A dessert that carries out the color scheme of Halloween with its yellow color and has a distinctively pleasing flavor is Pumpkin Ice Cream. Make it this way:

PUMPKIN ICE CREAM—Make a custard of 1 quart thin cream, 2 beaten eggs, 1½ cups brown sugar, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, ½ teaspoon each of nutmeg, ground ginger and ground cloves, and ¼ teaspoon salt. Add 1 No. 1 can pumpkin. Heat thoroughly, and stir to blend it to smooth consistency. Cool. Freeze in refrigerator for several hours. Serves 6 to 8.

U. S. Sets Up Defense Job Clearing House

Interstate Transfer Of Workers Aim Of New System

By Edward Ryan

A new national labor distribution system to smooth the floor of needed workers into defense industries has been started by the Social Security Board, it was announced yesterday.

The board said that the system will be operated by its employment service to provide clearance for defense employers' labor needs and arrange orderly interstate transfer of workers in about 500 occupations essential to defense industries.

The new arrangement is also intended to cut down unplanned and unnecessary migration of workers to new areas following rumors of jobs, and speed up placement of workers in vital defense jobs without depleting any locality of its own necessary labor supply.

How Plan Works

The plan, officials said, will work this way:

When employer orders for defense workers cannot be filled by the local employment offices in one State, the labor needs will be reported by the State agencies to the nearest of 13 regional clearance offices covering the country.

These 13 offices will act as control points for clearing interstate orders for workers in aircraft, tank construction, arms and munitions manufacture, the Government shipyards and arsenals, and other defense industries.

To Equalize Flow

An order for workers from one State, will be routed by the regional office to the employment centers reporting an oversupply of the needed type of labor. The control offices expect to have on hand current reports from each office about the available labor supply and employers' labor requirements for 60 days in advance.

The District will have one control office to serve Washington, Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia and North Carolina. Other regional offices will operate in Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Cleveland, Chicago, Birmingham, Minneapolis, Kansas City, Austin, San Francisco, Seattle and Denver.

John L. Lewis' indorsement of Wendell Willkie for President is unlikely to affect the status or policies of the United Federal Workers, C. I. O.-affiliated Government employes' union, according to Jacob Baker, U. F. W. president.

Baker indicated that he did not expect the locals of his organization to run into any repercussions as a result of Lewis' stand in their dealings with the executives of Government agencies.

The locals themselves, he said, said, would not be expected to make any move in support or opposition to Lewis' political announcement, since their members are barred by the Hatch Act from taking part in politics.

The United States Housing Authority, in one of its pleased but surprised moods, reports:

An 80 to 90 miles an hour hurricane in Savanah, Ga., recently provided a unique and highly satisfactory test for USHA damp-proofing standards. Storm-driven rain at the rate of an inch an hour for 14 hours failed to penetrate the masonry of the Fellwood Homes Project in Savannah.

Archives historians have been digging into some of 80,000 Revolutionary War pension claims filed in their building and now they have come up with scores of patriotic oddments for their current exhibit. Among their findings on materials used to back up pension claims are a sampler submitted by the family of Chester Goodale, a Revolutionary soldier; Colonial currency, and several diaries.

Jobs: Bomb sight mechanics for work at the Naval Air Station in Norfolk, Va., are being sought by the Civil Service Commission. Wages range from $ 60 to $10.56 a day. Applicants are required to show that they have had at least three years of experience in electrical and mechanical work, plus one year of bomb sight work experience. Also seeded for defense jobs are junior communications operators. The jobs pay $1,620.

Paris.—Jobless foreigners in the industrial suburb of St. Denis have been ordered by the German authorities to register at the town hall and the police stations with the view of being sent to Germany to work.

French jobless who would like work in Germany may also register, but that this is entirely optional and not compulsory, as in the case of foreigners.

St. Denis is one of the biggest industrial centers of the outskirts of Paris. Its foreign workers include a large number of Poles and Czechs. It has long been considered one of the main fortresses of French communism.

"THE TALKING TEAKETTLE." Weirdest novelty of the year will debut at the Troika next Saturday when Sonia Zaranoff and her "Talking Teakettle" will enter the picture. This talking teakettle looks like a plain old black teakettle, but it steams with prophecies about the hereafter. Also, it's a haunted teakettle, supposedly inhabited by the ghost of one Olga Zaranoff, murdered by her lover in 1742, since then a restless spirit imprisoned in her town teapot. Sonia Zaranoff, descendant of Olga, denies any suggestion of ventriloquism, will go 50 or 75 feet away while the teakettle keeps on muttering portents of the future, answering any questions esked . . . Russian dancer Karin Zoska will join the Troika revue on November 10.

The Rainbow Room's new "Tune-of-the-Week Party" will be staged tonight and on Mondays hereafter. Patrons will vote tonight on "Moon Over Burma," "Sentimental Me," "Unless My Heart Deceives Me" and 150 copies of the winning tune will be distributed to ringsiders.

ALL-HALLOWS REVELRY. Halloween will be celebrated with gusto at every spot in town. Winsome witches, miming maskers, jibing jack o' lanterns will ogle you from every angle . . . Madrillon's Halloween will be tuned to the hour, with every member of the Carr and Don band representing some key political figure. You can "win with Willkie" or "root for Roosevelt" to your heart's content. We wonder if June Sothern will be made up as Mrs. Roosevelt. If so, they'll have to put her on stilts . . . Hi Hat's Halloweening will overflow into the adjoining Ambassador Room with accordioning Dellavile and his Serenaders and Jimmy Summerville's Four M's playing in both spots. Manager Oscar says he will give away the "most beautiful hats and souvenirs" . . . The Metronome Room will be transformed into a bower of autumn leaves, chrysanthemums and hobgoblins. Special Halloween music for Grant Thompson orchestra has been arranged by Composer Lionel Rand . . . Halloween will have its super-elegant incarnations in the Cosmos Room with unique decorations, luxury favors, witching Ben Young tunes . . . The Anchor Room will have a "surprise Halloween," with Eileen George and Matt Windsor leading a phlanx of extra entertainers . . . At La Salle Versailles blonde Jean Cathon and the Burrus Williams band will give their idea of a French-Canadian Halloween.

GLORIA DAY

Mayfair's Halloween party will be a screwball fiesta with "Mousey" Garner and his crew rigged up to represent heaven-knows-what, popping off crazy stunts every second. If the roof doesn't fall in, it'll be because the Earle Building is of steel and concrete . . . But wherever you go there'll be Halloweening in the grand fashion.

BURT'S TRANS-LUX-URYING. Who but "Laddie" (Alan Christian) Puryear, owner of the Robin Hood, did we find at the table nearest the door in Burt's Trans-Lux the other afternoon. "Laddie" was giving a serial send-off to Johnny Graham, chief pilot of Pennsylvania Central Air Lines, who was about to take off to Philadelphia for his wedding to pretty Pat O'Brien, airline hostess . . . Note for canartes. Burt is looking for a new singer.

THE NEW SHOWS. Shoreham. Renna, world-famed clown, and his company head the Blue Room show opening today. He enters in the world's tiniest auto, 27 inches wide, 47 inches long—but miraculously holding Renna, his luggage and his dog. Gloria Day and Maurice St. Clair, finest dancers ever to appear in a Washington night spot, are returning. The laugh provoking Music Hall Boys are held over.

Lotus. An all new Halloween week show, with the Naval Cadets and Frolics Dancers in new production numbers, Virginia Vaughan, who tap dances on a xylophone, and Harry Reso, of musical comedy. This revue is even larger than the record-breaking "Fall Frolics" that has been holding the spotlight.

Casino Royal. Skating feats by the Two Kays head the new show opening today. There'll also be smoothly stepping Bernard and Rich, European dance stars, a flock of novelty parades and dances by the Earle Lindsay Aristocrats, smart songage by Emcee Bob Preble.

Members of Jimmy Dorsey's and "Fats" Waller's bands will be guests of honor at a party at the Swing Club (Society of Modern Music) over Dick's Grill tomorrow eve.. All union musicians interested in the Swing Club are invited.

SHARKING EPISTLE. Neptune Room's Frank Romer writes, "Nobby Baney's personation of termighty Charlie McCarthy is raising the roof shingle-handed. Until you ask me about Neptune's Halloween plans this ghost to show I seldom spook until I'm spooken to. But Neptune's Halloween will shark the public on porpoise." Is this where I came in?

EXPERTS' CHOICES. Art Hume, the uncannily clever tune arranger of Lounge Riviera, things that "Such Stuff as Dreams Are Made Of" (from "Boys and Girls Together") is one of the year's best numbers . . . Maestro Dick Koons, of the Mayflower Lounge, says that Bonnie Boyd's version of "Hawaiian War Chant" is the best that's ever beat on his ear drums . . . Maitre d'Hotel Arthur Marchisio, of the Raleigh, thinks that the Spanish "La Gran Via" is the finest tune ever written, but he can't find anyone to play it for him.

PRODIGALS OF CAPRICE. Appearance of Bert Stevens' Trio in Cafe Caprice might have been called "The Prodigals' Return," except that the boys certainly stand in no need of a fatted calf. Guitarist Irvin Switzler was at Mayfair a few months ago as one of the Rhythm Boys. Clarinetist George Macdonald was with Eddie Brandt's band at Wardman last winter. And Bert, of course, was at Caprice and on the Starlight Roof last summer.

To the Earle Theater drummer: It was swell of you to lean that bass drum to Del Rio's Don Rico. But did you know that he kicked in the head of his own drum last week?

HOT BUT SWEET. De Lloyd McKaye's inimitable piano-ing of "Summertime" from "Porgy and Bess" in the Romany Room . . . The Biederbecke-modern trumpeting of Joe Potts with Rodd Raffell's Nightingale band.

LAST THOUGHT ON HALLOWEEN. When your arches are near busting from walking around in Halloween crowds, when your ears are aching with noise—then you'd better rdop into that quiet and happy haven, the Harrington Tavern.

9,000 Parade In Holy Name Celebration

Rally Speakers Urge Renewal Of Religious Life in Nation

Thousands of members of the Holy Name Society in the District gathered on Washington Monument Grounds yesterday afternoon in celebration of the feast of Christ the King, at which speakers urged the renewal of the Nation's religious life in the face of international problems.

The Most Rev. Michael J. Curley, Archbishop of Baltimore and Washington, declared:

"There are vices current within our Nation's body that can destroy it more quickly than destruction by any dictator from abroad."

As examples, he named "disrespect for law and order, the curse of so-called birth control."

The crowd, estimated at 9,000, paraded along Constitution Avenue with bands and banners, on its way to the Sylvan Theater, where the altar gleamed with candles, yellow chrysanthemums and ruddy autumn leaves.

Archbishop Curley, who officiated at the benediction, also led the recitation of the Holy Name pledge of loyalty for the coming year.

The Rev. John Schultz, C. SS. R., of the Catholic University, gave the sermon in which he said:

"Financial collapse and war threaten us. Like other nations which have rejected God, we are on the verge of disaster.

"The hope of America lies in bringing Christ into every phase of life," he said, urging that this be done by "frequent communion."

Archbishop Curley, who had reviewed the parade, told the laymen that in their march "you preached your own sermon," on the theme that "God comes first."

The marchers included students from religious orders at Catholic University, members of the Holy Name Society from parishes here, pupils from St. John's College and other schools. A group of military men in the forefront of the crowd at the theater included Holy Name members from the Army Medical Center, from Third Cavalry at Fort Myer and from the Twelfth Infantry at Arlington Cantonment. They were led by Chaplain Speer Strahan, of Fort Myer, and Chaplain William J. Walsh, of the Army Medical Center.

The Rev. William J. McVeigh, of St. Cyprian's Church, was deacon, and the Rev. John Roeder, of St. Gabriel's, subdeacon. The choir of the Sulpician Seminary sang. The Rev. W. J. Schmitz of Catholic University faculty, was master of ceremonies.

Capital News In Brief

Three Injured By Missiles

From Sunday's police blotter:

Frances Jones, 31, colored, of 52 Pierce Street Northwest, was struck by a brick. She was treated at Sibley Hospital.

Mrs. Bertha Dixon, 35, colored, of 223 B street southwest, was struck in the head by a jar of face cream, she told police, during an argument with her husband.

Norwood Talley, 40, of 26 Kennedy Street Northeast, was struck by a beer bottle at a tavern near Colesville, Md. He was treated for lacerations to the right eye at Sibley Hospital.

6-Pound Baby Found in Shoebox

Alive and healthy at Children's Hospital last night was a 6-pound colored baby found in a shoe box abandoned in the bushes of Meridian Park.

Doctors said the infant, apparently left in the park only a few hours after birth, was suffering slightly from exposure. The child, a male, was found by Edward Brent, 641 Morton Street Northwest, an employe of public parks, who was attracted by its crying, according to police.

A sheet covering the infant was marked property of Pullman Co. The baby was removed to the hospital in a police scout car.

Bandits Take Cash, Registration Card

Oscar Gobbs, colored, 28, of 115 H Street Northwest, had no selective service card yesterday to prove he had registered.

Gobbs told police he was robbed as he walked on Fourth Street at H Northwest by three colored men who took his purse containing a dollar bill and his card.

Tributes Paid to Garfinckel At Unitarian Home Dedication

Clerical and lay officials of All Souls' Unitarian Church yesterday led tributes to the late Julius Garfinckel at dedicatory exercises for the new Unitarian Home, realized through his bequest.

Addressing members of the congregation and a group of veteran employees of the Garfinckel Store in the building at 1802 Park Road Northwest, Maj. Amasa M. Holcombe, chairman of the home's board of managers, lauded the merchant's "love for his fellowmen."

Mr. Garnckel, for more than 40 years a member of All Souls' Church and who served for sometime as finance committee chairman, inspired many other acts of kindness by his spirit, Maj. Holcombe said.

Shortly after Dr. Ulysses G. B. Pierce, All Souls' pastor, and William G. Eliot 3d, chairman of the church's board of trustees, followed with tributes and a dedicatory ritual, the store employes presented a framed picture of their late employer to the home. Substantial gifts of money were acknowledged by Dr. Holcombe.

While William Pfeiffer, Mr. Garfinckel's nephew, was unable to be present, he sent a telegram praising his uncle's interest in the home project. Director of the Associated Willkie Clubs of America, he is running for Congress from the Sixteenth New York District.

Mrs. J. M. Akdrich, former president of the Woman's Alliance of All Souls' Church, served as chairman of a tea which followed the dedication. Mrs. Anna Ertaaard is house manager of the home which at present has four residents —all women.

District Equestrienne Breaks Arm Riding

Mrs. Bernardo Mion, 32, of 3030 Tennyson Street Northwest, wife of an architect in the Quartermaster General's office, suffered a fractured arm yesterday while riding horseback at the Sunnyside Riding School, Wheaton, Md.

Citizen Units To Celebrate Halloween

Federation Conclave Saturday Night Will Climax Week's Activities

Hallowe'en celebrations and parades, special movie showings and election of officers and one annual banquet will be featured at meetings of nine citizens associations this week, climaxed by a Federation of Citizens Associations conclave Saturday.

Northwest associations, cooperating with business and playground units, will sponsor a Halloween parade Thursday night, complete with floats, bands and marching groups and headed by Queen Nancy Shenk and her court. Dancing will follow in the Roosevelt High School auditorium.

The Federation will meet in the District Building Saturday at 8 p. m. Election of officers will be highlighted, with Harry N. Stull the unopposed presidential nominee. Local community problems will be discussed by association representatives. The Star Trophy will be awarded to the delegate who has done the most during the past year in civic affairs.

Four Groups Meet Tonight

Four associations are scheduled to meet tonight. Georgetown Citizens will hold their first meeting of the season in St. John's Parish Hall, Potomac and O Streets Northwest, to discuss accumulated business and view a motion picture on "a subject of current interest," according to Secretary Joseph I. Cavanaugh.

The Mid-City Association, meeting tonight at 8 o'clock, will elect officers and view a color motion picture showing Community Chest activities.

Officers also will be elected by the North Capitol unit tonight. The Society of Natives, meeting at the same time, will elect delegates to the federation and likewise view the Community Chest movie.

Principal item of business of the Southeast Washington Citizens Association, meeting tomorrow night, will be an election of officers, followed by discussions of the Sousa Bridge dedication and other current business, President William A. Maio said.

McCoach, Keech To Speak

Fifth annual banquet of the Petworth Citizens Association will be held Wednesday evening, with District Engineer Commissioner David McCoach and Corporation Counsel Richmond B. Keech slated as principal speakers. Installation of newly-elected officers will follow.

Zoning and other community matters will be examined by members of the Trinidad Citizens Association Wednesday night, according to President George J. Cleary.

Chillum Heights and Randle Highlands both will meet Friday evening. The former will feature its annual election of officers and a showing of the Community Chest movie.

Associations meeting this week include:

Monday

Georgetown, in St. John's Parish Hall, Potomac and O Streets Northwest, 8 p. m.
Mid-City, in Thomson School, Twelfth and L Streets Northwest, 8 p. m.
North Capitol, at McKinley High School, Second and T Streets Northeast, 8 p. m.
Society of Natives, Arts Club, 2017 I Street Northwest, 8 p. m.

Tuesday

Southeast, at Friendship House, 619 D Street Southeast, 8 p. m.

Wednesday

Petworth annual banquet, Petworth Baptist Church, Seventh and Randolph Streets Northwest, 7 p. m.
Trinidad, in the Wheatley School, 1213 Montello Avenue Northeast, 8 p. m.

Friday

Chillum Heights, in Keene School, Blair and Riggs Roads Northeast, 8 p. m.
Randle Highlands, in Orr School, Twenty-second and Prout Streets Southeast, 8 p. m.

Saturday

Federation of Citizens Associations, District Building, Board room, 8 p. m.

BENEFIT—A dance was given last night in the Beth Sholom Congregation Auditorium by the Hanita Club, a branch of the Pioneer Women's Organization for Palestine, for the benefit of the needy in Palestine. Among those there were (from left) Mrs. Mayer Wertlieb, Mrs. Al Golden, and Mrs. William Leven.

Working for Washington

Recreation Center, Park and Branch Library Are Objectives of Kalorama Citizens' Group

Association Also Urges More Police, Junior High School

This is the twenty-ninth article in a series about citizens' associations in the District of Columbia and their efforts to make the community a better place in which to live.

Construction of a community recreation center, public park and branch library on the high triangular site between Columbia Road, Kalorama Road and Nineteenth Street Northwest is the number one objective this year of the 20-year-old Kalorama Citizens Association.

Members would also like to have a junior high school in the Kalorama area, but cannot locate a land site in the sector large enough for such a building. Third major aim of the association this fall is to obtain more police for Washington and particularly for its area.

Probably the most-discussed project in the Kalorama section is the proposed "Crystal City" at Connecticut and Florida Avenues. It has not yet been officially discussed at meetings, but members are "pretty generally in favor of it," officers say. The huge, ultra-modern apartment structure is considered as a desirable innovation rather than zoning menace by most, spokesmen added.

Many Accomplishments

Major accomplishments of the association since its formation in 1920 have been numerous, according to Commander Frank L. Slingluff, president. It was largely responsible for the John Quincy Adams School, at Nineteenth and California Avenue Northwest, he reported.

Years ago, it was influential in obtaining a larger number of judges in the District Court. It has also been responsible for the improved traffic light system at Eighteenth and Columbia Road Northwest and at the intersection of Connecticut Avenue, Florida Avenue and S Street, Slingluff asserted.

Members have always been strong for national representation, according to Mrs. Edna L. Johnston, who has twice served as the unit's president. Local self-government, however, is not always advocated by the association, she said. Feeling on this point differs from time to time, she explained.

Meetings Held Mondays

Meetings of the group alternate between featuring speakers and general discussions. They are held in the John Quincy Adams School on the second Monday of each month, at 8 p. m. Next meeting, on November 11, will feature election of officers.

Current officers include Comdr. Frank Slingluff, U. S. N., retired, president; Rear Admiral David F. Sellers, retired, vice president; Dr. Loren O. H. Johnson, second vice president; Miss Mary Yates, recording secretary; Fletcher S. Tilton, corresponding secretary; and Miss Marion L. White, treasurer.

Delegates to the Federation of Citizens Associations are Mrs. Harvey W. Wiley and Monie Sanger.

Auto Number Holds Three As Bandits

Trio Is Arrested In 'Lovers' Lane' Cases as Victim Recalls License

Three colored men charged with robbing a couple in a parked car on the Hains Point Speedway early yesterday were arrested a few hours after a woman noted the license number of the bandits' car while her escort struggled with the men.

Identified by the victims at a special police line-up, the trio was being questioned last night in connection with similar holdups in the District and especially in respect to three lovers' lane holdups in Virginia, in which the women were attacked.

The couple gave their names to police as Walter Williams, of 3908 W Street Northwest, and Henrietta Duncan, of 2225 N Street Northwest.

One of the men pointed a revolver at him, Williams told police, and seized his wallet containing $23 while he attempted to fight them. The man with the gun fired a shot into the ground, Williams said, and the trio dashed to their car, made a U-turn and sped the wrong way down the Speedway. Williams followed in his car and rammed the trio's vehicle, the license numbers of which were remembered by Miss Duncan.

The car used by the bandits was later found abandoned underneath the trestle at the Speedway exit by Park Policeman William T. Hayes. The arrests followed when Detective Sergts. Elmer Lewis, Dan Jones and Howard W. Smith "covered" the house lived in by the owner.

Nelson B. Bell About the Showshops

Abbott Switches Medium With No Change of Pace

'Too Many Girls' Typically High-Voltage Film; Loew's Takes Bow for Early Winter Bookings; This, That and the Other About the Theater

GEORGE ABBOTT SHOULD WORRY what medium he happens to be working in! He is still George Abbott, with a peculiar flair for live-wire comedy that few of his contemporaries seem to possess. Give him a rollicking story—whether it hangs together particularly well or not—and a youthful cast and Mr. Abbott may be relied upon to turn out an entertainment that will knock you out of your pew, structurally bullet-proof or as porous as a lace curtain. He has just been up and at it again.

BELL

It is his personally produced and directed film version of his own stage hit of "Too Many Girls," next attraction at RKO-Keith's, that we have in mind. Barging in on a one-man preview of this effervescent subject, we recently converted Manager Hardie Meakin into a midnight twosome and harbor no regrets about it. "Too Many Girls" in its new manifestation, isn't quite like any other screen musical that has found its way to public view of late—else we should have playfully bashed in Mr. Meakin's beautiful beezer for keeping us up!

If you are looking for a "big name" cast and something beyond a typical Abbott musical-comedy "plot," don't bother about "Too Many Girls." Provided, however, you can do with a tip-top Rodgers and Hart score, a tale of young love, football, goofy gags and spine-tingling ensembles, this toothsome item should be your dish—especially with Eddie Bracken and Richard Carlson for the romantic comedy, Frances Langford and Lucille Ball for the best of the songs, Ann Miller and Hal LeRoy for the dancing and Desi Arnaz for some aboriginal tom-tom beating that will curl your hair.

Elderly and staid advocates of the high traditions of the "drahma" may not go for this one, but the rug-cutting moderns from kindergarten to college age—and a few years beyond—should eat it up. And don't say I didn't tell you.

Washington theatergoers who were the first to see "Kiss the Boys Goodbye" and "Lady in Waiting," before those hit comedies went on to their Broadway runs, will have an opportunity to view another Brock Pemberton premiere when "Glamour Preferred" comes to the National for one week, beginning next Monday night. "Glamour Preferred" is heralded as a bright, new number that probes into the intimate affairs of one of the nation's leading "glamour boys" and turns Hollywood inside out. Since it is authored by Florence Ryerson and Colin Clements, two active motion picture writers, it ought to know what it is talking about. One of Mr. Pemberton's nice comedy casts is promised, with Antoinette Perry, responsible for many of this producer's earlier hits, as director.

The English Speaking Union is sponsoring an invitational preview of the Warner Brothers production of "A Dispatch from Reuter's," starring Edward G. Robinson, in the Departmental Auditorium tonight at 8:30. Many distinguished representatives of the Capital's official, social and professional circles have signified their intention of being present—but not the drama desks, previously articled to contemplate Ruth Chatterton's assumption of the role of Eliza Doolittle in Shaw's "Pygmalion," at the National. Maybe later, eh, Mr. Payette?

With Charlie Chaplin in "The Great Dictator" and Myrna Loy and Melvyn Douglas in "Third Finger, Left Hand" already inked in on the booking sheets, it is a nice lineup of attractions the Loew houses announce for forthcoming weeks. Coming over the celluloid horizon, among other top-drawer productions are Norma Shearer and Robert Taylor, in Ethel Vance's best-seller, "Escape"; "Bitter Sweet," the Noel Coward operetta in Technicolor, with Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy; Clark Gable and Hedy Lamarr, in "Conrade X"; Judy Garland, in her first individual starring vehicle, "Little Nellie Kelly"; "Arise, My Love," with Claudette Colbert and Ray Milland; Tyrone Power and Linda Darnell, in "The Mark of Zorro," made famous by Douglas Fairbanks, pere; John Barrymore, in "The Great Profile," and Walter Wanger's "The Long Voyage Home," based on Eugene O'Neill's plays of the sea. Smooth sledding for the early winter, if you ask me.

About that pigeon propagandist for "A Dispatch from Reuter's" that Railway Expressed its way into the department a week ago: After contemplating the open door of the screened-in porch for 48 hours, it finally decided to take itself away from there late in the afternoon of the second day—and did. Being a homer, its pals in New York must have gotten awfully tired of its fantastic tale of a week-end nightmare by now!

Signs-of-the-Times Note

Well, what are we waiting for, with an inducement like this placarded on a midtown, Fourteenth Street window:

"The Great Dictator," which grossed $131,000 in its first week on Broadway, comes to the screen at Loew's Palace, November 7

World-Wide News Coverage At Trans-Lux

Politics, War, Sports And Shorts Comprise An Excellent Bill

President Roosevelt's first political speech of the campaign, delivered at Philadelphia, and Candidate Willkie's reply, from Chicago, undoubtedly take first place in the news interest at the Trans-Lux Theater this week. Second in line of importance are the thrilling pictures of the United States Navy in action, in celebration of Navy Day.

From London come the first pictures of the damage done by German bombers to ancient and world-famous St. Paul's Cathedral. Also are vividly displayed the scars received by sacred Westminster Abbey and the House of Parliament. Probably the most interesting shots of the R. A. F. are those showing a bombed factory with half the force clearing away the debris and the other half carrying on the work as usual.

An interesting and sad note is injected as British refugee children talk to their parents by radio. Following this, the Italian drive in the African desert is pictured and a Jewish colony forming in Shanghai is shown. In Ohio the new Army scout cars are given field tests—and can they take it!

Sports and Shorts

Football is paramount among the sport events. The games covered, with plenty of thrills, include: Ohio State-Minnesota, Michigan-Illinois, Cornell-Syracuse, Tennessee-Alabama, Penn-Princeton, Columbia-Georgia, Notre Dame-Carnegie Tech, and Texas A. & M.-Texas Christian.

In the realm of short subjects, a Scandinavian picture unfolds the thrills of logging in Sweden. "Screen Snapshots" goes to Hollywood where the most amusing of comedians attend a banquet.

There is a prewar trip around London showing all the famous and historic statues, immediately followed by the sensationally impressive "London Can Take It." "My Pop! My Pop!" is the latest Popeye cartoon.

Dekker's New Cradle

Albert Dekker, who played a villain in the recent "Dr. Cyclops" and "Strange Cargo," has invented a new type cradle which makes life much easier for mama. Dekker, now featured in "Rangers of Fortune," explains the cradle is 4 feet high and narrow enough to pass through doorways easily. These two features make taking care of baby lots easier, he says.

TRAVEL DEPT.: Alexander Woollcott visited Booth Tarkington at his magnificent estate in Kennebunkport. Just before he left, Tarkington said to him: "It will be terrible if Roosevelt is elected again" . . . Woollcott looked around the Tarkington living room, at its elegant furnishings and the masterpieces which hung upon the wall, and then said: "That reminds me of what Bert Taylor of the Stock Exchange told Noel Coward. Taylor said: 'If Roosevelt is re-elected, I'll just have to give up my business completely.' Coward asked him: 'And what would you do then?' . . . Taylor said 'Travel' . . . Coward asked: 'Travel where?' . . . And Taylor answered: 'Oh, California in the summer—Florida in the winter.'"

LYONS

ILLUSTRATED DEPT.: Recently Leon Henderson, the SEC Commissioner issued a statement showing the vast holdings owned by a few American families controlling the industries of this country . . . One of the families mentioned was the Rockefellers . . . Last week Henderson, who also is a member of the National Defense Council, was called to the council's offices to pose for a photograph of the entire Defense Board . . . "Leon," Ed Stettinius suggested, "for this picture you must stand over here." He pointed to a place next to Nelson Rockefeller.

MOVIES DEPT.: Jimmy Walker attended Thursday night's dinner given by the Picture Pioneers—an organization composed of men who at some time more than 25 years ago were engaged in the motion picture business. Walker is a member by reason of some legal work he had done for film companies long ago . . . Jimmy, whose new job is that of impartial chairman of the cloak and suit industry, told the guests that he had reversed the process. "Here's one guy," he confessed, "who went out of the picture business—and into the cloak and suit business."

WAR DEPT.: Joseph P. Kennedy, the Ambassador to England, will issue a statement in support of the President. In it he will attack those who accuse the President of war-mongering, and reveal that in all his instructions to Kennedy, whenever crises arose, the President's orders were for him always to try to prevent the war from spreading.

GEOGRAPHY DEPT.: Tuesday night, at the weekly poker game between Marc Connelly, Russel Crouse and the other members of the Thanatopsis Club, Harold Ross, editor of the New Yorker, examined his hand, made his discards and told the dealer: "Trrrrwah" . . . Ross then added: "That means 'three' in French" . . . "To me," was Theron Bamberger's criticism of Ross' pronunciation, "that sounds more like OCCUPIED French."

LOCAL NEWS: Gardner Jackson, head of Labor's Non-Partisan League and disciple of John L. Lewis, will stump for the President . . . The name of a Manhattan politician will be mentioned in the current kidnap trial of Sam Gasberg . . . Twentieth Century-Fox has purchased the movie rights to F. van Wyck Mason's "Ballerina Murders," the mystery story which will be published next month. Mason, whose "Three Harbours" and "Stars on the Sea" were best sellers, is flying to Hollywood to discuss the script . . . Sam Levene, who is directing the Spewack play, also will appear in it . . . District Attorney Foley has indictments voted in the Penn murder case naming four men. The indictments haven't been filed yet.

DRAMA DEPT.: Bobby Clark saw Dorothy Gish's performance in the Boston company of "Life With Father." He went backstage and confessed his ambition to portray the role of Father in one of the companies . . . "I could do it very well," said Clark—who, throughout his career, leaps about the stage, leering and beating his cane against the floor—"but of course you'd have to get some one to hold me down a bit."

PERSONALS: When Katharine Hepburn attended the Hyde Park picnic she sat at the President's table with Edna Ferber and Mrs. George S. Kaufman. Katharine asked to use the phone, and while she was gone Miss Ferber confessed; "I'd love to know whether it's true that she's going to marry Garson Kanin" . . . "I've been reading about that, too," said the President. "Do you think it's true?" . . . "Why not ask her, Edna?" suggested Mrs. Kaufman . . . Miss Hepburn returned to the table, and Edna began: "I have a very personal question to ask you. Is it true?" . . . "Is what true?" answered Miss Hepburn, blushing . . . "Are you going to do it?" continued Miss Ferber . . . "Oh, go ahead and do it," said the President. "Why don't you marry him?

Louella O. Parsons'

Close-Ups and Long-Shots Of the Motion Picture Scene

New York, Oct. 27 (INS).—M.-G.-M. certainly changed its mind in a hurry, switching Myrna Loy and William Powell out of "The Thin Man's Shadow" and into "Mr. Co-Ed," which starts Monday or Tuesday. If you ask me, I think the switch from the Mr. and Mrs. detective story to a collegiate background is because the head men don't want the Powell-Loy fans to become satiated with the thin man adventures. Even good things can be overdone.

PARSONS

"Mr. Co-Ed" is a sophisticated comedy about a millionaire (Bill), who sends his butler's daughter (Myrna) to an exclusive girls' school. When she is roundly snubbed by the debutantes, Bill steps in, buys the school and enrolls as a student himself.

It won't hurt the feelings of Helen Parrish and good-looking Charles Lang that Universal is going to co-star them in "Where Did You Get That Girl?" for these youngsters are really in love. He's the boy RKO had under contract for several months before "U" bought his contract. They think he's really going places in a big way.

Snapshots of Hollywood and New York collected at random: Ouida Rathbone's 22-year-old niece, Ouida la Branche, will marry Richard Ainlole—a good-looking young-actor, who was Connie Bennett's devoted escort this time last year; ran into Joe E. Brown at "21." He has turned down a fat offer to do "Elmer, The Great" on the stage; Gladys and Mark Hellinger with Louis Sobol doing the town; Addison (Jack) Randall dropped in. Understand he and the wealthy widow have said adieu to romance; George Raft is in town on what Mack Gray mysteriously calls "big business;" Robert Stack's mother surprised him by flying in for our last show which was at midnight.

George Hurrell's exhibition of his photographic studios is going great guns; Billy Wilkerson came back stage and he tells me he has taken over Arrowhead Springs Hotel. If he makes as big a success as he did of Ciro's it will be terrific; Arline Judge and Nancy Carroll lunching at the Stork Club; Edward Everett Horton, who is one of the most devoted sons I know, is giving a party today in honor of his mother's eighty-first birthday.

George Montgomery and Ann Miller are doing the Hollywood spots together; doesn't seem possible, but Freddie Bartholomew and Ann Gillis were rhumbaing at the Cocoanut Grove on a "grown up" date; Warners ask for a denial that Ann Sheridan is going into the Bette Davis picture. They say Annie is still on suspension and that things are just as they were—only more so. Thanks, Darryl Zanuck, Marion Davies, Mary Pickford and Orson Welles for your encouraging wires. Your good wishes meant so much.

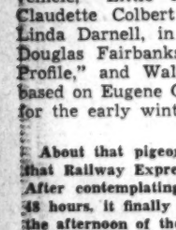
That's all for today. See you tomorrow!

In Hollywood

With Hedda Hopper

Hollywood, Oct. 27.

Cecil B. DeMille's "North West Mounted Police" is a study in red, from the opening color shot to the death of Montagu Love, who, on expiring, says, "Tell them not to change the color of the uniforms. Red is a good color."



HOPPER

It's a great action picture, and to make sure that his characters go to the Happy Hunting Ground, C. B. has most of them die twice—Regis Toomey with two arrows, and Akim Tamiroff with two bullets. Highlight in the blood bath, which matches the boys' jackets, is the attempt of Bob Preston to escape his thongs which are cutting into his wrists. That little half-breed, played by Paulette Goddard—pardon! Irs. Chaplin bathes the wounds, which thins the blood, and DeMille shouts "Cut!" Strange, too, the introduction of the gatling gun as a fiery innovation which cuts down practically every redcoat in Canada.

Noel Coward was offered practically anything he wanted if he'd do a picture here, but dear Noel refused. He didn't like Hollywood. He didn't like pictures. Now, I understand, on his return from "down under" he'll do his own epic for the benefit of Great Britain . . . Incidentally, while he was house-guesting with Cary Grant, Babs Hutton was making merry as a golden princess, from head to toe, at the opera in San Francisco with Ina Claire.

When Warners suspend a player—you name one who hasn't been on that black list—they give it as much publicity as a super-epic. They want suspendee to know that they give it their all. But I believe Ann Sheridan knows it now, and I think it's about time to ease up, don't you? Because she's still pretty popular with the fans.

At last Fred Stone and his family are going on a new radio program called "The Stone Family Boarding House,' and about time, too. Maybe after that, they'll get a picture, who knows? Hollywood works in a mysterious and devious fashion.

Jack Barrymore, in white wig and mustache, looks so much like Lionel that he swears that when his brother sees his makeup he'll say, "Deathless—he should be invisible." . . . When a photographer's flashlight bulb exploded behind him the other day, Jack whirled around and said, "Don't let her on the set!" "Who?" "Elaine, of course!"

It won't be long now before Los Angeles will have an opportunity to dress up and greet the San Francisco Opera Co. I don't know if we realize our luck—we pay for no rehearsals, no guarantee, yet get the full benefit of a month's performance from up north. All we have to do is buy a ticket and enjoy ourselves. Opening date is November 4—opera is Verdi's "The Masked Ball."

Gayety

Zorita, one of burlesque's most sensational dancers, is the featured star of this week's revue at the Gayety, which, by the way, enlists an all-star cast.

The musical numbers of the dark-eyed and lovely Zorita defy imitation. Outstanding is her novel presentation, "Dance of Ecstasy," a number that, for sheer daring and interpretative power, only Zorita can execute.

Mike "Muggin" Sachs and Al Weber are in charge of the comedy department, a portion of the show which proves entertaining at all times. With the able assistance of Alice Kennedy, Sachs presents several amusing numbers, including the "Court Room" skit, one of the funniest things on the bill.

Dot Darling, Dian Johnson and Marion Melrose comprise a trio of pretty and youthful song-and-dance artistes. The acrobatic numbers of Miss Melrose are particularly effective and stamp her as one of the most talented personalities recently seen here.

Completing a well-balanced bill are clever Herbie Barris; songs by Paddy Cliff; some excellent accordion playing by Cardoni and several saxophone numbers by Tinia.

The settings and lighting effects of "Fads and Fancies" are unusually good and "the ladies of the ensemble" youthful, pretty and well trained. ART JOHN.

Youth Day Is Celebrated In Washington Churches

By Robert Tate Allan

YOUTH led its elders in worship in Washington Protestant churches yesterday as congregations celebrated "Youth Sunday." Younger churchgoers helped conduct the Holy Communion and other phases of service.

Prelude to the coming National Christian Mission, the observance was centered at Columbia Heights and Park View Christian churches, Potomac Heights Community and Eldbrooke, St. Paul's, Union, Dumbarton Avenue and Congress Street Methodist Churches and in other congregations.

MAYNARD EICHER, president of the Bagby Young People's Christian Endeavor Society at Columbia Heights Church, hobbled up to the pulpit on crutches to outline aims and activities of youth programs there.

He broke several ankle bones a few weeks ago, while engaging in "touch football," among the recreational phases of the young people's work, which, he pointed out, also covers game nights, bowling, softball and Scouting. On the worship side are the regular Sunday meetings and additional activities.

ASSISTING Dr. Arthur P. Wilson, pastor; Elder W. L. Hill, church school superintendent, and Elder Kenneth Hunter, youth advisor, in "lifting the cup" and "breaking the bread" of the Lord's Supper were representatives of the Endeavor societies, the church Boy Scout Troop 69, and others.

The congregation, 90 per cent of which stood to testify to past or present membership in Christian Endeavor Societies, later in the program heard a youth quartet. The singers were Muriel Jenkins, Shirley Egan, Jane Eicher and Lenore Bobst. Betty Joyce Magee read the Scripture and Marjorie Wydro led the congregation in reciting the Endeavor pledge.

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

Football Map of U. S.:

THE EAST—Ithaca, base of Cornell's operations, is still the Capital of Eastern football. The clamor over unbeaten and untied teams is still heard in Washington (Georgetown), Boston (Boston College), Annapolis (Navy) State College (Penn State) and Easton, Pa. (Lafayette) but at this writing it is only a weak challenge to Cornell's place in the Eastern sun.

POVICH

With a 14-0 thud Penn dropped from the ranks of the unbeaten over the week-end. Michigan was the villain of the piece. Until that happened, Penn was able to contest Cornell's claim of Eastern supremacy. The Ithacans not only solidified themselves as top dogs in the East but did Eastern football a terrific turn by licking Ohio State, 21-7. The way the Ithacans did it was superb. Rocked by an Ohio State touchdown march of 89 yards the first time the Buckeyes got their hands on the ball, Cornell bounced back with a diversified three-touchdown attack.

Cornell thus is over the big hump. The lone threat in its path now is Penn on Thanksgiving Day. The Ithacans will be the favorite to win that one. Carl Snavely has done a job at Cornell and the suspicion is that he has given the East its finest football team since Andy Kerr turned out the Colgate team of nearly a decade ago which was unbeaten, untied, unscored on—and uninvited to the Rose Bowl.

The Eastern team that is gathering esteem weekly is Georgetown's. Twenty-one straight games without a defeat is now the record of the Hoyas. Their 26-0 victory over N. Y. U. was achieved with ridiculous ease and despite the use of 42 men. The pity is that the Hoyas' schedule is not a rigorous one. Not until the Boston College game next month can definite credit accrue to the Hoyas. If they can beat the Eagles they will be recognized, perhaps, as the No. 2 team of the East, but that Georgetown schedule beclouds the Hoyas' claims.

Boston College is in much the same plight as Georgetown with a schedule only a bit tougher. Navy continues to roll, but as yet it hasn't beaten much. The next two weeks will determine Navy's position. All the Middies are faced with is Notre Dame and Penn. By Saturday night they are not apt to be among the unbeaten. Lafayette, like Navy, hasn't beaten much and its schedule also precludes any national recognition.

THE MIDWEST—Michigan is the team to beat out there. All claims haven't been settled as yet and Notre Dame, Minnesota and Northwestern are conceding nothing to the Wolverines. Detroit is also among the untied and unbeaten, but it is playing a second-flight schedule.

The accent is on Michigan the more heavily since its defeat of Penn. The Welverines were beating what seemed to be the East's second-best club. Tommy Harmon is the sort of a back who can take a good team to high places. But Michigan, after an off-day on Saturday, will move among select company on the three succeeding weekends. Minnesota, Northwestern and Ohio State will be out to topple the Wolverines and any final rating of Michigan must be held in abeyance.

Minnesota is apparently beginning to roll. After being extended to win its early games, the Gophers of Bernie Bierman romped over Iowa the other day, 34-6. They've licked Washington, Nebraska and Ohio State and they're big and tough. Just how tough will be ascertained next week when it brings Northwestern. And the week after that, Michigan.

Northwestern, with a close one against Ohio State to its credit, and easy victories over Syracuse, Wisconsin and Indiana under its belt, is still in the thick of the conference fight. But the season is crystallizing fast for the Wildcats. Three of their next four games will pit them against Michigan, Minnesota and Notre Dame and within a month folks will know where the Wildcats stand.

Notre Dame slapped down the Illini with ease over the week-end and did nothing to disturb the impression that they might be the Nation's best team. The only disturbing item thus far about the Irish of 1940 is those 20 points Georgia Tech scored against 'em. Notre Dame probably has the best chance to finish the season unbeaten and untied. Northwestern appears the only team remaining on the schedule which seems capable of giving the Irish a row.

THE SOUTH—Tennessee's Volunteers still rule the roost in Dixie but they lost considerable lustre over the week-end when they were held scoreless for a half by Florida and achieved nothing more than a 14-0 win. Florida is the team that took a 28-0 leacing from Villanova.

There is more than a suspicion, now, that Tennessee might run afoul of the tied but unbeaten Kentucky team next month and that Kentucky might end up as No. One in the South. The only other major Dixie team unbeaten and untied is Clemson and Clemson's schedule precludes any national claims.

THE SOUTHWEST—Texas A. and M. is the class of its section, but the Aggies had a narrow escape when Baylor held 'em to a 14-7 score over the week-end. The Aggies, though, can be forgiven, perhaps. They are in a tough league down there where champions seldom repeat.

Until last week-end, the University of Texas had some sort of a claim on Southwestern honors, but Rice disposed of that by beating the Longhorns, 13-0.

THE FAR WEST—Any venturesome gent who might have predicted that Stanford would be the only unbeaten, untied club out there at the end of October would have been committed as a violent case, but who's looney now? Clark Shaughnessy's Indians, who didn't win a conference game last year, slapped down Southern Cal, 21-7, over the week end, and seem definitely headed for the Coast title. They still have to hurdle U. C. L. A., Washington and Oregon State, but they appear able to do it. What is beginning to be important is: What team is going to meet Stanford in the Rose Bowl?

On the Line

—With CONSIDINE

New York, Oct. 27.—Here's our triple-special, super-official list of the first ten football teams, as the season reaches its half-way mark. It was compiled after an exhausting ten-minute inspection of the Sunday sportpages. To make it further official we wired Pop Warner, Maj. Bob Neyland, Bernie Bierman, Elmer Layden and Jack Hagerty, and sent a ouija night message to Knute Rockne and Walter Camp. None replied, but here goes:

CONSIDINE

1—Notre Dame (still under wraps).
2—Cornell (best Eastern team ever seen).
3—Michigan (fine team, with one great back).
4—Minnesota (tremendous power, little variety).
5—Boston College (tough, and some imagination).
6—Tennessee (cheap schedule, but tough team).
7—Texas A. and M. (best of the circus acts).
8—Northwestern (lot of fight, but brittle).
9—Georgetown (swell team, modest schedule).
10—Stanford (best of a so-so coast league).

One gets a clearer picture of the football picture, as a result of Saturday's games. Penn cracked up, because Frank Reagan was stopped, not only by the Wolverines but by his own "pressing." Tommy Harmon shows up shinier than ever, doubtlessly a back who will now be remembered with Grange.

Fordham's chances of going to the Sugar Bowl (they never had a chance of making the Rose Bowl, for reasons involved and puerile) went glimmering when big Joe Aguirre plunked home a field goal. Cornell showed that last year's great upset victory over Ohio State was no upset at all. Stanford got a foot in the Rose Bowl's Door.

Notre Dame is so terrific this year that its regulars may have trouble winning their letters. Actually, after playing three games, the first team hadn't been used enough to get the proper number of minutes played, demanded by the Irish athletic office before it issues letters. The second and third stringers played as much Saturday against Illinois as did the regulars. There were some fourth and fifth stringers in there, too, good enough to be stars on other teams. When Layden put in his first team late in the first period (after the second stringers scored) it tallied in three plays. The first team started the final period and chopped 63 yards down the field to another touchdown in five plays. Well . . . Army will stop 'em next Saturday. If it brings along its bomb-sight, Garands and light tanks.

But for an ability to strike savagely with a few blistering plays, you've got to hand the palm to Cornell. It scored its three touchdowns against Ohio State in just nine plays. Cornell is like Dempsey, in his prime. Not big, but strong, fast and with a murderous wallop. The sight of Carl Snavely's incredibly accurate machine mowing down those big cornfed Ohioans was unforgettable.

Cornell has no one star. It has seven or eight backs who can run, pass and block. Its ends zig zag like great halfbacks. It is Detroit, Oct. 27.—Defeeat stared the Redskins in the face for nearly an hour here today and then was sent on its way for the sixth straight week as Dodgin' Dick Todd staged a 61-yard touchdown run in the final quarter for a harrowing 20-14 victory over the Detroit Lions.

It was a battle replete with tense moments and one which saw the Lions come roaring back in the final three minutes with a passing show which carried the ball from their own 3-yard line to the Redskin 16 before the whistle ended the business.

A crowd of 28,909—the largest football throng ever to fill Detroit University Stadium—turned out and went slightly balmy as the Lions forged into a 14-13 lead at the outset of the second half and quarter to pile up a substantial advantage.

Todd Stars

Today it was Todd—Todd on offense and Todd on defense, aided and abetted by the heads-up playing of the entire Redskin team—which accounted for the Redskin victory. The passing of Slingin' Sammy Baugh, main factor in the Redskins' six straight triumphs in the National Football League this season, was a negligible factor.

Instead of his arm, Baugh used his kicking toe today to keep the Redskins out of hot water and keep moving the rebellious Lions back deep in their own territory with kicks that were good for 66, 48 and 64 yards.

The Redskins were off to the races in the first 2½ minutes of the game with a 7-0 lead snatched when Jimmy Johnston tore through the Detroit right side on a reverse and galloped 65 yards down the field to score, and Bob Masterson kicked the extra point.

McChesney Scores

Midway of the second quarter, they increased the lead to 13-0 when Frank Filchock, whose injured throwing arm was incased in tape and analgesic balm, flipped a 10-yard pass to End Bob McChesney in the right-hand corner of the field for a touchdown that climaxed a 52-yard march in which Todd played a major role.

Then it was that the Lions let out a roar and took things in hand by completely outplaying the Redskins and piling up two touchdowns to the consternation of Coach Ray Flaherty.

For the entire quarter the Lions hung tenaciously to their lead—gained on a "105-yard march" for a touchdown in the second quarter and a 76-yard runback of a Redskin bobble in the third period. And then came Todd.

Russell Converts

The 165-pound Texan took the ball on the Redskin 39, started to circle his right end and then cut back sharply through a hole opened up in the middle of the line and scampered the remaining 61 yards down the field. As Dodgin' Dick went through the middle and headed for the left-hand corner of the field, he came almost to a full stop to pick up a shield of blockers. Then he crossed over and with Tony Calvelli, Lion center, and Lloyd Cardwell, Lion right half, chasing him, he outdistanced the field. Russell, whose previous kick was blocked, made it good this time.

But the Lions weren't through. They came charging back up the field only to have Bob Hoffman intercept Cotton Price's pass on their 45 and run it back to the 11. At the 3 they took the ball away from the Skins and started up the field with Dwight Sloan throwing and Price and the famed Whizzer White lugging the ball. With 40

Bears' Early Attack Routs Giants, 37-21

Chicago's Powerful Pro Eleven Scores 30 Points in First Half; Lee Artoe Boots Near-Record 52-Yard Field Goal

By International News Service

New York, Oct. 27.—The Chicago Bears, tagged by Jock Sutherland as the "greatest team ever to walk on a gridiron," proved all of that today in routing the New York Giants, 37 to 21, in a wild-scoring National Professional football game, the last quarter of which was played under flood lights.

The leaders of the Western division of the cash-and-carry loop showed an all-around offensive, attacked and scored in every way imaginable, including Lee Artoe's 52-yard field goal, which was 1 yard shy of the league's all-time record.

The Bears practically held a monopoly on the pigskin in the first half, annexing 30 points to the Giants' lone touchdown, which was pushed over from the 1-yard stripe by Walt Nielsen with only 30 ticks left in the clock. In the second half, New York outscored the Bears two touchdowns to one, which was insufficient to overcome the earlier deficit.

The Giants had one score nullified by penalty. Lee Shafer intercepted Sid Luckman's pass on the 28 and raced to a touchdown but the play was called back to the point of interception because of interference with the intended receiver.

In the final half minute, Eddie Miller, the Giants standout, fired a pass to Max Harrison, who was

Tribe Directors To Consider '41 Pilot Today

By the Associated Press

Cleveland, Oct. 27.—Directors of the Cleveland Baseball Club will meet tomorrow to decide the future of Oscar Vitt, 1940 manager and consider a 1941 pilot.

President Alva Bradley, declaring that Vitt still was on the list of possibilities, commented:

"I think in fairness to Oscar that we should make a decision now. That will be the first matter to be considered Monday. I can't say that we will name a new manager at this meeting. We will go into all the possibilities after the Vitt matter is cleared up."

Bradley admitted he had talked with Bucky Harris, Washington pilot, and Luke Sewell, Indian coach, about the job, but refused to name others under consideration.

It is believed Mickey Cochrane, former Detroit manager, and Roger Peckinpaugh, former Cleveland

14,000 Witness Packers' Win Over Steelers

Milwaukee, Oct. 27.—The Green Bay Packers, held in check for three quarters by a fighting Pittsburgh team, turned on the heat in the closing period to defeat the Steelers, 24 to 3, in a National Professional League football game before 14,000 here today.

The Packers used reserves in most of the positions through the first half and it was all they could do to stay ahead of the Steelers. At the half the Bays enjoyed a 7-point advantage. They began to roll in the third period and threatened constantly but could not score.

In the final period, however, they began to click, ripping off consistent gains through the tiring Steeler line, intercepting Pittsburg passes and

Cards Upset Rams 17-7 on Interceptions

Kuharich Grabs Stray Pass to Set Up 1st Score, Hall Snares Another to Scamper 50 Yards; Result Leaves Teams Tied for Fifth Place

By the Associated Press

Chicago, Oct. 27.—The battling Chicago Cardinals came up today with a mild upset in the National Professional League football race, hanging a 17-to-7 defeat on the Cleveland Rams before a slim crowd of 10,313.

The outcome left the two teams tied for fifth place in the Western Division race with two victories apiece.

Early in the first period Joe Kuharich, guard, intercepted one of Parker Hall's passes and returned it to the Cleveland 44. After three line plays netted 14 yards, Beryl Clark tossed a 24-yard pass to Lloyd Madden, who caught it on the 18.

Late in the same period the Rams made their only sustained march, starting from Chicago's 39. Johnny Drake, who left the game with a sore leg late in the final period, got seven and then Hall passed to Ollie Cordill for 23 yards, putting the ball on the nine. Drake picked up two yards and then scored on a left end sweep similar to the play which produced the Cardinal touchdown. Vic Spadaccini added the point from placement.

The Rams got under way again midway in the second period after taking the ball at midfield, but a 15-yard penalty did more to stop them than the Cardinals. Hall again resorted to the air to put the Rams ahead but alert John Hall intercepted the pass on the 50 and ran for the second Chicago touchdown without a hand being laid on him. Lou Zontini again added the point. The Cards got close enough to try two field goals in the third period, one by Ray Parker from the 37 and one by Zontini from the 46, but neither was close.

Chicago closed the door in Cleveland's face in the waning minutes of the final period when Zontini place-kicked a field goal from the 20-yard line as the climax to a drive from their own 44.

Jockey Bribe Cases Turned Over to Courts

By International News Service

San Francisco, Oct. 27.—The confessions of seven jockeys that they had accepted bribes from Los Angeles gamblers and pulled horses to bilk California bettors to the tune of $1,000,000 will be turned over to the district attorneys of three California counties, Chairman Jerry Giesler of the State horse racing board said tonight.

Giesler said he will recommend that the authorities take criminal action against the gamblers, for theft, conspiracy, and contributing to the delinquency of minors.

Heads of the crooked race ring were named by the jockeys as Bernard Mooney, alias Einstoss, Saul "Sonny" Greenberg, and J. J. Murphy, all of Los Angeles. They made clear that J. J. Murphy was not the prominent racing judge of the same name.

The alleged offenses took place within the last two years at Hollywood Park, Delmar, and Bay Meadows climaxed a long investigation. The jockeys had been sus-

Indian Spring Wins, Beaver Dam Loses State Team Matches

Indian Spring Beats Elkridge, 10½-7½; Beaver Dam Beaten By the Same Score

Special Dispatch to The Post

Baltimore, Md., Oct. 27.—An intercity final for the Maryland State Golf Association team championship tournament was brought about in the semifinal matches played here today.

At Five Farms, Baltimore Country Club defeated Beaver Dam, 10½ to 7½, while at Elkridge Indian Spring conquered the home force by the same score. The finals will probably be played next Sunday over the neutral Manor Club course.

There was some fine golf shot as the Baltimore Country Club triumphed. In the No. 2 match, in which Harry Parr and Ed. Lucas won all but half a point from Jack Palmer and Eddie Bean, the first-named had five birdies on his medal score of 75.

Jones Has a 72

Harris Jones, teamed with Charley Nes in the sixth foursome, blasted a 72 at R. Thompson and E. Heimer to help assure three full points for Baltimore.

In the Am-Pro match at the top of the list, Jimmy Flattery and R. H. Swindell managed to halve the first eight holes with Al Houghton and A. Woodside, but Houghton made a par on the ninth hole and took the first point. He and his partner also had a one-up advantage on the back nine and won the match 2 up for all 3 points.

Rippy Scores 66

Elkridge members played well against Indian Spring, though not quite well enough. Claude Rippy, playing in the second foursome with Jock Olmsted, fired a 66 at F. A. Savage, jr., and Alec Knapp. The latter two salvaged a half-point on the outgoing nine.

Mel Shorey and Roger Peacock, in the No. 1 match, and Lon Harrison and Bob Albertus scored shutouts for the defending champion Indian Spring team.

Assistant Middie Coach Terms Harmon as Best

Special Dispatch to The Post

Annapolis, Oct. 27—Tom Harmon, who led Michigan to a 14-to-0 over Pennsylvania at Ann Arbor yesterday, "is the finest back I have seen perform on any gridiron in my time." This was the comment made here today by Raymond Swartz, upon his return after scouting Pennsylvania in the game against the Wolverines.

Swartz, who learned his football at Oklahoma A. and M. some years back where he played tackle, is assistant line coach of the Navy gridders, apart from his duties as head coach of the Middy wrestlers. He has scouted all of Navy's grid opponents this season. "Harmon," he said, "is not only a speedy and triple ball toter, in spite of his 195 pounds, but an excellent passer, blocker and kicker." He also said that "The Michigan line was superb, and kept Frank Reagan, Penn star, bottled up all afternoon," hence the downfall of the Red and Blue.

Bluejays and Dons Play Scoreless Tie

San Francisco, Oct. 27 (AP).—Creighton's Bluejays and San Francisco's Dons banged each other around in a rough, tough football game that ended in a scoreless tie today.

Some 10,000 fans who turned out for the second annual encounter were treated to 60 minutes of the hardest kind of play. In fact, Creighton, a medical school of note, suffered enough casualties to provide its students with cases for the next week.

Unbeaten Georgetown Faces Test In Syracuse Game There Saturday

New Yorkers Only Team to Smear Record of Hoyas

By Jack Munhall

Buoyed by the favorable reaction of New York football critics to its 26-0 licking of N. Y. U. in a game as one-sided as a mirror, Georgetown Saturday meets up with Syracuse, the team that smeared the only blot on the Hoyas' great 2½-year record and a team that last Saturday upset highly rated Columbia.

The Hoyas, who were lucky to get a last-minute 13-13 tie with Syracuse last year, leave Thursday for another invasion of the up-State eleven which has been unpredictable all season. Routed one week by Northwestern, 40-0, the Orange bounded back the following Saturday to manhandle N. Y. U., 47-13. Likewise, they came back from their 33-6 licking by Cornell to outplay and beat perhaps the best Columbia squad since Lou Little's men upset Stanford in the Rose Bowl.

Hoyas at Full Strength

Georgetown, however, will go into the game at full strength and with a team which New York critics say has a line as strong as any glimpsed this year in their area. Mal Stevens, popular head coach of the ill-fated Violets, was one who asserted that there couldn't be any better lines than the Hoyas' bristling 200-pound forward wall.

Stevens, incidentally, said he'd trade practically his whole N. Y. U. team for Jack Doolan, Georgetown's sensational sophomore speed merchant, and that the Hoyas should have a strong chance to beat Boston College when the two leading Catholic college elevens of the Nation meet November 16.

New York University, hailed in pre-game speculation as likely to prove a fair gauge of Georgetown's strength, was absolutely no help in throwing light on the subject of how good are the Hoyas whose victory streak hasn't even been threatened since the 1939 Syracuse scare.

Blozis Improves

One post-game impression, however, was that the Georgetown second-team line is rapidly approaching the ability of the regulars. Especially improved among the reserve Hoya linemen is National Shotput Champion Al Blozis, who was blocking out N. Y. U. players Saturday in clusters of three. The 250-pound junior tackle who yet has much to learn before he will be able to best utilize his tremendous strength, twice flattened a trio of Violets to enable G. U. ball carriers to get away for lengthy runs.

Blozis' best play was made on a 45-yard punt return by Bill McLaughlin which was nullified by a penalty. McLaughlin, who has the unfortunate habit of failing to follow his interference, swung out around toward the sidelines after gathering in a kick from N. Y. U.'s Woodrow Wittekind and appeared destined to go down quickly as five N. Y. U. tacklers bore down on him. But suddenly the legs of three of them buckled like wheat before a scythe under the impact of Blozis' flying charge. And McLaughlin, granted this reprieve, tore loose and ran about 40 yards, nearly going for a touchdown.

JOE CARRIG

Koshlap Outstanding

Other outstanding Blue and Gray figures in the N. Y. U. game were Jules Koshlap, whose constantly improving ball carrying coupled with his deadly passing arm, stamps him as G. U.'s most valuable back; sophomores Doolan, McLaughlin and Dave Wiley, and the veterans Earl Fullilove, Augie Lio, Al Matuza and Jim Reichey.

With Georgetown playing at Syracuse, Maryland resting until the Hoyas are met the following Saturday, and Catholic University invading St. Vincent's College, at Latrobe, Pa., Sunday, there will be only one local game this week. George Washington, impressive 19-0 conqueror of West Virginia, tackles Wake Forest Friday night at Griffith Stadium. American University after a week's payoff resumes action against Randolph Macon at Ashland, Va.

Sachon in Form Against Bobcats

"Pistol Pete" Sachon, Catholic University's triple-threat quarterback, did nothing Saturday in the Cards' 13-0 victory over West Virginia Wesleyan to disturb the spreading notion that he has All-America possibilities. The 168-pound senior kept his punting average close up around the 47.8 mark, kicking one that traveled 52 yards, and for the second successive week had a hand in the fashioning of all his team's points. Sachon passed for both touchdowns.

Joe Carrig, Catholic University's crack end, who was taken to Providence Hospital Saturday after receiving an undetermined kidney injury in the West Virginia Wesleyan game, was reported resting comfortably and will submit to X-rays today. He is not, at any rate, expected to be ready for Sunday's encounter with St. Vincent's.

Deacons Favored Over Geo. Washington

George Washington, having regained much of the prestige lost in its rout by Kentucky by cracking down on a good West Virginia team, 19-0, probably will be a decided underdog to Wake Forest. Despite decisive defeats by Clemson and Duke, the Deacons have one of the most powerful attacks in the South and several great backs, including Tony Gallovich who last week was the Nation's leading ground gainer with 496 yards for four games.

Other standout Wake Forest backs are John Polanski, a fullback who, they say, cracks the line in a style reminiscent of Bronko Nagurski, and Red Mayberry, an extraordinary punter.

Maryland Victory Came Just in Time

Maryland's mild 6-0 upset of Western Maryland startled nobody, but it did, however, assure the Terps of a not totally disatrous season. Beaten four straight times before, Maryland probably will not win another game, unless it be its finale with Washington & Lee. In between the Terps play Georgetown, V. M. I. and Rutgers, all apparently out of their class.

Georgetown Given High Praise After Victory Over N.Y.U.

Long Island U. Beats St. Mary's

By the Associated Press

New York, Oct. 27.—Long Island University scored its third victory of a perfect season today when it defeated the touring St. Mary's University Rattlers, 14-7, before 10,938 at Ebbets Field.

The Texans gained their only touchdown on the second play of the fourth quarter when Curtis Sandig crossed from L. I. U.'s 14 to climax a 68-yard downfield drive, and kicked the extra point.

The Black Birds scored in the first period on Bob Trocolar's 20-yard pass to Leo Ravinsky into the end zone.

In the third, Lou Cappola pitched to Irving Dean from St. Mary's 11-yard line for L. I. U.'s second touchdown.

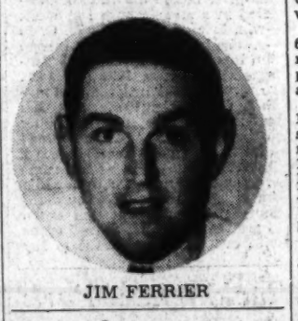
Ferrier to Compete In D. C. Open Today

By Merrell W. Whittlesey

Jim Ferrier, the big Australian Amateur and Open Champion who was barred from the National Amateur Championship on charges of professionalism, will be an added starter in the District Open Championship today at Congressional Country Club.

Ferrier, here on a visit before playing in several of the early tournaments on the winter tour and then leaving for his homeland, will play as an amateur. His partner in the 36-hole medal play event will be Levi Yoder, the former local simon-pure ace who is now playing as a professional. Ferrier played a practice round yesterday and matched the par of 72.



JIM FERRIER

Several other out-of-town entries received yesterday gave added importance to the tournament, kicked around all season but finally revived by the District Golf Association. Rut Coffey, the newly crowned Middle Atlantic P. G. A. champion from Winchester, Va., Arthur Thorn, of Lancaster, Pa., and Andy Gibson, Johnny Bass and Ralph Beach, of Baltimore, will all play in addition to the usual starters among the local professionals.

The one-day affair will be played for a purse of between $200 and $300. Wiffy Cox, the host pro and logical favorite despite Ferrier's presence, won the tournament the only times he played, in 1937 and '38.

Pairings and starting times:

9, Jocko Miller (Congressional) and Tommy Deerer, jr. (Rock Creek); 9:05, Bob Barnett (Chevy Chase) and George Diffenbaugh (Kenwood); 9:10, Cliff Spencer (East Potomac) and Leo Walper (unattached); 9:15, Al Houghton (Beaver Dam) and Mel Shorey (Indian Spring); 9:20, Ralph Beach (Suburban) and Gene Larkin (Woodmont); 9:25, Rut Coffey, Winchester, Va., and Ralph Bogart (Congressional).

9:30, Levi Yoder (unattached) and Jim Ferrier, Australia; 9:35, Lewis Worsham, jr. (Burning Tree) and Wiffy Cox (Congressional); 9:40, Arthur Thorn, Lancaster, Pa., and Andy Gibson, Baltimore; 9:45, Arthur Cross (Indian Spring) and Maj. J. B. Patterson (Chevy Chase); 9:50, Al Tredor (Manor) and Johnny Bass (Clifton Park).

EAST POTOMAC

Julian Williams won medal honors in the East Potomac Turkey Tourney qualifying with a 71, one under par. Roy Smith, the public links champion, was next with a 73.

Joe Micker divided the field into flights of eight, and winners of the nine brackets will receive turkeys. One week will be given for each match play round, starting today.

Williams and Ray Smith, Fred Mott and B. C. Brown played the first hole of the championship course in a total of five under par yesterday, Williams chipping in the cup for an eagle deuce while the others all dropped birdie putts.

ARGYLE

Capital Club members defeated Argyle, 25-18, yesterday over the Silver Spring course in the first half of a post-season home-and-home match.

Visiting Pro Tony Sylvester and Club Champion George Molloy put together a best ball 65, 7 under par, to win all three points over Maury Cooper, host club champ, and John Holzberg. The losers were hosts in a dinner following the match. The second half of the match will be played November 24, at Capital.

BEAVER DAM

S. D. Smith won the handicap sweepstakes tourney at Beaver Dam with an 84-14, 70. Dr. L. Levine and Sam Kaplowitz tied for second with 83-12, 71, and 86-15, 71, respectively, while fourth place was also a tie, C. B. Hartman, 98-26, 72, and Jerry Burch, 83-11, 72.

Jack Doolan Still Leading Local Scorers

G. U. Sophomore 12 Points Ahead Of Walter Fedora

Though New York University shackled him more efficiently than has any previous foe, Georgetown's Jack Doolan sped 37 yards to one touchdown Saturday and lengthened his lead in the individual local scoring race.

With six touchdowns to his credit, the sophomore flash is running 12 points ahead of Walter Fedora, George Washington fullback, who in turn holds a one-touchdown lead over Jules Koshlap, Jim Castiglia and Lou Ghecas, of G. U., and Ken Batson, of G. W., who share third place.

Georgetown, adding 26 points to its team scoring total, continued not only to run away from its District rivals in this respect, but maintained its position among the most powerful offensive elevens. The Hoyas, with 178 counters for an average of almost 36 points a game, is second only to Boston College among the major teams. The Eagles, swamping St. Anselm, 55-0, have rolled up 224 points in five contests for an average of better than 45 per game.

G. U., yielding a pair of touchdowns to Waynesburg, of all teams, and a couple of safeties to V. P. I., also has one of the best defensive records. They are led in this department only by Cornell.

Perce Wolfe Wins Campbell Pin Sweeps

Perce Wolfe, one of the District and the Nation's top-ranking bowlers for a number of years, won his first Howard Campbell Sweepstakes last night, posting a 15-game score of 1,967 to pocket $300 first prize, highest in eight years and a diamond medal.

Wolfe came from behind in the last game at Convention Hall to nose out defending champion, Tony Santini, for the city's most coveted duckpin sweepstakes title. Santini was three pins back with 1,964, and won $100.

Wolfe's five-game sets were 652, 661 and 684, the most consistent rolling of the day, while Santini posted consecutive sets of 649, 672 and 643.

Ed Blankeney finished third with 1,958 for $50, featured by a middle set of 697, while the fourth and last money prize went to El Geib with 1,949, including a second set of 705. Lou Jenkins, Nova Hamilton and Fred Murphy finished just out of the money, three, six and seven pins back of Geib.

Paul Jarman led at the end of the first block at Chevy Chase with a 714 set while Fred Murphy slipped into the lead at the end of 10 games, at Lucky Strike. Murphy remained in front by a scant margin through the fourteenth game but his poor finishing effort found six others slipping in ahead.

Jarman's 714 set and Ollie Pacini's 167 game won the Chevy Chase set and block prizes, Jack Talbert's 680 won high set at Lucky Strike with Hokie Smith and Cletus Pannell tying for high game, 165, while consolation prizes at The Hall went to Red Murphy, a 175 game and Ray Barnes, Richmond, a 681 set.

Blake to Attend Dinner Here for Harvey L. Miller

The National Boxing Association will be represented at the Col. Harvey L. Miller testimonial dinner November 4 at the Willard Hotel by James A. Blake, of Richmond, Va., one of that body's vice presidents.

Edward C. Foster, of Providence, R. I., former president of the association and former executive secretary also may attend, although the elections may hold some of the many N. B. A. officials back, including Joe Triner, of Illinois.

A meeting of the full dinner committee, of which Thomas P. Morgan is chairman will be held tomorrow night at the Willard Hotel.

La Salle Defeats Mt. St. Mary's, 13-0

Philadelphia, Oct. 27 (AP).—La Salle punched over two first-quarter touchdowns before a crowd of 2,000 today to defeat Mount St. Mary's College of Emmitsburg, Md., 13 to 0, for its third victory in five starts.

CONGRESSIONAL

J. M. Trice finished 2 up on perfect figures to win the Match Play Against Par tournament at Congressional Club. Trice scored an 83 for the round and his 12 handicap figured in the winning score. H. J. Klossner Elden McFarland and Ralph Moore all tied for second, 1 up on par figures.

Breaks Help Detroit Defeat Villanova, 10-0

Titans Capture Fifth Straight; 30,251 Fans Witness Grid Clash

By the Associated Press

Philadelphia, Oct. 27.—Detroit's undefeated and untied Titans converted two breaks into a field goal and a touchdown today to whip Villanova, 10 to 0, for their fifth straight victory.

The largest home crowd in Villanova's history—30,251 — saw the Titans score on Frank Hayes' 31-yard field goal in the first period and Al Ghesquiere's 3-yard line plunge in the second quarter. Detroit then repulsed four Villanova threats on the 25, 20, 5 and 7 in the second half.

A fifth Villanova threat petered out in the first quarter on the Detroit seven.

Detroit's first break came late in the opening period. With fourth down and 30 to go, Paul Stenn roughed Paul McLoughlin when the latter punted. This gave the Titans a first down on the Villianova 44. Two forward passes, McLoughlin to Al Goodrich and Frank Hayes, put the ball on the 24. On last down Hayes booted a field goal from the 31.

In the second period, after a 57-yard Detroit advance was halted on the Villanova 8, Ed Rice broke through and blocked Nick Basca's punt. The ball bounced out on the 3-yard line and on the first play Ghesquiere went through a big hole at guard for the touchdown. Ted Pavelec converted.

Monk Will Never Forsake Old Pants, They're Too Lucky

By the Associated Press

New Orleans, Oct. 27.—Monk Simons, Tulane trainer, is wearing his old pants again.

Simons, whose muchly patched and faded 20-year-old knee breeches are something of a tradition in southern football, diked himself out in a new pair this fall.

Tulane dropped the opener, and the next two games.

Monk switched back and Tulane whipped Rice and North Carolina.

Now he's going to wear 'em to all games.

Boston Bears Bow In Last HomeGame

Boston, Oct. 27 (INS).—The Boston Bears closed their first home season in the American League today, losing to the Milwaukee Chiefs, 14 to 0. The defeat snapped a four-game winning streak of the Bears.

Novakafski manuevered the Chiefs into scoring position in the third period with a long pass and then went off tackle from the 13-yard line for the first touchdown.

A fourth-period aerial attack by the Bears ended in disaster when Cole intercepted and raced 55 yards for the second score.

Trojans Win, 6-0

Lack of Ethics Charged to Snavely

Buckeye Coach States Cornell Mentor Called Plays From Bench

By the Associated Press

Columbus, Ohio, Oct. 27.—Ohio State University's Athletic chiefs—a bit upset by Saturday's 7-21 loss to Cornell—today charged Coach Carl Snavely of the Big Red with lack of ethics and poor sportsmanship, but admitted the Eastern mentor was "a pretty fair quarterback."

L. W. St. John, buck Athletic director, and head coach Francis A. Schmidt declared that Snavely, from the bench, called practically every offensive play run by the Big Red as it handed the Ohioans their worst defeat in Schmidt's seven-year regime.

St. John said Snavely used a light-colored cylinder to tip off his quarterback, grasping it by the end for a pass play, in the center for a sweep, in both hands for a line smash, and then crossing his legs and swinging one foot when he wanted a kick.

CARL SNAVELY

"It was a —— crime," Schmidt said, "but it was so obvious and so amateurish that we had to laugh. We finally got to the place where we could call practically every play, Snavely's actions were so bold-faced.

"Some guys are foxy about pulling stuff like that, but everyone in the stadium could see this. Every time he sent in a substitute, the sub's shoe was untied. And as he knelt down to tie it, someone on his team would kneel down to help him. I guess the sub did a lot of against-the-rules talking while his friend helped him tie the shoe."

St. John, giving Cornell credit for having a great team, said he did not believe the bench signals had any effect on the score.

Ohio State Athletic Chiefs Claim Poor Sportsmanship Used

Challedon's Appearance Is Awaited

Can't Wait, Mioland, Hash May Oppose Brann Star; Three More Laurel Cards

By Walter Haight

The biggest racing season hereabouts since the lush days of the late twenties reaches the halfway point this week with the closing of Laurel. Today, tomorrow and Wednesday there will be bangtailing out on the Baltimore Boulevard. On Thursday, we get a chance to catch up on our knitting and look up a new bankroll before the final triple play of the season. Pimlico to Bowie to Charles Town, begins on Friday at the Baltimore plant of the Maryland Jockey Club.

Pimlico's "every day is Saturday" meeting comes in like a lion and there is no chance that it will go out like a lamb. Brother Alfred G. Vanderbilt and the boys have a line-up of horse races that will bring thrills, chills and bills—win, lose or draw, the Maryland Jockey Club is taking care of the bills, so all we have to do is to sit back and watch the stakes go by.

New Stake Listed

As if the Pimlico Special, gaining momentum as an important annual affair, wasn't sufficient lure for Friday's program, Vanderbilt & Co. has tossed in a brand-new affair, the Exterminator Handicap. In the Special, it looks like the great Challedon against Can't Wait, winner of Laurel's Washington Handicap, and possibly Mioland.

The Exterminator may prove what the name implies, for what promises to be a bulky field will compete at not a mile, 1⅛ miles, or even 2 miles, but over the marathon distance of 2 miles and 70 yards. With the aid of the very efficient Pimlico publicity department, I'll carry on.

Under the terms of the special, with its winner-take-all provision of the $10,000 purse offered by the Maryland Jockey Club, the weight-for-age clause, the stipulation that only straight wagering will be permitted and the final gesture toward altruism in a sporting event providing that all revenue from the wagering on the race will be donated to the British War Relief, the occasion will be a particularly brilliant one.

May Split Race

The Exterminator is a new test of thoroughbred stamina that has caught the fancy of the sporting public as well as the horsemen themselves who are supporting the race to the extent of naming 27 candidates. It appears that the starting field will be so large that the race will be run in two divisions with the generous endowment of $5,000 being added to each section.

On Saturday the Pimlico Futurity will not have to defer to the Nation's gridiron battles for the race is the final battleground for the selection of the two-year-old champion. With a gross value of over $40,000 and run over the stern distance of 1 mile and a sixteenth, a route for juveniles, the Futurity will draw the leading youngsters of the season.

Outstanding among the likely starters is Whirlaway, winner of the Hopeful, the Saratoga Special and the Breeders' Futurity at Keeneland last Saturday. Pressing closely for favoritism will be Our Boots, conqueror of Whirlaway in The Futurity at Belmont Park, but third to him in the Keeneland race.

Hash' Brother

Greentree Stable's Monday Lunch, a full brother to Hash, the Pimlico Special invitee, will have a host of supporters principally on the basis of his sparkling score in the mile of the Champagne Stakes.

Col. E. R. Bradley produced the latest threat to the chances of the aforementioned when his Bryan Station romped to an easy triumph in the mile and one-sixteenth Spaulding Lowe Jenkins at Laurel last Saturday. The manner of his victory and the distance over which it was accomplished stamp Bryan Station as a real contender in the Pimlico Futurity.

At present writing this quartet forms the nucleus of the starting field in the Saturday race although the significance of the event and the fact that it is one of the most desirable achievements for a two-year-old to win the Futurity gives assurance that an additional ten candidates are certain to be seen under colors.

RACING NOTES—The meeting at Pimlico will mark the end of the first year of the adoption of the Puett Electric Gate. When the Maryland Jockey Club first introduced the new gate it was done on a take-it-or-leave basis. If the horsemen liked it then it was to be used in all races. Looking back it is hard to realize that in the short space of 12 months the gate is universally accepted. And it has certainly cut short the long post delays so common under the old open-stall gate . . . During the past summer it cost Pimlico $32,000 to resurface a quarter-mile section of the racing strip. . . . The labor item was the least part of the total whereas the most expensive was the specially selected clay and top-soil. . . . The tons of cedar brush used to fill in the seven steeplechase obstacles at the Maryland Jockey Club's Pimlico race course comes from Virginia. The track superintendednt at Pimlico personally selects the slender cedar saplings and each year finds the task increasingly difficult. The entire operation of selecting, transporting and installing the brush takes about three weeks and costs over $2,000. And it has to be done twice a year, once for the spring meeting and again for the autumn session. . . . Pimlico race course, located only 6 miles from the heart of Baltimore's busy downtown section, is the oldest track in America still conducting races on the same site.

Charles Town Again Raises Race Purses

Special Dispatch to The Post

Charles Town, W. Va., Oct. 27.—The Charles Town Jockey Club, Inc., which operates the picturesque three-quarter-mile racing plant on the east edge of this historic West Virginia town, announced today, as it released condition books for the first half of its 18-day autumn meeting, increases in purses that are bound to meet with the enthusiastic approval of horse owners and trainers.

The purses at the meeting scheduled to open on Monday, December 2, and to close on Saturday, December 21, will average $536.50, as against an average of $467.32 at the 48-day spring-summer meeting this year. The average increase per race, then, will be $69.18.

Steady Increase

The Charles Town Jockey Club has increased purse money yearly since 1936, when a total of $124,700 was distributed among the horsemen participating in its racing. In 1937, purses totalled $160,800; in 1938, $209,300. This year, the total will run at least $247,055.

A new basis for purse distribution has been instituted for the December meeting, with earning opportunities graded in ratio to the class of the horses. The new order calls for $400 purses in races for 2-year-old maidens and for 2-year-old winners; and for maidens three years old and upward, as well as for all races designed for platers of the $800 variety.

In the $500-purse bracket are races designed for horses ranging in selling value from $1,560 down to $1,000, whether such races are exclusively for $1,000, $1,200 or $1,500 horses, or for horses anywhere within the bracket.

All races designed for horses ranging in selling value from $2,000 down to 1,550, will carry $600 purses. On Tuesdays, Thursdays and Fridays, the feature races will be worth $800, while on Mondays, Wednesdays and Saturdays, the principal attractions will be worth $1,000.

Move Praised

While this is the first announcement of the purse increases at the West Virginia course, a few horsemen and racing officials with whom the plan was discussed by A. J. Boyle, president and general manager of the Charles Town Jockey Club, praised the move. It is all the more praiseworthy, they pointed out, when it is remembered that discontinuation of winter racing in New Orleans means that Charles Town would have been overrun with horses—and horses of a higher grade than it ever has been the privilege of any track under a mile in circumference, to offer its patrons—had purses been maintained at the old level.

Challedon to Race In Santa Anita 'Cap, States Official

Los Angeles, Oct. 27 (AP).—Challedon, W. L. Brann's great thoroughbred, may soon be en route to California to begin preparations for the $100,000 Santa Anita Handicap.

Racing Secretary Webb Everett reported that Trainer Don Cameron, in a telephone conversation, had said the Maryland horse would start his westward journey early next week if all goes well in the Pimlic Special Friday.

Thirteen other horses of the Brann string are scheduled to accompany Challedon, Everett said.

Va. A. C. Wants Games

Selections at Laurel

Dear Al:

There are two things I would like to get off my mind (?). 1, There has been altogether too much "all or nothing" riding at this meeting. I mean that jockeys try to win and when they see they are beaten they try to sneak their mounts out of the money. Last week I saw at least three horses that should have been second. Toss off the place money through listless or indifferent riding. These were well played horses, too. I'm not naming names now but I will the next time. 2. The horse Spinach has not been retired. Nor is he barred by officials. Much has been said and something has been written to the effect that Spinach, a former stake winner, should be rewarded with a life of ease. Beautiful pictures have been painted of the sentiment of some persons for this old horse. Some of those mentioned have been offered Spinach for $100 and refused to take him. His present owner claimed him for $1,300 and is willing to stand a loss of $1,200 so that the old fellow may get his just reward. Yes, $100 takes Spinach. Owner T. T. Mott set that price before the veteran competed in a steeplechase last week—win, lose or draw. To W. C. P.—A check shows Coltiletti rode Sun Beau to victory in two Washington Handicaps, 1929 and 1930. To J. McD.—Thanks for those kind words about my best bet and my last race selection being so consistent. To "Better Racing"—Quit using postal cards, please. To Art Brown—If you don't come over and see me once in a while I'm going to stop giving you clubhouse passes and cut you down to grandstand. To K. M.—I agree with everything you have to say about that certain trainer but, remember, there are libel laws. To True Call—I was rooting for you, Baby. To Charles Town—Congratulations on increasing purses, again. To Alan Clarke—We all know that your Mowlee colt can run, but let's see him in a race. To everybody—The Maryland Racing Writers stage their annual Frolic November 13. I'd like to see you at a table. BILL.

First race—Memorist was highly favored when competing against high-grade platers in his last race, but bogged down in the heavy going. With a fast track in prospect, he should turn in a better performance. Jacotte drops down and figures to offer formidable contention. Wee Scot may be close.

Second race—Fairford, handled by the veteran Thomas Hitchcock, raced well in his debut and appears capable of beating the cheaper competition he faces today. Sir Romeo also displayed promise in his debut and should go well. Balk has early speed and might be hard to catch.

Third race—Latour, a campaigner from the successful Bedwell stable, has indicated sufficient speed in late races to win in this company. Dingmans raced well in his recent Keeneland race and rates as the contender. Pari-King should like the distance.

Fourth race—John's Star was fourth, three lengths behindLaugh and Play and Royal Marlboro last start and is accorded the edge here off that performance. Greek Jurist shows speed at times and shapes up as the one to beat. Bardy may stick it out for the show.

Fifth race—The Widener entry of Dr. Whinny and Thorn Apple appear to have the edge in class on their rivals in this number on merits of good late form. Equistar raced Liberty Flight to a head last start in good time and could upset the dope. Rough Pass is a factor which should not be overlooked.

Sixth race—Memory Book trailed his field in a mile and one-sixteenth affair last start but got up in the final jump to beat Clingendaal. Meeting a similar bunch today and going a longer route, he receives top figure. Blazing Heat has speed and may hold out for runner-up position. Sun Alexandria is back in form.

Seventh race—Sealoch won his last race, including Wildmute and Nick among his victims. He appears particularly well placed in this event with the contention comprised mainly of cheaper grade platers. Ida Rogers has shown speed recently but is inclined to stop. Hot Man may be up for a late bid in the closing stages.

Eighth race—Boat's Crew has not been out since turning back Black Grouse at Havre in very fast time for platers of this caliber. If he still retains his edge, he figures to win. Conville needed his last race and has the speed to become a stout contender. Pennsburg is dropping down after a poor performance in New York.

Best bet—John's Star.

Ackerman On Hunting

ACKERMAN

Saturday is the day, November 2 the date, that wildfowlers have been looking to for many days. Not only because of a longer season this year, but because of the promise of greater numbers of wildfowl and the relaxed restrictions.

Up the Jersey coast, as well as out Long Island way—both in the area where the season opened on October 16—limit bags have been the exception rather than the rule because the birds aren't trading as well as they will with a little colder weather. Instead they are rafted up well out in open waters.

In the Chesapeake Bay area, in spite of the early arrival of a few species, there is no indication the real flights are under way. For that reason the early days of the season will find few birds coming in to the blinds.

Down Currituck and Albemarle way in North Carolina—probably one of the greatest points of concentration on the whole Atlantic flyway — the birds have been coming in for the past three weeks; in numbers that are gratifying in the extreme. But that isn't out of the ordinary for this area, where, even in the leanest years, limit bags were taken as normal.

We are looking forward to the two days we expect to shoot from Ray Adams beach blinds near Currituck Lighthouse for geese. When Ray acquired this preserve several months ago—it was the old Knight estate—there were 29 blinds all set up. Since, he has built nearly a dozen more, and with the birds already coming in to them there is little doubt but what his "club members" will have real shooting right from the start.

From down the Virginia and Maryland Eastern Shore there are also preseason indications of good shooting to come. Many private shooting lodges which haven't been open since the "duck depression" will resume activities.

Which is more than can be said for the Potomac River, where it looks as though the real shooting will come late.

Ducks Unlimited, the sportsman's organization working toward more of an increase in the duck population by the rehabilitation of the "duck factory" provinces in Canada, estimate 70,861,000 birds will migrate southward this fall. This compares with 59,682,000 at this time last year, an increase of 11,179,000 or 18.7 per cent.

During the last week in September blue-winged teal were thinning out fast; pintails were going through the southern areas in great numbers and the migratory front of Canada geese were also well down. They had been at the Athabaska delta on September 7.

With the increasing numbers of refuges and feeding areas along the flyways in the United States to care for the ducks and geese raised in the Provinces this summer, there is every right to believe there will be a spring nuptial flight back, that with the proper water and breeding conditions will give us a duck population in 1941 as large as we have ever known.

Bill Boyd Tests Moore Tonight at Riverside

Bout Listed for 10 Rounds; 34 Rounds Scheduled on Opening Boxing Card; Boyd Finishes Training at Baltimore

An 18-year-old, 196-pound Negro youth who looks like Joe Louis and who is said to be an even more potent one punch artist than the world's heavyweight champion will be put to a severe test at Riverside Stadium tonight when Buddy Moore, a product of New York's Golden Gloves and protegt of Eddie Mead, goes against Bill Boyd, Jack Dempsey's walloping sailor, over a scheduled ten-round distance.

This slugging main event climaxes a card of 34 scheduled rounds and is expected to attract the largest indoor crowd since boxing's legalization locally.

Boyd, a terrific punching heavyweight who has scored consecutive knockouts over Billy Nichy, Buck Everett and Dan Hassett here, boasts at least one advantage. Whereas Moore, due to his youth and relative inexperience, previously has been restricted to six round bouts, Boyd has paced himself over the ten round route times without number and will enjoy a distinct edge if the hostilities go to the limit, or hold over until the late rounds.

Trains at Baltimore

Boyd, a known spoiler of young heavyweights, concluded training in Baltimore yesterday and reportedly in his best fighting fettle. He knocked out Dan Hassett locally after the Philadelphia Irishman had snapped Buddy Scott's lengthy winning string, and created something of a sensation a few months ago while stiffening Pittsburgh's promising Harry Bobo in Motor Square Garden.

Moore, who won both the Golden Gloves and national amateur heavyweight championships while a simon pure, turned professional under Mead's auspices this past July 22. He since has scored five short order knockouts in six starts, boxing out a unanimous decision over rugged Al Blake his last time out.

In his second professional bout Buddy required but 24 seconds to stop Johnny Sionas, a fair heavyweight, on the Conn-Pastor card. In his fifth bout he hit the jack-pot locally by putting away Maynard Daniels, local Marine, in less than a round on the welliterweight championship show featuring stablemate Henry Armstrong and Phil Furr.

Mead in Moore's Corner

The presence of the ringwise and highly respected Mead in Moore's corner is expected to work wonders with the big Negro tonight. Boyd unquestionably is big Buddy's severest test thus far, and many believe that Mead has over-matched his boy in this instance.

An all-star supporting line-up supplements the main event tonight.

In a special eight-round number Everett (Young) Rightmire, Sioux City veteran, who was ranked among the world's first ten lightweights prior to being stopped by Bill Bullock in an upset recently, comes back against Marcus Pitts, up-and-coming local Negro. Rightmire, hot on the trail of a return bout with Bullock, will get his chance if he decisively defeats Pitts.

Twin sixes bring together Johnny Kaplowitz and Joe Frederick, heavyweights, and Jackie Carter and young Johnny Buff, lightweights. In a show opening four rounder at 8:30 o'clock Pee Wee Lewis squares off with Tommy Ricco, both are featherweights.

Fights Tonight

EVERETT RIGHTMIRE, highly regarded lightweight and stablemate of Buddy Moore and Henry Armstrong, who meets Marcus Pitts in an eight-rounder tonight at Riverside Stadium

Race for College Football Title Scrambled

5 Midwest Teams Still In Running

Michigan, Minnesota, Northwestern, Notre Dame, Detroit Are Standout; G. U., B. C. Well Liked

By Bill Boni,
Associated Press Sports Writer.

New York, Oct. 27.—From a football week-end that had more Merriwell finishes than the wildest movie script and more surprises than your Aunt Emma's Christmas box, the Middle West emerged today with a hat full of teams clamoring for more than sectional recognition.

In the Western Conference alone are three clubs that must figure in any national ranking. Each has won a major intersectional victory—Northwestern over Syracuse, Minnesota over Washington and Michigan over California and yesterday over Penn—and each in addition has cleaned up in its own territory.

Besides these the Midwest has Notre Dame, still looking for some team to give its first stringers 60-minute workout and hardly likely to find it in next Saturday's meeting with inept Army, and Detroit, which stayed in the all-winning ranks by downing Villanova today, 16-0.

Ole Miss Upset

While the East was losing Fordham and Columbia from its unbeaten-untied list, Mississippi was knocked off in the South and Texas in the Southwest, the Midwest foursome came through impressively on all counts.

Michigan's meeting with Penn had been headlined in advance as a duel of brilliant individuals. It turned out to be another great show by the Wolverines' Tommy Harmon, who ran 19 yards and passed 15 yards for the two touchdowns, kicked the extra points and got valuable assists from Bucking Back Bob Westfall and Blocking Back Forest Evashevski as Michigan smothered Frank Reagan to win, 14-0.

Minnesota and Northwestern, rivals in next Saturday's major attraction, both came from behind. The Gophers, with George Franck racing to four touchdowns, whipped Iowa, 34-6. Northwestern, with Bill Decorrevont on the sidelines, intercepted an Indiana pass and blocked a punt in the last quarter to top the Hoosiers, 20-7. Notre Dame's reserves again got a big play in a 26-0 whipping of Illinois.

Cornell, Stanford Shine

Sectionally the day's other standout performances were delivered by Cornell in the East and Stanford on the Pacific coast. The Ithacans, battered and buffaloed by an 89-yard Ohio State scoring drive early in the first quarter, picked themselves up off the floor to clear their biggest midseason obstacle with a 21-7 victory, biggest score ever run up on any Francis Schmidt-coached Ohio State team. Stanford put over two touchdowns in the last four minutes for a similar count against Southern California, which had won last year by 33-0.

Five other major Eastern elevens stayed in the winning column. Navy, which next tackles Penn, rolled up 17 first downs to 1 in walloping Yale, 21-0, for the first time. Army, on the other hand, dropped a 19-0 decision to all-winning Lafayette, which sent Jimmy Farrell over for two tallies in little more than a minute.

Georgetown ran its unbeaten streak to 21, five more than Cornell, with an easily won 26-0 conquest of New York U. Penn State's little Pepper Petrella was the big noise in an 18-0 defeat of Temple. Boston College, in its second successive breather, crushed St. Anselm's, 55-0.

Tennessee and Clemson, cleanslated standard bearers of the Southeastern and Southern Conferences, had their troubles. The Vols were held scoreless for the first half and didn't look too good in the second as they beat Florida, 14-0, and Clemson, on Thursday, was held to 21-18 by South Carolina.

Tribe to Consider 1941 Pilot Today manager, are on the list to be submitted to directors.

Bucky Harris Denies Tribe Approached Him

Despite the wave of reports that he is Cleveland's first choice to succeed Oscar Vitt as manager, Bucky Harris last night continued to deny that he had even been approached by Cleveland officials.

Harris professed ignorance of today's meeting of the Cleveland directors, but hinted that his name might be brought up for consideration.

"These reports about me negotiating with Cleveland are as clear as mud to me. I haven't talked with Bradley. But if anything comes out of the meeting today . . . well that's different," stated Harris.

(The Post has learned reliably that Harris and Bradley have been negotiating with the permission of Clark Griffith, president of the Nats, and that Harris is holding out for a three-year contract. It is understood that Harris will not accept a contract for one year, but demands a three-year agreement, calling for a minimum salary of $15,000 for the first year and $17,500 for the next two.—Editor's note.)

New Skating Club Uses Ice Palace

The Sunset Ice Skating Club has set aside three figure special skating sessions for figure skaters at the Chevy Chase Ice Palace. They will be held on Sundays at 9 to 11 a. m. and at 11:30 a. m. to 1:30 p. m., and on Tuesdays at 6:15 to 8:15 p. m. at the Ice Palace. Norvel Baptie, Dorothy Snell and Lillian Tribby will be the staff of instructors. After the membership is formed a meeting is contemplated for the purpose of organization and a name for the club will be chosen by the members.

Helen Horton's Jeremiah Wins In Bridle Trails Gymkhana

Young Rider Suffers Broken Leg When Kicked by Horse, Is Rushed to Hospital

Although Helen Horton suffered a broken leg as the result of a kick by a horse, her mount, Jeremiah, was awarded the blue ribbon in the event for bridle trails hacks at the Washington Bridle Trails Association's gymkhana yesterday in Rock Creek Park.

While her pretty young rider was being rushed to Emergency Hospital for treatment, the judges decided that the good chestnut mare had performed better than any of the 36 other horses in the class and gave her the top award.

Entry Gets Third Place

The entry that had kicked Miss Horton, Claire Livingston's Shiner, was given third place in the class in spite of her wrong-doing. Spectators murmured over the decision with raised eyebrows, for one of the stipulations of the class was "ability to give a comfortable ride in all gaits to be especially considered" and Miss Livingston's gelding kicked another entrant in last week's Rock Creek Park show.

Jeremiah took another blue for her owner, Stanley Jones, in the potato race, where they out-maneuvered Nancy Prenderast, on National Park College's Katie, and a long list of other riders.

Eddie Talbert, who had been followed by ill fortune during the first four of the five events on the card, finally came into his own and won the balloon race, but it was an hilarious struggle. Twenty participants commenced activities, each attempting to keep his own balloon from being popped by his 19 competitors. It turned out to be the roughest fun of the day, with riders being knocked from horses, balloons bursting on all sides, and feminine shrieks disturbing Rock Creek's customary Sabbath quietude.

Finally, after half an hour of varying degrees of battle, only Talbert, Eugene Lowe, and a Mr. Sloan (whose first name was never divulged) remained in the ring. Talbert tried a left wing attack, but Lowe intervened and disposed of Sloan's balloon to the tune of loud cheers. Then only Lowe and Talbert were left, and chased each other in a small circle until Judge Fenton Fadeley decreed that they should continue from the ground.

Dismounted, Talbert climbed on a nearby fence, jumped down, and landed directly on both Lowe and his balloon, thus emerging as the winner. He announced that Fate owed him the victory, however, for he had previously fallen off during the potato race, placed only fourth in the hack event, had the roughest ride of the morning in the jumping class, and given his chair (inadvertently) to a lady in the musical chairs class.

Summaries:

POTATO RACE—Won by Stanley Jones on Jeremiah; second, Nancy Prendergast on National Park College's Katie; third, James Galloway on Potomac's Riding School's Dave; fourth, Barbara Nathan on National Park's Timmie.

BRIDLE TRAILS HACKS—Won by Jeremiah, owned by Stanley Jones, ridden by Helen Horton; second, Goldcious, owned by Mrs. Robert Watson, ridden by Happy Christmas; third, Shiner, owned and ridden by Claire Livingston; fourth, Sam, owned by Vernon G. Owen, ridden by Eddie Talbert.

Packers Defeat Steelers, 24 to 3

Adkins Scores Touchdown

Bob Adkins, rookie Packer back, gave the Packers their first score when he intercepted a pass by Billy Patterson and ran 35 yards for a touchdown before the game was four minutes old. Tiny Engebretsen added the extra point.

Pittsburgh gained possession a few minutes later when an attempted Green Bay place-kick was blocked and knocked back to midfield. Running plays advanced the ball to the 30 and Al Niccolai then place-kicked from the 37-yard line to give the Steelers their only points of the game.

The Packers added to their advantage in the second quarter on Clarke Hinkle's 33-yard placement, but were impotent on offense the rest of the way.

Packers Miss Field Goal

Green Bay threatened twice in the third period and missed a field goal from the 35 after putting together three first downs on running plays. Near the end of the quarter they marched to the Pittsburgh 9, covering the last half of that advance on a 15-yard pass from Arnold Herber to Andy Uram.

On the second play of the final quarter Frank Balasz, sub fullback, rammed it over for a touchdown from the 1-yard line and Don Hutson added the extra point with a place-kick.

The Packers' final score came on a 19-yard pass from Hal Van Every to Don Hutson in the end zone. Engebretsen added the extra point from a place-kick.

On the Line With Considine

semisuicidal to throw a pass against Cornell. They field the ball like DiMaggios.

We've never seen a team that could readjust itself as quickly as Cornell. Ohio State marched 89 in the first quarter to its touchdown. It was a fearful, battering-ram attack, mixed up with fine reverses. But after that touchdown the Buckeyes never reached Cornell's 30-yard line. Ohio State did not score a single first down, running the ball, in the second half. You see tackling and blocking like Cornell's once a generation. And opportunism like their's once in a blue moon.

Most unbelievable feat turned in by Saturday's children, outside of Reagan's being held to a 10-yard gain in 14 rushes, and Texas' great Jack Crain being held to a 4-yard gain all day by Rice, was performed in a high school game. Gordon Larson, Idaho schoolboy, blocked a kick. The ball hit him in the stomach and doubled him into hairpin shape. He stayed that way for a moment with the ball imbedded in his tummy, then two able-bodied teammates picked him up. He was only semiconscious, but the ball was still stuck in there. The teammates carried him over the goal line for the touchdown. It happened in Moscow, Idaho.

There couldn't have been a niftier play made than Red Morris' 32-yard dropkick, with which Syracuse beat Columbia in the final minutes. Navy, unbeaten, should make Army decide to join the University of Chicago, after the service classic this year. Clark Shaughnessy's head must be swimming: Last year Chicago, the worst debacle in modern football history; this year Stanford, and a good crack at the Rose Bowl. We advised all 40,000,000 readers that Wake Forest was the team to beat, down that-a-way. Duke took the advice and beat the Wakes, 23-0. Our best bet for next Saturday—Army to place in the Notre Dame race.

Jockey Bribe Charges to Court

pended following the last Delmar meeting.

The jockeys were Leonard Scott, of Sabina, Tex.; Steve Packer, of Sparks, Nev.; Thomas Manson, of Lawrence, Mass.; Ellis Gray, of Thatcher, Idaho; Gus Dye, of Boise, Idaho; W. F. Ward of Wichita, Kans., and Freddie Miller, of Salt Lake City.

Also questioned, Jockeys George Burns and Owen Webster denied that they were members of a previous crooked ring mentioned by the seven.

The seven jockeys said the payoffs, ranging from $200 to $400 per race, were made in person by Mooney, or through Jockey Miller.

Ward said Mooney had once threatened his life in an argument.

The seven testified that Mooney had endeavored to bring practically every jockey riding in California under his domination.

War And Prosperity

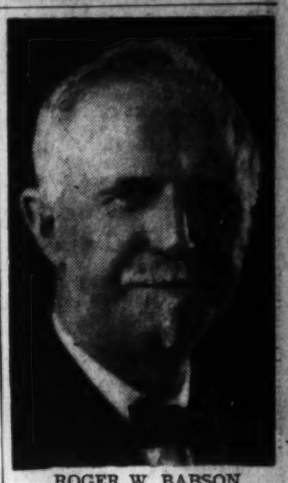
By Roger W. Babson

Wealth Conception to Change

I HAVE SAID in recent articles that business is getting better. As long as the defense program continues to broaden there will be no lessening of activity. Year-end reports will show more plus than minus signs. Manufacturers and other business men are throwing away the red ink bottles and stocking up on black. It takes time for war production to get under way. The country is still in the inertia stage. Once the initial problems of planning, financing and production are overcome, things should move fast.

With machine tool companies working day and night to provide the necessary equipment, there is a scarcity of skilled labor. Men must be trained for many important and technically-skilled jobs. Blueprints must be drawn, sources of supplies arranged, transportation schedules by rail and highway checked. Lawyers must study contracts, prices be determined and bank loans negotiated. Our industrial areas are coming to a state of intense activity.

The great agricultural sections of the country have not yet felt the increased tempo of our industrial cities. However, as movement of the business cycle swings from East to West, all sections of our land will ultimately be caught up in this rush to arm. Young and old, rich and poor, will all take more of a part in whatever the future holds.



ROGER W. BABSON

WAR PROSPERITY for some few people is a delightful state to contemplate. Unfortunately, such people do not come into contact with the actualities of war. These are far more cruel than those of the last conflict. My business associates know that I never side-step a scrap. I thrive on trouble. Give me some new upset to face each day and I am a happy man. I am no pacifist in business, religion, or war; and I am all set for any actual participation in the current fight abroad. But I also know that when our enemies suffer we also suffer in the end.

Dividends may increase, but total incomes of business men and investors will be drastically reduced by taxes. Even war talk and a feeling that the right side is winning brings increased activity in the stock market. The demand for labor will put more money into the pockets of the man on Main Street and into the tills of stores. Only unbiased historians years hence will be able to judge whether or not wars ever provide lasting economic values. Surely, real prosperity can come from our present situation only as it strengthens our character and teaches us needed lessons.

UNFORTUNATELY, we have not yet recovered from the effects of the last war. Furthermore, fundamentally, we profited little from it, either financially or spiritually. We had a slump in business after the armistice, followed by several years of rising values. Then came the swift kick in the pants so many of us remember. Now, we are on the eve of another great outbreak. God grant that it will not come before we are prepared.

Our country is like a sick child who before recovering from an ear abscess breaks out with chicken pox. We are not yet out of the depression starting in 1929. Temporarily, the economic situation will case up, bringing us to a false sense of security and prosperity. Geographically our county is so large, and our numbers and resources so great, that many have the impression we cannot be licked. However, in Hitler's eyes we are already tottering from internal labor troubles and Congressional fights. And the thought may not be far fetched.

Germany now has the great bulk of the resources of the Continent, let alone the Scandinavian countries. With this backing, anything can happen to us economically. One saving grace is that in all history no man has yet conquered the world. If I have learned anything in the last 40 years, it concerns man's frailty. Some day a leader will rise in some other country who will be Hitler's match. Until then, we must keep prepared economically as well as militarily for whichever way the tide turns.

I MAY SOUND like an alarmist. If so, forgive me. I am anxious only that we Americans are not caught sleeping, economically, at the switch. I am hopeful, too, that all will realize the price our young people must pay some day for the present expenditures and brief respite from unemployment. Hitler has no idea of invading the United States as long as our people are prosperous. He, however, believes that through labor and political dissensions unemployment will be so great and our people so divided that we will turn to Fascism as a remedy.

As my grandchildren constantly remind me, times have changed. Our conception of money and wealth will change. It no longer takes money, as we know it, to finance Germany. If it were of any real value, the gold which we have buried at Fort Knox would guarantee our own and England's salvation. No, money is today of little real value. We must have tangible resources, the courage to sacrifice and the character to keep our heads.

General Motors Net Doubles In Third Period

Earns 31 Cents a Share Against 15 Cents in Previous Year

By the Associated Press

New York, Oct. 27.—General Motors Corporation reported today for the third quarter net income of $15,597,030, after charges and taxes, equal after preferred dividend requirements to 31 cents a common share. This compared with $8,627,268, or 15 cents a common share, in the September quarter last year.

The corporation's total tax bill in the quarter amounted to $12,577,000, an amount nearly equaling the earnings applicable to the common stock. Of this total, $5,288,000 was set aside to apply to earnings in the first six months of 1940 in conformity with the new tax laws.

Earnings on the common stock, after deducting $7,289,000 for income taxes applicable to the third quarter alone, amounted to $18,590,475, equal to 43 cents a share.

For nine months to September 30 net income amounted to $129,172,490, equal to $2.83 a common share, compared with $109,619,799, or $2.39 a share in the comparable 1939 period. The total tax bill in the nine months was $52,472,000, against $27,132,000 a year ago.

Alfred P. Sloan, jr., chairman, told stockholders they must expect to "receive a diminishing return as this trend of increasing taxes proceeds."

Sloan said General Motors' percentage of passenger cars registered in the 1940 season through August reached a new high of 47.4 per cent of all domestic registrations.

Net sales in the third quarter, excluding inter-divisional transactions, were $275,791,610, an increase of 47.3 per cent over $187,192,970 in the comparable three months last year. For the nine months sales went over the billion dollar mark to $1,195,751,699, an increase of 29 per cent over $926,593,853 last year. These increases, Sloan said, were partly due to the earlier date at which the new models reached quantity production this year.

In the third quarter the total number of employes averaged 223,512, an increase of 23 per cent over 181,704 a year ago. Part of the increase was due to earlier introduction of the new models.

Penn Glass Sand Corporation

Pennsylvania Glass Sand Corporation reported earnings for the nine months ended September 30 of $539,221, after all charges but before provision for excess profits taxes. This compared with $378,270 in the comparable 1939 period. Plants are in West Virginia, New Jersey, Maryland, Pennsylvania and Missouri.

Skelly Oil Co.

Skelly Oil Co. and subsidiaries reported net income for the September quarter of $706,943, after all charges but before provision for excess profits taxes, equal to 71 cents a common share, compared with $809,327, or 82 cents on common, in the similar 1939 quarter.

Contract Bridge

A slight bidding discussion took place on today's hand when the West player inadvertently opened with a heart instead of a club. He had no intention of "psyching" in the Mayfair Bridge Club rubber game, where the stake was not marbles, but it certainly started the bids rolling.

Opening lead: 3 ♣.

Harry Content became the declarer in the none-too-cool North seat to win the six-diamond bid, redoubled.

The double placed the outstanding trumps and a cross-ruff finished the matter neatly and decisively.

The club lead was trumped in dummy and declarer ruffed a low heart on the way back. He led a low spade, trumped, played back a low heart and ruffed. Another spade was trumped by the faced hand and a third heart ruffed on the way back.

West threw a spade on the third round of hearts. Content played a club, trumped, and led another heart. West, this time tossing a club. Declarer trumped in his hand and now dummy's hearts were established.

Declarer led the last club and trumped with the diamond ten. He played the queen of hearts and West had to trump or discard. If West trumped with the jack, North would overtrump, play the ace and king of spades and West could take his ace any time.

If West trumped with the ace and returned a club, dummy would ruff and hearts would be pushed through again, trapping the diamond jack. If West refused to trump, declarer would keep leading hearts, trapping the diamond jack.

Content made six diamonds, redoubled, losing the ace of trumps.

WHERE DID YOU GET THAT THING ??
HUSH! I TOLD MRS. SEAWORTHY I LOST MY LORGNETTE AND SHE KINDLY LOANED ME HERS! EVERY COUNTESS SHOULD HAVE ONE!
WELL, STOP SQUINTING AT ME THROUGH IT, WILL YOU?
WHY, BILL, WHAT'S WRONG WITH MY LOOKING AT YOU THROUGH A LORGNETTE?
NOTHING, I SUPPOSE--BUT IT MAKES ME FEEL LIKE AN INSECT!

YES
I'LL MAKE THINGS GROW IN THIS YARD, YOU JUST WAIT! THIS SOIL IS SOUR—
YES, YES, I KNOW
I'LL SEND A SAMPLE TO THE DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE AND FIND OUT JUST WHAT ELEMENTS IT LACKS AND THEN—
I'VE HEARD IT ALL BEFORE, EVERY FALL. AND WHEN SPRING COMES YOU WON'T DO ANYTHING
WHAT DO YOU BET I WON'T?

You don't exactly have to start worrying about the thing right now, but, none the less, we think you ought to know that on March 29, 1941, all American radio stations which now operate above the number 720 on your radio dial are going to have their frequencies shifted about anywhere from ten to 300 notches to comply with the North American Regional Agreement on broadcasting.

WJSV, for instance, will switch from 1460 on the dial to 1500, the latter figure decided upon as being one of the 59 clear channels on the continent.

The changes were decided upon at a conference in Havana of emissaries of all the North American countries in 1937.

The major reason that the changes haven't gone into effect before this has been that Mexico's super-power stations, which advertise in a way not allowed in the United States and which because of their power can be heard more clearly than United States stations in border regions, have used their influence to delay the formal ratification by the Mexican government. But it's all settled now.

It's the persons who push buttons for their favorite stations who'll be the major sufferers. They'll have to pay their radio repairment about a dollar to change their sets. All persons who go through the arduous business of dialing for themselves will merely have to make a few minor adjustments in their memories.

D.C. Prosecutes Murder Charge In Traffic Case

Driver Will Stand Trial Today; Accused In Second Degree

Richard S. Nestlerode, 26-year-old laborer of 1227 Maryland Avenue Northeast, will go on trial in the District Court today on two murder charges, the first murder prosecution for traffic deaths in Washington history.

Nestlerode was indicted for second degree murder after a wild ride through a Saturday afternoon traffic jam last June 22, which left two pedestrians dying in his path.

Police said they obtained a statement from Nestlerode in which he admitted having several drinks before starting on the fatal drive. But a 30-year-old colored man leaped on his running board at Eleventh and M Streets Southeast, Nestlerode said, and he remembered nothing that happened until he "woke up" struggling in the hands of two men on Connecticut Avenue.

Seeks Two Life Sentences

Assistant District Attorney Arthur B. Caldwell, who will demand the maximum penalty of two life sentences for Nestlerode, said yesterday that the testimony of more than a score of witnesses will fill in the gap.

According to these witnesses, Nestlerode ran through a red light at Twelfth and H Streets Northeast and ran down Mrs. Edna Mitchell, 34, colored. She died July 6.

Nestlerode's car left the accident without stopping, the witnesses said, with two in pursuit. These pursuers and others who leaped for their lives when the cars bore down on them said Nestlerode wound through traffic at 60 to 65 miles an hour.

The chase led down H Street to Tenth Street Northeast, then north to Florida Avenue. The pursuers took down Nestlerode's license number, and shouted to him to give up when they drew abreast of his car at Third and K Streets Northwest. Nestlerode spurted away, and shortly afterward they lost the trail.

Hit Second Victim

At Ninth and M Streets Northwest, Nestlerode's car struck down Joseph Nappo, 57, 1250 Tenth Street Northwest. Nappo's skull was fractured, his chest and abdomen caved in, and other bones broken. He died a few hours later.

Nestlerode's car sped on, crashing into four automobiles before he reached Connecticut Avenue and Q Street Northwest. There the automobile hit two more cars and a street car and one of the wheels was wrenched off.

Private Gordon W. Rowland, of the Third Precinct, said he saw Nestlerode jump out and run north on Connecticut, knocking down a taxicab driver who tried to hold him. Left in his car was a pint bottle of apricot brandy, police said.

Rowand caught Nestlerode half a block away and arrested him.

Star of Shaw Play Likes 'Gamin' Role

"I'm a guttersnipe to the end!" Ruth Chatterton declared triumphantly, giving a foretaste of what the audience at the National Theater may expect tonight.

The actress, who will be Eliza Doolittle in Shaw's comedy, Pygmalion," perched on the arm of a chair in the rehearshal-darkened theater yesterday afternoon—and insisted that, as far as she was concerned, "evolution" was too strong a word for what happens to Eliza.

Behind her colored glasses, Miss Chatterton's eyes twinkled—as a virtual promise that her Eliza will be diverting because, for all the outward transformation of manner and speech the guttersnipe will still show through.

"I've never seen anyone else do the play, so I do Eliza exactly as I myself see her," Miss Chatterton said.

The star, wearing tan slacks and a bright pink sweater, with her blond hair studiously tousled, could give an interview only in snatches. Between her own appearances on the stage she watched and listened intently, and threw in suggestions of her own to the other actors.

"Keep that lovely oily smile," she called out to the actor who plays the role of her father—in the scene where he comes to bargain over her with the linguists who are trying to transform her from an uncouth flower-seller into a lady.

"Wait a minute," she urged him again. "Don't go quite so fast. Wait for a laugh after that line."

Thanking her, the gray-haired actor repeated the line with an appropriate pause—then apologized for not doing it that way, that first time. "I don't always know where my laughs are," he said.

"I know where mine are!" Miss Chatterton said earnestly.

Yes, she said, she was glad to be doing stage plays after so many years in the movies, because she wants to get audience reaction directly and because she feels that in the movies there is still too much "playing down" to the audience.

She got up out of a sick bed for the opening of "Pygmalion" at Princeton University a few nights ago. Yesterday at rehearsal she still had a trace of cold—but Eliza's Cockney accent rose triumphantly above it.

Nurses to Get Defense Query

An inventory of the Nation's nurses to determine what part each is fitted to play in the defense program will be begun this week in Washington.

Questionnaires will be sent to all graduate registered nurses in the District, and an attempt will be made to reach nurses who are no longer active in nursing work. The questionnaire, improved on the basis of experience here, will then be distributed all over the country.

The project is sponsored by the Public Health Service and the national nursing organizations.

Brattain Boys Appointed

Donald Brattain, son of Paul H. Brattain, of 7500 Fourteenth Street Northwest, was appointed a cadet captain, and Richard F. Collins, son of Charles C. Collins, of 1349 Jefferson Street Northwest, was appointed a private, first class, yesterday at Riverside Military Academy in Gainesville, Ga.

65% of Total List of Aliens Are Registered

About 65 per cent of America's noncitizen residents registered in the first half of the four-month roll call of aliens, the Department of Justice announced yesterday.

By Saturday, two-months after the registration began, 2,354,229 completed registration and fingerprint forms had been received in Washington. It is estimated that there are 3,600,000 aliens in the country.

Registration for the District reached 7,725 while 21,829 aliens registered in Maryland and 5,246 in Virginia.

Director of Registration Earl G. Harrison yesterday urged all those who have not registered to do so at the earliest possible moment. "Nothing," he said, "is to be gained by further delay."

"Those who are in doubt about their own status, or those who are hopeful that their oath of citizenship may be administered before close of registration, will only prejudice their own positions by failure to comply. On the other hand, registration will in no way prejudice their claim to citizenship."

Harrison emphasized that alien registration is compulsory and that severe penalties are provided for failure to do so.

Straw Vote Set At American U.

Students at American University will stage a mock Presidential election to determine the campus' choice of Roosevelt or Willkie today.

Political slogans and exhortations will boom from a sound truck from 10 to 11 a. m., "Roosevelt vs. Willkie" will be debated from 11 to noon by Robert E. Lake, of Ithaca, N. Y., president of the American University Republican Club, and Irwin Krasnoff, of Freeport, N. Y., chairman of the Democratic Club. The straw vote will follow.

Yerex Leads First Trans-Gulf Flight

New Orleans, Oct. 27 (AP).—Lowell Yerex, World War flier who lost an eye fighting rebels for Honduras and later built up an air service spanning six Central American countries, today led the first cross-Gulf flight from Guatemala City to New Orleans to survey a possible route to link the Americas closer.

Yerex, who navigated the twin-motored monoplane, a party of four experts and J. H. Leche, British Minister to Guatemala, took off from the Guatemalan capital at 6:21 a. m., Central standard time, and landed here at 11:37.

The party was greeted by James M. Eaton, of New York, vice president of American Export Airlines, Inc., which several weeks ago bought Yerex's "Taca" line, Transportes Aeros Centro-Americanos.
